A runaway on Main street at 2:30 this afternoon attracted considerable attention. A farm team broke loose from the vehicle to which it was attached, near the O. R. & N. depot and ran down Main street to Fitzgerald's boot and shoe store, where they went onto the sidewalk. M. B. Keys and his express rig were there at the same time. One of the runaway teams collided with the express horse, fell and dragged its make down with it. Pedestrians on the sidewalk retreated to secluded places. The runaway horses were not anxious to continue their run after the fall and were easily secured and led away uninjured.

George Utt, Sr., aged 73 years, and his Left Leg Broken.

George Utt, Sr., aged 73 years, accompanied by his son with the same name, drove into Pilot Rock on Sunday afternoon, June 30, with a team of horses hitched to a lumber wagon. The old gentleman, who was quite helpless, was thrown out and sustained a fracture of the bone of his left leg about half way between his knee and hip. He was removed to the Bellet Hotel and the fracture reduced by Dr. Wilton. Owing to the advanced age of the victim the accident is a serious one and he may not recover. The Artificial Ice

Sold exclusively in Pendleton by Van Ordall & Ross, is made from distilled water and is therefore absolutely pure. It is a well known fact that typhoid fever and kindred diseases are almost universally traced to impure water. Another fact, demonstrated by scientific investigation, is that freezing does not kill the disease germs in impure water. Natural ice, taken from shallow ponds and full of sediment carries all the impurities of the water from which it was frozen. Distilling is the only method of removing impurities from water. Moral—Use artificial ice, and save doctor bills. You can only secure this ice from Van Ordall & Ross. Telephones, Main 4, Main 57 or Main 83.

"A GOOD FELLOW."

Chicago American Tells What He is in Reality.

Heart's Chicago American: A young man died, aged thirty-six, after a career of drunkenness and other dissipation.

At his death his friends said "he was just a good fellow, and that tells his story."

How easy it is to gloss over disgraceful failure and self-indulgence with a meaningless phrase.

Without mentioning this unfortunate man's name, his career may be outlined as a warning to those whose soft sentimentality leads them to the manufacture of foolish epitaphs of the "just-a-good-fellow" order.

This man was "just a good fellow," and he drank himself into his grave and broke his mother's heart.

He was "just a good fellow," but he disgraced the honorable name that his father had left him.

He was "just a good fellow," but he threw away splendid chances to be of use in the world and to do his duty.

He was "just a good fellow," but he spent an enormous fortune in making other men as drunken and worthless as himself, and in ruining the lives of unfortunate women.

He was "just a good fellow," but knowing himself to be a worthless drunkard, he married a respectable girl, the friend of his childhood, broke her heart and drove her to despair.

He was "just a good fellow," but the result of his father's life of industry was wasted on the lowest class of men and women. He never did an honest day's work, never deserved in any way the food, fresh air and the merciful kindness that permitted him to live for thirty-six years.

"Just a good fellow"—the term might better be applied to a copperhead snake, which at least does the best that he can and acts as well as the son of a snake could reasonably be expected to act.
