IN REGARD TO BASEBALL

Grounds Are Being Fixed Up for the Opening Game.

The grounds of the Pendleton Baseball association on Alta street are torn up, so that the boys will not practice until Monday evening. Some of the members of the team will go to Walla Walla Sunday to see Athena play Walla Walla. The local grounds are going to be simply great when completed. Teams, men and graders are busy, and the diamond when finished will be as smooth as a billiard table.

Clark Wood Breaks Out Again.

The Weston Leader prints this without quotation marks, hence the inference is that the editor, Clark Wood, assumes the responsibility for the effusion:

Oh, Mortimer Meach may be a peach,
And Campbell a la-la-loo,
But Brown is the lad
That makes 'em all sad,
Brown and our yellow crew.

Chorus:
For Brown's in town,
And we bank on Brown,
He's the boy with the tireless arm;
And Saunders too,
And our yellow crew—
Will fill 'em with dread alarm.
Sharpstein's "string" is in trim,
Whitman plays with vim,
Rader's colts are in training, too;
But just the same
Osburn wins the game
Osburn and our yellow crew.

We have sung our song
And it isn't long,
But well show you that it's true;
Athena's the town
That does 'em up brown—
We're here with our yellow crew.

Fell gave a charming song recital for the enjoyment of the children and young people attending the High School. The recital was an event for the school not soon to be forgotten. The selection of songs was made with such good taste that the singing, which was in Mrs. Fell's usual artistic manner, was enjoyed as much by the youngest as by the oldest pupil.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

MRS. LUIA HINES-CRANSTON PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING

Was a Patient Invalid Who Rore It With Christian Fortitude.

After years of patient suffering, Mrs. LUIA HINES-CRANSTON, wife of C. K. Cranston, of this town, died this morning at her home on Jackson street, in north Pendleton. Since last October, she has suffered more acutely than at any time since she contracted asthma during the winter of 1884-5, when, injudiciously exposed during the great storm of that date, she took a cold which developed into the more serious malady. For a week past, Mrs. Cranston had been apparently worse, sinking lower and lower until death came this morning.

Shut in Society.

Few people in Pendleton knew the worth of Mrs. Cranston. An invalid for 16 years, denied to some extent the society of many friends, she was through all the period of suffering cheerful and resigned to her lot. There is an organization called "The Shut In Society," composed of those who from sickness are prevented from active participation in the affairs of the world. The members carry on correspondence among themselves, and frequently contribute articles to their own publication which is styled "The Open Window." To this society Mrs. Cranston belonged, and gathered much comfort from the association through the medium of the written and printed page with the many others who, like her, were shut in the sick room. Also she was a member of the "King's Daughters," an organization famed for its good works.

At times, since coming to Pendleton with her daughter and husband, in the spring of 1896, when Mr. Cranston took a position in the First National bank of Pendleton, she was seen frequently on the streets in an invalid wheeled chair, being able to go about somewhat when the weather was favorable. But the major part of the years have been spent in doors, where, with a native refinement of manners and a keen intelligence and lovable disposition, she contributed to the making of a model home life.

The devotion of her husband and a charming daughter, Helen, nine years old, were examples of which all may well be imitators.

Daughter of an Honored Pioneer.

Mrs. LUIA HINES-CRANSTON was a daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H. K. Hines. Mr. Hines is one of the most honored pioneers of the Pacific coast, and frequently visits Pendleton. Mrs. Hines died in 1890. Mrs. Cranston was born in Vancouver, Wash., in 1834, when Washington was a territory. She would therefore have been 37 years old in October, 1901. She lived with her parents in Walla Walla, La Grande, The Dalles and Portland, and since her marriage in 1857, with her husband in Portland and Pendleton.

There will be sincere sympathy by all who had come to know the long suffering invalid, and her life of such especial beauty. When the messages go out to all the members of the Shut In Society, as they will go, her record will be so inspiring an encouragement to those who like her are struggling with the highest tenets of the Christian faith and who are bearing their lot with Christlike fortitude.

THE PLAY—NATHAN HALE

A Great Production of Dramatic Art on Friday Night.

Almost every sane emotion in a human nature was stirred in every auditor who on Friday evening witnessed the production of "Nathan Hale." The powerful Revolutionary play written by Clyde Fitch, and in which Howard Kyle appeared in the title role, and Jessie Izzet as Alice Adams, and a supporting company that admirably filled every legitimate requirement. The play receives unqualified endorsement. It is voted one of the very best ever seen in Pendleton. The charm of the work of Miss Izzet, the excellent interpretations of Mr. Kyle, the balance sustained throughout the cast, with the complete stage settings, all contributed to make a production worthy an audience in any city of the world.

Alternately people laughed and cried, and frequent rounds of applause indicated the delight of the audience. The play is constructed upon the principle of one climax, ascending from the middle of the second act, after a generous portion of real good comedy, during which are given only hints of the coming stirring events. The climax reached, the action ceases, leaving the listener under the power of a spell that remains long after the curtain has dropped.

The story of Nathan Hale, which has been somewhat neglected by the compilers of encyclopedic histories, is worthy a place among the world's heroes. It was the more remarkable in that Hale, a refined, keenly honorable, educated young man with brilliant prospects, took upon himself a mission that would inevitably place upon his name a stigma as execrably touched to a spy, and, in that very act, made a sacrifice vastly greater than that of the man who dies on the field of battle or when leading a forlorn hope with certain death before him.

The perfect naturalness of the heroine, Alice Adams, in pleading with her lover, Hale, not to go upon the detested mission, her casting him off when he refused her plea, and then her eager coming when a false message reached her that the cast off lover needed her in his sickness and wounds, furnish a study in human nature and opportunity for the display of the highest form of emotional acting, an opportunity Miss Izzet did not lose.

The event will remain long in the memory of those who were fortunate enough to be present.

Wheat at Stanton.

W. J. Stockman, of Stanton, is a visitor in town today to see the horse parade. He has lived there for 24 years, which of course antedates the town of Stanton, and has raised wheat every year. Last year he had 150 acres while this year he has 275 acres of winter wheat. He says that wheat is in good condition. There are a few spots that are of light growth, owing to freezing, but that as a general thing the outlook is good for the usual crop, which averages 30 bushels to the acre, while some occasionally get as high as 40. Mr. Stockman sold some of his wheat last September at 47 cents per bushel and the rest of it recently at about the same figure.

THE EXCITEMENT IN CUBA

They Object to American Surveillance at the Polls.
