CLAIM FOR $500,000 DAMAGES

Chinese Want That Much for Being Maltreated at Butte.

Washington, July 10.—The Chinese government, through Minister Wu Tingfang, has filed a claim for indemnity to the amount of $500,000 on account of the alleged outrageous treatment of Chinese at Butte, Mont. There is a suggestion of boxer outrages referred in the presentation of the case to the state department, the treatment inflicted upon the Chinese at Butte being claimed to have been cruel and oppressive. It is charged that some of them were killed; that others were injured; that many of them were driven out. The claimants numbered several hundred.

The supposed outrages date back to 1880, and it is declared that the city council of Butte upheld the rioters and hoodlums that the state courts upon appeal decided in language so unjudicial as to be in itself a just subject for complaint, that the city council was right, and finally that relief could be obtained only measurably through an appeal to the United States circuit court.

The claim raises some novel and some extremely interesting points of international law.

JOHN METCALFE'S VICTORY

Wonderful Ride of a Blind Jockey a Century and a Half Ago.

That interesting writer, "Kettle-drum," in the Sporting Chronicle, tells a marvelous story of a blind sportsman of the eighteenth century. His name was John Metcalfe, and he was born at Knaresborough in 1718. He was blinded by smallpox at the age of 4.

In spite of his infirmity John Metcalfe joined the other boys in robbing orchards and depleting hen roosts. He learned to ride and became an excellent violinist. He frequently hunted with the hounds.

At the age of 14 his activity in sports and the freedom he had enjoyed from accident caused him to be quite fearless, and he was getting through life with greater ease than most ordinary lads. But he had a severe lesson, owing to a fall into a gravel pit when a farmer surprised him robbing a plum tree. But he was not seriously injured, and he was swimming, and such strength that he could push his companions below and swim over them. Such was his fame in this direction that two men being drowned in the Nidd, Metcalfe was engaged to seek for their bodies, and diving, brought one of them from the river deep.

He began to attend the races at York—so that the visits of the gentleman indicated above to the Knaresborough now serve to prove there is nothing new under the sun—and other places. It was common for him to ride among the races through and by gentlemen to whom he was known, he was often betted with success. It was thought a wild thing when he matched one of his horses to run three miles on the Forest Moor.

With the idea that Metcalfe would be unable to keep the races course long odds were betted against him. But his ingenuity provided him with an expedient in the dilemma. The track was a round one of a mile, and at each turn he had a man stationed with a bell to ring out his approach. This scheme and the superior speed of his horse won him the races and he was heartily cheered on victory.

As a horse dealer he traded to advantage, and at one and twenty he enjoyed robust health and stood six feet and an inch. He showed at this period some pugilistic ability and soundly thrashed a bully.—San Francisco Call.

PASSING OF THE CONSIDENS

Even His Partners in the Gambling Hell Forsake Him.

The four men who were partners with John Considine in the Standard gambling house in Seattle recently dismantled the interior and the gambling paraphernalia is now stored in a warehouse. One of the partners stated that the four would shake dice for the furniture and Considine can have either the value of one-fifth of the partnership belongings or that ratio of the furniture. They have thrown Considine over the good, in fact there seems to be a general disposition on the part of former friends to forsake the accused murderer. In truth the way of the transgressor is hard.—Astorian.

MOTHER EVE HAS A DEFENDENT.

She Could Not Have Ate the Apple Unless Beguiled.

Rev. John Lindsay Withrow, preaching in Chicago on the subject of the original sin in the garden of Eden, reported in the Record, ends his sermon as follows:

"When we contemplate Adam laying the blame on Eve it reveals one of the most contemptible characteristics of a serpent-poisoned man. And without change it is still the consequence of evil doing that it charges its committal to some one else than the actual author. It gives us Eve at her very best, that she shifts the blame only on the old serpent: 'The serpent beguiled me and I did eat.' They are at poor business, as I have heard them, who defend the devil and charge all Eve's folly and fall upon herself. Such are the same as you hear always ready to stir and hurl charges against woman. I do not believe and cannot conceive of Eve disobeying the divine command if she had not been beguiled."

Bearing in mind that the old serpent and Satan are the same in scripture, we have in verses God's sentence of judgment and His promise of redemption."
