A GREAT BASEBALL GAME

PENDELTON WON FROM ATHENA DECORATION DAY.

The Day Was Ideal and an Audience of 1000 People Was Present to Witness the Sport.

The game of baseball on the Alta street grounds on Decoration day, Thursday, May 30, between the Athena and Pendleton clubs, resulted in favor of Pendleton by a score of 3 to 1. It was a game that had long been looked forward to with pleasant anticipations, and now that it is on record its memories will be treasured and discussed all season. The excursion train arrived from Walla Walla at 1 o'clock, with passengers from Milton, Weston, Athena and Adams to a total of nearly 200, including the Athena cornet band, which discoursed patriotic music on the way from the O. R. & N. depot to the Golden Rule hotel where the Athena headquarters.

At 2 o'clock the band led the procession to the grounds, where the teams practiced, and the game was commenced at 3 o'clock sharp, with J. E. Krause as umpire. The grand stand was jammed full, as were the bleachers back of the home base, while hundreds stood around and others sat in vehicles of different description and watched the fine play intently.

Marshall Heathman was at the head of the police force and the audience remarked after the game that the order was remarkable, a credit to all.

The Game.

Athena was first at bat and went out in 1-2-3 order until the third inning. After two were out, Vaughan hit the first ball pitched for a safe line, to left field and passed on to third, when Meach dropped G. Brown's fly. He allowed his ambition to be his ruin when he attempted to score on a half-swung ball when Claude Barlow threw to Chapler and caught him at the plate. To start the sixth, Vaughan knocked a liner that looked safe—but it wasn't.

As it went toward right center, Red Ulrich sauntered after it, jumped up, reached out his gloved left hand and took it in as easily as a boy would reach out and pluck a cherry from a tree. It was the most sensational little chunk of fielding that has happened in this league in a long while. Mr. Ulrich's face was suffused with blushing at the loud acclaim which followed the feat.

Seven innings passed away and Athena had not scored. Captain G. Brown stepped to the batter's position with determination in every movement. He finally got in the way of one of Chapler's curves and walked to first, although he was evidently suffering intensely from the way he gave himself the massage treatment. Willard struck out and R. Brown knocked a fly to Clarence Penland.

Got Some Charity.

G. Brown by this time was perched on third base through the charity of Clarence Penland's two passed balls, almost in succession. Mr. Cartman knocked a high fly to left field, which Meach misjudged. G. Brown coming home with Athena's only run. Saunders followed with a safe hit, but Lieutenant knocked a fly to Clarence Penland and the inning was over. It looked a little strange in the ninth, but trouble was averted. Dell went out, Ulrich to Hartman; Francis knocked a ball to Chapler, who in his desire to show that he had plenty of strength left threw the ball over Hartman's head, and Francis scampered to third. Score 2 to 0. Brown made the third one and last, Ulrich to Hartman.

Pen's Run Settling.

Pendleton started the run-getting in the first inning. Ulrich knocked one to Saunders and was out at first; Cox knocked one to Willard, who fumbled, and he was safe at first. Meach knocked a line to Willard and was out, but Willard's throw to first to catch Cox and complete a double play was wild and Cox steamed around the bases like an automobile. Barlow fouled out, and the score was 1 to 0. Pendleton scored again in the fourth. Meach had knocked a fly to Vaughan. Meach knocked one to Saunders, who fumbled and Meach got first; he promptly stole second, to the delight of the audience; Barlow made a safe hit and Meach scored from second. Hartman flew out to Francis. Score 2 to 0. Pendleton made its third and final run in the seventh. Meach made a safe hit and went to second on Willard's error. Barlow knocked a safe one to short center and Meach scored. Barlow on first with none out ripped off a piece of shoddy bunting, he was caught off the base by R. Brown throwing to Vaughan, then Vaughan threw to Cartman and the latter won a footrace with Barlow and touched him out.

Some of the Players.

Athena has a strong outfield. Dell, Llewellyn and Francis all coming in for credit by making difficult catches. Hartman saved some errors for the locals by scooping about three times.

Clarence Penland played a good third base and caught one foul fly close to the grand stand. He fell just as the ball touched his hands and bounded up. He then made a second grab at it and held it. The audience gave evidence that the play was good.

Chapler struck out 10 men, gave three bases on balls and hit one man. Saunders struck out three men, gave no bases on balls or by virtue of hit batsmen, and was as steady as a Waterbury watch.

Mort Meach was the only man to steal a base. He also scored from second twice on a hit, which shows that he is a base winner.

J. E. Krause umpired, and Fred Page, for Athena, and C. A. Maskrey, for Pendleton, scored.

Mrs. Eva Lamore, of Medical Lake, Wash., is visiting in Pendleton, a guest of her sister, Mrs. Rudolph Martin.

L. M. Harvey, a prominent farmer of Adams, was a visitor in Pendleton on Decoration day, a spectator at the baseball game. He says the prospects for a big crop of wheat are good.

Miss Carrie Stone, of Athena, came to Pendleton on Decoration day with the excursionists and remained over for a day to visit friends. She is a guest today of Mr. and Mrs. George Peringer, her uncle and aunt.

Miss Stella Willaby, of Athena, passed through Pendleton Wednesday evening on her way to La Grande, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Castienman, recently married at Athena.

From La Grande Miss Willaby will go to Lathrop, Walla Walla county, for a visit.

Mort Meach went out to the Sloan ranch on the evening of Decoration day, being engaged there in some artistic painting. He will return to Pendleton Saturday evening so as to be ready for the Sunday game of baseball with Walla Walla on the Alta street grounds.

Miss Maude Jones met with an accident while watching the baseball game on the afternoon of Decoration day. A foul hit ball struck her on the right side of the nose, causing blood to flow freely. She was taken home in a cab, and is able to be around today almost as well as ever. Her nose was not broken, but her right eye will be discolored for several days.

Mrs. Will Ford left for Portland this morning, in response to news that George W. Frautz died suddenly there. Mr. Frautz formerly lived here, and was a brother of Mrs. Strahon. Mrs. Ford's mother, a dangler was Mrs. Ben. Sinsheimer, wife of the well known commercial traveler coming here from Portland. Relatives in Pendleton received a message at 1 o'clock this morning stating that the death had occurred at midnight.

Mrs. C. E. Fell is a sufferer with an affection of the eye. There was a blood vessel burst in the ball of the right, causing the entire ball to become bloodshot. Dr. Miller lanced it in several places, and the improvement is most pronounced. Mr. Fell has recovered so as to be able to move about the house without crutches, and is regaining his strength so rapidly that he will be able to come down to the post-office in a week or so.

John Endecott, one of the proprietors of Lehman springs, spent Decoration in Pendleton. He is making preparations for a big season. His partners are Messrs. Warren and McCall. Mr. Endecott and John Ward, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Leathers, left for the springs this morning. Mr. Leathers will have charge of the store. Mr. Endecott gives out the information that Benson & Wells, of Walla Walla, will furnish the music for dancing at the hotel during the season.

NEW THING IN BUTTER.

Man Near Walla Walla Has an Ingenious Excuse to Offer.

A man who returned recently from Walla Walla tells a story of a shrewd farmer in that locality who was so well versed in the tricks of the farming profession that he could turn the worst kind of a "call down" into profit to himself, says the Walla Walla Union.

This farmer, who is a resident of the sand belt was the owner of several cows and at times peddled milk and butter. In the city of Walla Walla there dwelt a stylish family the units of which were fastidious in their tastes and objected to anything like native dirt in their food.

For several weeks they purchased butter from the farmer without any thing being found amiss until one day at the dinner table little Willie extracted from a portion of the natural substitute for oleomargarine a long red hair. Then there was consternation for the time. After a council of war the hair and the part of butter more preserved in a dark place against the returning of the man who vended the alleged table delicacy.

He came. When they saw him coming up the hill they all gathered at the gate and the butter and curdling butter lock were brought from their places of refuge and were audaciously rushed to confront the guilty man.

They expected to see him faint, but he did not. He was equal to the occasion. "That," said he scratching his head and looking wise, "that is the latest thing in table dishes. Several days ago I was able to procure an excellent buttermaker—a woman just from Belgium and she is a cracker-jack. Knowing you to be good customers of mine and judges of excellent cuisine I permitted you to be the first to sample her special buttermaking feature which is now being used by all the crowned heads of Europe. That is butter with the Belgian hair."

The man from Walla Walla does not record the finish of the episode.

LOVE STORY OF TWO GIRAFFES.

When Separated They Spent Hours in Gazins, At Each Other.

"In the Cincinnati Zoologet two giraffes," writes Clifford Howard, in telling some "Love Stories of the Zoo," in the Ladies Home Journal of last week, "are not noted for their affection, yet these two exhibited every evidence of true devotion to each other. The male giraffe seemed to tire of caressing the long, slender neck of his partner, and what was most unusual, would frequently leave for a moment the giraffe and chase a bit of food. On one occasion, when she was removed from the pen for a short time and quartered near by, he seemed to find consolation in some bits of cloth that had been used to bind her throat. Always lying down beside her, he would be the first to rise when she was called. And during this temporary separation the two would spend hours gazing longingly at each other across the space that divided them. When they were again united they made manifest their supreme happiness by following about (as frisky colts, blissfully unmindful of the fact that such behavior was anything but picturesque in creatures of their build."
