J. H. Collins, the man who robbed the Redmen's lores. upon the governor of the state of Cali-$190 last winter.

Collins went to Athena and joined the lodge: was elected treasurer; , held the office for only a week or two; left Athena one day, and took with him all of the funds that had been entrusted to his care, and was not heard from again until he was traced to Modesto, California, where he was arrested last Sunday morning. The sheriff's office here got the "tip" as to Collins' whereabouts, and telegraphed the sher-iff there to take and hold the man.

Collins agreed to come without the formality of requisition papers, but the sheriff's office here thought it wise to make a sure thing of it, and hence in-structed Deputy Taylor to stop in Salem and get from Governor Geer the necessary papers.
It is expected that Mr. Taylor wil
