Yet, in one very important respect, the workingman has the superior advantage. The argument to this effect is based upon the assumption that although now very rich as many of the steel magnates are, they and aspirations of which they are want to be very much richer and will aware, concede considerable rather than stop

The shrinkage was due to J. P. Morgan's defiance of the strikers and Theodore Shaffer's determined attitude on the part of the Amalgamated Association. This is the reason why the workingmen hold a very great advantage over the trust plant owners. Those owners will do almost anything timent was universal in this district, to avoid the deterioration of their stock holdings. Aspirants are about as numthey remember all too vividly the this respect the honors for itch for great strike in England that many believe cost the British manufacturers their former first place and made them second to our own makers of manufactured articles.

If labor troubles are to disturb the industrial world, not only will manufacturers actually be unable in many instances to fill orders with that promptitude that is necessary to successful trade, but they will engender fear of this on the part of many foreign customers, and create the same dissatisfaction with American manufacturers that operated to drive English manufacturers from certain countries in which previously they had reigned supreme. Trust officials will not be willing to suffer this, and the laborer therefore holds a trump card in the big game that he is now playing with those trust officials. By no means are all the advantages with the trust managers. The workingmen in the particular herein noted have a very important advantage over their employers.

SUMMER READING.

One of the problems confronting the habitant of the summer resort is "What shall I read" This question is too often answered in practice by the perusal of stories that are fit to kindle fires in kitchen stoves of the summer resort cottages, but that are not good mental pabulum or healtfhul recreative reading for anyone.

There is no good reason why one should not secure an ideal collection of charming summer stories and at the same time end the season with a better mentality than will result from the reading of such trash as came from the pen of Mrs. Holmes, "The Duchess," and all of that class of writers of literary slush.

Let the summer resorter, for instance, read books such as Raiph Conner's "Sky Pilot," Blanche Willis Furnish, also of Pendleton, has an Howard's "One Summer," "Aschen- anchor to windward and will take con-DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY broadel" of the "No Name" series, gressman if the governorship goes glim-mering. #### POLITICAL PROPHETS TALKING.

Says the Portland Telegram: Of poitical talk there is no end this year. Prophets-many without honor in their own or any other country—are coming forth from the wilderness of the deals or suppose they are, and many are the false predictions now filling the air. The atmosphere is surchargrithe piling up of fortunes.
