PEACEFUL WARFARE OF STRIKERS.

Although for several weeks the men of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have been face to face with the officers of the United States Steel corporation in the most momentous struggle yet waged in the industrial world, practically no violence has been recorded. It is hoped that the conservative men at the head of the Amalgamated will hold in check the fiery spirits that always in the past have come to the front with force of a kind illegitimate.

If this be true, then the workingmen will have won a victory, even though the strike should be unsuccessful as to the point in contention—the recognition of the union in all of the steel trust mills. The history of strikes has been in part a record of savage violence and bloodshed. This has prejudiced many against the strike idea, who will favor the men if they correct this abuse.

Let President Shafter and his coadjutors banish to the background all of the radicals who would resort to the use of firearms and clubs and bombs, and they will enlist in their support millions of men and women who will hope that they will win in the great warfare with the trusts.

"THE KNOCKER."

A new monthly magazine called "The Knocker" is announced, coming from Philadelphia. It should find an enormous clientele in all parts of the country. Certainly, its title will appeal to something like ten million people who will recognize that it is designed to exploit their ideas. As to the nature of the magazine, the East Oregonian is not advised, beyond the fact that it is called "Knocker," and everyone knows what is a knocker.

The knocker is one who is an iconoclast, an obstructionist, an ultra-conservative, an opponent yet never a supporter. The Knocker is against all projects for the betterment of a community. He sees always some scheme on the part of enterprising citizens to secure private profit from their public movements. He suspects all men of ulterior motives. He believes in no man's sincerity. He apparently thinks every other fellow is a thief at heart. He cautiously says "Let us consider," and then he never considers any plan for public institutions but to oppose it.

There are lots of him, this knocker, and he lives in every town of the world. He will no doubt subscribe liberally to this new magazine.

ETIQUETTE AND THE TYPEWRITER.

A young man received a note from his sister thanking him for the neatly printed circular he had sent her, and hoping that others would follow. He has written her a letter on his typewriter. This suggests the prevailing rule of etiquette that a man cannot write a letter to a lady on the typewriter, and also makes sensible people wonder why such a rule should obtain.

The average person writes in a manner to make it necessary to read a letter the second time before getting the full sense of the message. Whereas, the typewriter being used, the letter would "read like print," and be more quickly and easily understood. It is beyond the comprehension of the ordinary mortal why such a canon of social law should exist, and as a matter of fact there is no reason. It is merely arbitrary, and has no more reason than most of the meaningless rules that are observed. With typewriters abounding on every hand, and most men using them in the conduct of their business, there will come a day in which typewritten letters will be just as much "the thing" as those indited in a non-legible chirography requiring half an hour to decipher.

LA GRANDE'S LECTURE COURSE.

Some one in La Grande is entitled to credit for the success attained in securing subscriptions for tickets to a lecture course to be given next winter by distinguished speakers. Several months ago the idea was broached, and has now been incorporated in a plan that promises much for the entertainment and edification of the people of that town.

The lectures will be by persons of note and will bring benefits more than repaying the cost to the subscribers. It is an example that might be imitated by Pendleton with profit to the town. The signing of contracts by speakers to come west to La Grande would make it the easier to secure them for this place.

BENEFITS OF A HOSPITAL.

Commendable progress is being made by the men who are securing funds for the erection of a hospital in Pendleton. The prospects are that the amount needed, $5000, will be subscribed, and that the Sisters of St. Francis will have the other $5000 and that the substantial brick building in which the hospital is to be will before long stand as another proof of the enterprise of Pendleton's citizens. Although many persons have responded liberally to the appeal for money, it is probable that many more do not realize the benefits that accrue to a town from the existence therein of a first class hospital.

As a matter of fact, the majority of people look upon a hospital as an institution of a charitable nature, established and maintained for the chief purpose of caring for persons who have no homes and are unable to pay their way. Certainly, this is an erroneous idea, in view of the place occupied by the modern hospital throughout the large cities of the world. The benefits coming from hospitals are many and varied. These benefits are quite as marked as pertaining to the town at large as to the individual who goes there as a patient.

In regard to the town wherein it is located, it provides a place to which persons suffering from non-contagious diseases may be taken for intelligent treatment, avoiding the necessity of making of the home what at the best is but a poor place for the care of the sick. This will jar the sensibilities of some persons who cling to the idea that there is no place like home when one is sick. In fact, there is a place much better than home when one is sick, and that place is a hospital. There one passes into an atmosphere wherein scientific ideas prevail as to the handling of disease, where trained nurses await on the patient, where appliances of latest production are at hand for use in emergencies, and where the patient receives attention such as no home can provide.

Systematic regime is enforced by the hospital authorities. Clocklike regularity is insisted upon in the giving of remedies. Cleanliness and perfect sanitation are kept in mind, with the recognition of all that medical science teaches in the latest days as to the best manner of caring for the sick. Instant telephonic communication is maintained with house physicians who are at moment's call to attend upon the patient who needs treatment in cases of extremity.

No one will ever forget the tender care he received at home from his mother. She of all persons in the world best loved him, and would more quickly than every one else sacrifice first comfort to his good. It will at first seem like rank dilatory to suggest that anything could be better than this, the sweetest of all attentions, those of a mother. Yet, when one looks at it in all its bearings, one will be wise to go from that very mother to a well conducted hospital, and there pass under the care of those whose life and training has been of a nature to render them most fit to bring one through an attack of illness.

As to the handling of surgical operative cases, there can be no question that the hospital is indispensable. There only can ideal conditions be realized. There only can the surgeon find what will contribute to his success when it becomes necessary to insert the knife into the human body. For, not only must the surgery in which the operation is performed be perfectly sterile as also must the instruments, but the after care must be ordered by those who know but slightly less of surgery than do the surgeons themselves.

It has been my experience to spend some time in a hospital near here, and while there to observe the character of such an institution. It was the New Walla Walla hospital, of Walla Walla, at the head of which is Dr. J. F. Cropp, eminent as a surgeon and medical practitioner, and seconded by Dr. M. Stiles, as house physician, one of the most careful and conscientious physicians in this part of the country and an able specialist in the treatment of many diseases. I will venture to assert that no one who has been there will hesitate to go again, and will subscribe enthusiastically to the arguments in favor of hospitals.

This hospital may be mentioned as typical of others, and as giving to Walla Walla what Pendleton should have. While skillful physicians and surgeons attend the cases taken there, a superintendent, Miss Sihler, has charge of the management of the nurses and prescribes the manner in which the instructions shall be carried out. Formerly assistant superintendent of the famous Montreal General Hospital, having been in other great eastern hospitals, and having completed a course of instruction that comprehended everything relating to the use of remedies and the care of patients, dying and all the many details of modern hospital management, one is fortunate, indeed, to come under the authority of her position.

Trained nurses are under her, young women who have vowed their lives to a career of caring for the sick, and who therefore devote their best energies to the mastery of the profession of their choice. Day and night, the patient realizes that only the touching of an electric button is necessary to summon to his aid all that medical and nursing skill can command, and that nothing can happen that will result from negligence.

Furthermore, one has the privilege of calling any physician to the handling of his case, who will receive every courtesy and assistance to insure success. This is what is promised to Pendleton, the $10,000 fund being expended to complete the hospital that is to be under the management of the Sisters of St. Francis. These devoted sisters of mercy, consecrated to a life of singleness of purpose, will make this institution what will be equalled in value perhaps by no other in the town. If these things be known and appreciated, the balance of the fund will be in hand in a very few days and the information telegraphed to Sister Stanislaus now en route to Philadelphia to attend a convocation of her order regarding this very project.

What S. S. S. Does for Children

Children are constantly exposed to all sorts of diseases. The air they breathe is filled with germs, sewer gas and dust from the filthy streets are inhaled into the lungs and taken into the blood. At the crowded school rooms and other public places they come in contact almost daily with others recovering from or in the first stages of contagious diseases. You can't quarantine against the balance of the world, and the best you can do is to keep their blood in good condition, and thus prevent or at least mitigate the disease. You have perhaps learned from observation or experience that healthy, robust children (and this means, of course, children whose blood is pure) are not nearly so liable to contract diseases peculiar to them, and when they do it is generally in a mild form. On the other hand, weak, emaciated and sickly ones seem to catch every disease that comes along. This is because their blood is lacking in all the elements necessary to sustain and build up the body. Poisons of every description accumulate in the system, because the polluted and sluggish blood is unable to perform its proper functions.

Such children need a blood purifier and tonic to give strength and vitality to their blood, and S. S. S., being a purely vegetable remedy, makes it the safest and best for the delicate constitutions of children. S. S. S. is not only a perfect blood medicine, but is pre-eminently the tonic for children; it increases their appetites and strengthens the digestion and assimilation of food. If your children have any hereditary or acquired taint in their blood, give them S. S. S. and write to our physicians for any information or advice wanted; this will cost you nothing, and will start the little weaklings on the road to recovery. Book on Blood and Skin Diseases free.

Baby's Coming

Wine of Cardui

There are thousands of women who shrink in terror at the thought of the baby's coming. But childbirth is one of the workings of Nature and it was not intended to imply torture and agony to the heroic mothers of the race. The woman who suffers torture during pregnancy and at childbirth has usually, by some medical error, injured the organs which make her a woman. Neglect of menstrual irregularities leads to ovarian pain, falling of the womb and leucorrhoea, and the period of pregnancy is necessarily distressing under these conditions. Wine of Cardui will regulate the menstrual function perfectly and eventually make the generative organs strong and healthy. Pregnancy and childbirth have no terrors for the woman who takes this pure Wine. A strong healthy womb will bring its precious burden to maturity with little or no pain. A healthy woman need not fear childbirth. Wine of Cardui completely cures all these troubles familiarly known as "female diseases" and equips the sensitive generative organs for pregnancy and childbirth. It will save any mother much pain and suffering. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles.
