NORTHERN PACIFIC'S DAINTY BIT OF BOOK ART.

Story of How a Clerk Made the Trade Mark While Seribbling at His Desk.

From A. D. Charlton, assistant general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific, comes a dainty sample of typographic art, embodying the excellent work of Olin D. Wheeler, who has made himself famous in the adver-tising world by writing "Wonderland." "Wonderand" is the Northern's pretty annual, describing the country tapped by the company's lines, and "Wonder-ind" is a wonderfully fine bit of book-

This "Miniature Wonderland" is one chapter from the larger book, and tells only the "Stery of a Trade Mark." In this short story appears the name of Rev. W. S. Holt, D. D., well known in Pendleton as the state synodical missionary of the Presbyterian church, and as having for many years been a missionary in China,
Mr. Holt furnished to Mr. Charlton

at Portland a valuable comment on the trade mark of the Northern Pacific, which is tound to resemble closely cer-tain significant symbols and designs of various nations the world over. The trademark was suggested by the flag of Korea, and is familiar to everyone in this region.

Credit for a Clerk.

A story has gone the round of the country, appearing in print nowhere, probably, but credited quite generally. It is that a clerk in the Northern's general offices in St. Paul made the trade mark one day on a sheet of paper, while sitting idly for a moment and scribbling with a pencil. He had no intention of evolving a trade mark. and paid no heed to what he was draw ing. One of his superiors passed his desk, and looked down, perhaps in a spirit of inquiry as to what that clerk was doing to earn the check that would be handed him the first of the next month, when the company's "pay wagon" came around.

The general officials of the Northern had for some time been working on the proposition as to what would be a good trade mark for the extensive system embraced under the name of the Northern Pacific. This official looked a second time at the scribbing of the idle clerk, and an idea struck "That would be a jolly good trade mark," thought be, "I'll just sit down at my desk and make one carefully and see what it will look like." adopted it Enthusiastically. This he did, and the result was that e was convinced that that was the rade mark the company wanted. It was proposed to the other officials, and they enthusiastically adopted it. Then came the discovery that it re-sembled the design upon the flag of Korea. This flag was displayed at the exhibit of the island of Korea at the Chicago World's Columbian exposition, and this was utilized to lend romantic interest to the new trade mark. Later, Mr. Holt saw that he could contribute to the interest centering around it, and volunteered his valudieton. He states that the relatives of able information. Further study revealed that in many countries, civilized and savage, had been symbolic designs like it, and thus was brought out the material for the deeply interesting chapter on "Wonderland" that now appears as "Miniature Wonderland." Now, if there be truth in this story that clerk did not get a fair deal. Perhaps the Northern Pacific will offi-

SHOOTING OF FRANK MADDOCK.

O. F. Thompson; Says That Hank Vaughn caught in the cylinder crushing it and Thought He Was Firing at an Indian. O. F. Thompson of Butter creek who left for home this morning, while here was engaged in conversation with some friends on the subject of the some friends on the subject of the shooting of Sheriff Frank Maddock by Hank Vaughn, Maddock, then sheriff, being in pursuit of Vaughn to arrest him for stock stealing. The story is familiar to most people hereabouts. "Hank Vaughn," said Mr. Thomp-son, who himself was the sheriff of this county in an early day, "shot Maddock because he thought the latter was one of a band of Indians. Maddock and his companion found Vaughn and his pat asleep in a gulch near the Express ranch in the Burnt river country, and went up boldly and pulled off the blankets that covered Vaughn. At that time we were all watching for Indians, and I was compelled to stand guard every night over the pack train I was running.

Vaughn, roused from sleep in the early dawn, seized his weapon and fired and did not know until the next day that he had not shot at and wounded an Indian. Most people do not know this, and think that Vaughn tried to kill Sheriff Maddock to avoid arrest. Vaughn at that time was a

WANTED CHANGE FOR NICKEL.

A Man Purchased Two Stamps and Wanted the One Cent Change.

Pendleton is slowly but surely be-coming Easternized. It so happened on a recent night at 10 o'clock, before the departure of the train for the west Patton's cigar store as being a place most likely where he could buy what he needed for his urgent wants, threw down a nickel and asked for change. George Lash proceeded to wait upon him and was about to touch the cash register for five dollars in silver, when he sized up the nickel. He fixed his gaze firmly upon the piece of money, than shifted it and riveted it upon the man who was giving him the rush act for change, and said: "No, we cannot change any piece of money like

If this kind of business keeps on Pendleton will get up a reputation as a small change town.

The Same Old Trick.

Ben Oppenheimer, who was at Burns, says the Times-Herald, last Burns, says the Times-Herald, last week working life insurance, is quite likely to get into trouble unless he can make some good explanation. While here he ran short of funds and issued some sight drafts on the First National bank at Baker City for various sums, aggregating about $50, on which he obtained the cash from some of our business men. The drafts have been returned with the information that they could not be paid for lack of funds. Mr. Oppenheimer is now in Prairie City where he will have to square things.

Lee Connerley was placed under charge of Dr. C. J. Smith, and is rapidly improving today. He states that when stricken he became powerless and fell heavily, but did not lose consciousness. Miss Fay Fuller has in a recent number of the Portland Evening Tele-gram, a story of the "Roycrofters." The Reycrofters are that strange colony of people at East Aurora, New York, of whom Elbert Hubbard is the head, and from which issues each month "The Philistine," a small magazine that serves as a delightful literary sauce for many people.

Miss Fuller was privileged to visit the Roycrofters recently, and tells what she saw.

The account is written in a style that has given Miss Fuller a permanent place among Pacific coast writers. It is this ability to treat interesting sub-jects quickly and in good literary form that constitutes the valuable newspaper man or woman, and this ability she possesses to an unusual degree. Those who work in the field of news willingly accord to Miss Fuller a very high place.

No Faith in Banks.

For some time Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Ellensburg, Wash., lacking faith in banks, have kept in their home a sum of money wrapped in a paper behind a trunk in a storeroom. A few days ago Mrs. Taylor in house cleaning swept the package of money out with a lot of rubbish and threw it on a pile of refuse in the alley. After a couple of days she thought of the money and carefully investigated the refuse heap, but the money was gone. The package contained two $100 bills and $600 in bills of smaller value.

Attempt to Make It Appear That Trouble

communication from Pendleton under date of August 6, in the Portland Telegram, attempts to make it appear that blood is going to flow by the bucketful down the canyons leading into peaceful Camas prairie. The article proceeds to throw a lurid light on the situation and relates a lot of ancent history in regard to a band of Charles Cunningham's sheep having been fired upon. That trouble occurred more than two months ago, and from the best sources of information there is no probablity of a bloody clash be-tween the different kinds of stockmen. Cattlemen and sheepmen have their rights and know how to maintain them. Neither side will infringe to any great extent upon the rights of the other. Cattlemen, horsemen and sheepmen recently interviewed, some of them being the most prominent in the county, say they know nothing of a "bloody" or any other kind of a war being imminent.

The situation is not sized up by the East Oregonian by a reporter sitting in a revolving chair. It is gained from personal talks with the stockmen, from a trip through the alleged battle ground, and with other stockmen when met at Ukiah, Alba, Pilot Rock and Pendleton.
