TUESDAY, JULY 9, 1901.

Prosperity is hitting the New York banks in the solar plexus pretty frequently.

Mr. Hanna got his degree cheap—$50,000. Carnegie paid $10,000,000 for the handle to his name.

Queen Victoria is said to have left untouched $100,000 worth of costly wine. There must have been quite a jag of it.

Bryan says that the man who believes that he benefits himself by taxing himself poor to make others rich is not in a good position to poke fun at those who believe in the faith cure.

The ties that hold Oregon together are getting looser. An Eastern Oregon man for governor on the republican ticket would have a tendency to tighten them. That is one thing that should come to pass.

After all, your true pacemaker is the automobile. See how it has drawn the Frenchman and the German together. That's something that all the king's horses could not have accomplished in a thousand years.

A pessimist? Yes; the fellow who believes that everything that is new is bad. An optimist? Yes; the fellow who believes that whatever is, is good, except when it pinches him. But the existence of each is necessary to that of the other.

Extermination of the mosquito, it is claimed, explains Havana's freedom from yellow fever. New Jersey is fighting him in a way that will delight the Standard Oil company—that is with kerosene. Guilty or not, the mosquito is doomed.

It is said a diet of vegetables will cure the strongest appetite for drink. Those who are appetite's victims should adopt the vegetable diet and let the world know the result. If the vegetable can check King Alcohol's greedy reign mankind should not lack in gratitude.

Count Castellane is now investing the late Jay Gould's money in mummies. Probably he is preparing to go into the red paint business. It has been recently discovered that the best red paint can be made from the mummified bodies of the ancients, who, probably, when in the flesh, did their share of painting things red.

Anxiety is caused over the condition of the pope. For months he has been sick, and now he is forbidden by his physicians from frequenting the spot that has become dear to him—the garden pavilion. Ill as he is, the pope's marvelous vitality may cause him to rally, and restore him to health. But considering his extreme age, and his long illness, the candle of life may flicker and go out at any moment.

A Kansas volunteer just back from the Philippines, where he was two years, is reported to have invested his savings by buying a $2000 farm. As his pay was only $32 for the two years, this investment stamps him as a Napoleon of finance and a Kansas farm is no place for him. He should at once prepare for a checkered career on Wall street where his genius would have wider opportunity.

Champ Clark thinks Tom Johnson is a coming man. There are signs that point that way. Tom Johnson is at work straightening out the kinks in the government of a great city and he is doing it so well that he is likely to make "a great hit" with the people of the whole country. The East Oregonian knows what kind of a man Tom Johnson is and it expects to see Champ Clark's prediction come true. Tom Johnson is a genuine democrat.

Those people who are criticizing Pendleton's Fourth of July celebration and its management the most are chiefly those who contributed to its success the least in time or money. The fact of the matter is the shortcomings of the celebration were due to the failure of the citizens of Pendleton to take an interest in the celebration. The most of them did nothing for its success, but waited for the few to do it all. But, after it is over, and they see the result, they are quick to place the blame on already overladen shoulders. Those who have gotten up celebrations in Pendleton in years gone by did not see fit to take an active interest in a celebration this year, and the work fell in newer and fewer hands, with the result that it was not what it should have been. To get up a successful celebration it is necessary for a great number to take part in it, to labor for its success. The requirements are, not only lots of money, but lots of work on the part of many hands. This year the hands were too few before the celebration and the tongues too many afterward. Let it be borne in mind that to have a celebration give perfect satisfaction to any number of people it is necessary to have free ice water, free lemonade, plenty of shade to rest under, free dancing platforms, free music, free acrobatic performances, speeches and songs, fireworks and free things galore, and with all these things free to the populace there would be little if any opportunity for those who chase the nimble penny, and if these are left out of consideration where is the money to pay for the free things coming from? Suppose those who are loudest in criticism of Pendleton's recent attempt to celebrate the "Glorious Fourth" get together and resolve to provide a great celebration next year! Possibly if they will do so, after their experience, they will be more charitable to those on whom the doom of failure has fallen. It is not such an easy matter as it looks to get up a good Fourth of July celebration, particularly so when everybody is willing to sit down while a few others do all the work and carry all the responsibilities.

THE POLITICAL POT.

Baker City Republican: There has been a forceful effort made to induce Hon. Charles W. Fulton, of Astoria, to run for governor. Mr. Fulton's place is in the United States senate, and his great services to his state justify entitling him to the position which he will some day fill. He does not propose to be sidetracked by the gubernatorial switch.

La Grande Chronicle: As soon as Eastern Oregon is ready to demand a political plan or two, the politicians begin to scramble among themselves. Pendleton no exception has one candidate for the governorship than she has two, and it is no mere accident that they have always been arrayed against each other.

The Salem Sentinel is of our way of thinking, that "Gov. Williamson, of Prineville," wouldn't sound bad, says the Moro Observer. It says: "No body has ever denied Eastern Oregon men the right to seek that high honor, and with his ability, popularity and strength, why not place the toga upon Senator Williamson?"

Salem Statesman: Besides Judge Lowell, Pendleton can furnish another candidate for governor. The Tribune announces that the nomination would be accepted by W. J. Furnish, president of the Pendleton Savings bank, and one of the McKinley presidential electors in 1900. Mr. Furnish is a man who could probably bring the vote of Umatilla county and some other Eastern Oregon counties to the state convention for himself, which is more than many who have been "mentioned" can do.

Weston Leader: Again the Geer and Plummer incident is being agitated, and its latest phase is touched upon in a Portland dispatch to the East Oregonian. It is said that Senator Simon returned the damaging $1000 note to the governor, after keeping it locked for several months in his safe, when the latter had vetoed the Portland charter bill. While Mr. Geer has filled the executive chair with credit, this transaction will always be a menacing skeleton in his political closet, blighting his further prospects and ambitions, unless a complete statement of the case removes the suspicion that now obtains in the public mind.

Salem Sentinel: With reference to the alleged political items sent out from Portland last week conveying the information that Lowell, of Pendleton, had issued a circular letter announcing himself as a candidate for governor, the Sentinel learns that Judge Lowell is not at this time a candidate for the nomination. It learns also that Mr. Lowell has issued no circular letter. It is possible, but hardly probable, that he may later become a candidate, but that depends upon a great many contingencies, and the Sentinel believes that chief among them is that of the attitude of the party at large toward Eastern Oregon and the ability of the delegates from that section of the state to get together upon some one candidate for a state office with reasonable unanimity. It may be accepted as a fact that should Judge Lowell decide to become a candidate for governor the information will come in a manner so clear that there will be no conjecture about it, and the first positive information on a subject is not probable to come in a round about way through the fusion press.

Salem Statesman: The Pendleton Tribune grows because the Western Oregon newspapers have not yet mentioned an Eastern Oregon man as a candidate for any good state office to be filled next year. By the way, come to think about it, no Eastern Oregon newspaper can take any glory to itself along that line either. Why doesn't the Tribune come out and name some Eastern Oregon man to whom it will pledge unflinching allegiance for governor, or secretary, or treasurer of state, or supreme judge, or attorney general, or state printer, or state superintendent? Probably the Baker City Republican would like also to announce some candidate for one of those places? Gentlemen, how do we know down here who of your Eastern Oregon men to boost unless you give us the cue? Come, trot out your man; show us that any two counties are agreed and then you can give us all a handsome currying down if we fail to respond in good order.

Canyon City Eagle: The press of the state has it that Judge Lowell, of Pendleton, is an aspirant for the republican nomination for governor. The vast empire east of the Cascades would not object to have both parties select their gubernatorial timber from its locality. In that event Eastern Oregon would have a representative in the state's executive chair, matters not what the result of the election would be. The candidacy of any Eastern Oregon man in the past has not been seriously considered, yet there is no reason why each of the leading parties should not recognize the senior east of the Cascades officer than they do.

Baker City Democrat: The time has come for Eastern Oregon to assert its rights, especially in a political way. The whole machinery of state government is bossed and controlled by Portland and the so-called Willamette valley. Eastern Oregon has nothing to do at the polls but vote for a Willamette valley man for every state office. This kind of thing has got to be looked upon as a matter of course by Western Oregon politicians and they don't seem to have any inclination to let loose.

The Democrat is not so hidebound in politics that it would not like to see a change. The present is the opportune time—this early before the politicians have fixed things—for Eastern Oregon to make its wishes heard. It has become very weary of the machine work of the Portland politicians and is ready to assist in any fair way to break the "ring" methods now in vogue and which have been practiced for many years. Eastern Oregon has men of equal brain with those of Western Oregon and they are just as competent to discharge official duties. Then, why play second fiddle, or no fiddle at all, as we have in the past.
