GOVERNORSHIP CANDIDACY

Chronicle on One of Judge Lowell's Platform Points.

Judge Lowell of Pendleton in announcing his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination in the next republican state convention, declares himself in favor of compulsory arbitration along the lines of the New Zealand law. He says he will explain himself, and will have to explain himself, as the Chronicle understands it, has a sort of compulsory arbitration law that in reality is not compulsory at all, for it applies only to those who are in advance voluntary work for or employ another at wages unless at his own free will, as in New Zealand, men are free to work or not to work, to employ labor or not to employ it, to engage in business or withdraw therefrom. If a contract is broken the civil courts may be appealed to. If there is a disagreement outside contract obligations the parties may agree to have their differences adjusted by arbitration. All cases are done under existing laws, nothing less than a most violent and radical amendment to the constitution can compel men to submit to a sort of arbitration unless they voluntarily enter into a contract to do so. In the much-vaunted New Zealand law the most distinguished socialists of that country declare that it is a mockery, delusion and a snare; that it is productive of more harm than good, and that unless it is speedily abolished the industries of New Zealand will go to everlasting smash. Compulsory arbitration sounds well in the ears of the would-be candidate for political honors, but intelligent men will know that without a change in our constitution amounting to a revolution there is nothing in it.

PENDLETON IN PORTLAND

MANY CALLED AT ROBE & PICTURE CO'S. BOOTH.

Some of the People From Here Who Are There.

Portland, Sept. 23.—Special correspondence.—Pendleton people who are attending the Portland carnival make headquarters at the booth of the Pendleton Robe and Picture company's booth, put in by Charles J. Ferguson, one of the company, and Miss Marie Jean Frazier, who for the entire month will be in charge of the booth, and will be glad to assist Pendletonians who desire to obtain information concerning the exposition or to find their friends who are in the city. That booth has already become a sort of clearing house for Pendleton people at the fair. Miss Frazier's address will be "The Sterling," corner 16th and Couch.

If anyone doubts that Pendletonians were here in force on the opening night, let him read the list of those who called at the booth: Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Fell, Melvin Fell, Mrs. R. Alexander, Miss Bertha Alexander, Mrs. N. E. Despain, Miss Constance Despain, Miss Eleanor Despain, Mrs. Charles C. Berkeley, Mildred Berkeley, Mrs. Effie Hopper, Miss Letia McKay, Miss Ethel Johnson, Miss Marguerite Leasure, Clyde Owens, Charles French, Al Slusher, Dale Slusher, Fred Drake, Walter Gill, Miss Fay Kearney, Miss Gertrude Hunt; also Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Johns of Athena, Miss Bertha Johns left for home, stopping en route at Cascade Locks, and arriving in Pendleton Saturday evening.

Some Other Mentions.

General Owen Summers and Mr. Babelier of the fair management called at the booth the first night. They felt quite honored, indeed, those at the booth, I mean.

Dr. and Mrs. William House have been at the Portland, and are expected to pay respects to the Pendletonians at the booth.

Judge Ellis, who is attending his son Eddie after an operation for appendicitis; G. W. Hunt and J. A. Fee have been at the Imperial during the week.

Miss Pearl Luckey has gone to the University at Eugene, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Butler, who will return to Pendleton this week.

Miss Frances Todd has visited with the family of Sam Gill for two weeks and returned home to Pendleton.

Roland Oliver passed through Portland a few days ago, en route to Seattle to attend the University of Washington, instead of going again to the Ohio Wesleyan University, where he has heretofore been a student.

Otto Metehan will go to Pendleton this week, to take a position in one of the big stores there.

FRUIT FAIR OPENED TODAY.

Walla Walla Will Have a Week of Gayety and Many Visitors.

Walla Walla, Sept. 23.—Special Correspondence.—The Fruit Fair opened today with prospects for the "best ever." Those who have seen the fair of former years believe this one, barring untoward events, will exceed all that have gone before. Manager Van De Water and a corps of able assistants have prepared as never before, and everything is ready for the large crowds expected to attend. The big pavilion in which the fair is held is on Alder street, opposite the New Walla Walla Hospital, and is roomy and convenient. The management was fortunate to secure a site so close to the center of the town, and large enough to suit the needs.

The managers of the Pioneers' association of the Inland Empire are relieved that Thursday, September 26, Pioneers' day at the Walla Walla fruit fair, will be one of the leading features of fair week and also a great event in the history of the organization. To accomplish this Dr. N. G. Blalock, president, and Marvin Evans, secretary of the Pioneers' association, have hit upon a plan for a grand street parade which will vividly portray an emigrant train crossing the plains in the early days when to reach the great west was not the matter of half a dozen days but represented as many long tiresome months, fraught with perils and dangers inconceivable.

Many oldtimers are expected and requested to be present on that Pioneers' day. They will assemble in Walla Walla at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and will be furnished with badges by the secretary and president that the old settlers and their families may gain free access to the fair grounds during the morning, afternoon and evening.

LET BICYCLISTS BEWARE

Impertinence on Their Part as Described by an Eye Witness.

Said a Pendletonian to the East Oregonian:

"I saw something the other day that made my blood boil, and caused me to hope that the people who ride wheels will take warning from this and not make it necessary for me to complain and cause some of them to be arrested. I was passing along the sidewalk, and saw an old lady assisting home her daughter. The daughter was ill, and the lady was walking with a cane, and scarcely able to walk without help. Coming down the sidewalk was a wheelman, sprinting at about a 15-mile gait, and never stopping as he approached the two women. He rang his bell violently, and even called upon them to get out of the way, and then dashed by with an angry look upon his face, indicating that he thought he had been imposed upon, by the ladies refusing quickly to get out of his way and not bother him as he turned the wheels into race tracks, and ignored the rights of pedestrians.

"Now, this fellow is ignorant of the law. He does not realize that foot passengers have right of way, and that he is not expected to accommodate himself by the side of the road, but while using the law requires him to dismount when approaching pedestrians, and any gentleman would do so even if the law did not demand it of him.

"The officers need to take up this question again, and they need to do so about every month. Some of the riders should be disciplined, and if a few were made to spend a night in jail, it would be a wholesome lesson. The conduct of some of the riders is that of the lawless first principles of a gentleman.

"Furthermore, riders should remember that they must pay license to ride on the walks, and many of them have not done so, or their license expired some time in September."

AGAINST EXTRA SESSION

Speaker L. B. Reeder Replies to Edward E. Young's Inquiry.

L. B. Reeder of Pendleton, speaker of the house in the last legislature, in common with other members of the legislature received from Edward Everett Young of Baker City a letter asking his views as to a special session of the legislature to consider making an appropriation for the Lewis and Clark Centennial. Mr. Young is one of the commission appointed to prepare for and manage the centennial. The Portland Oregonian opposed Mr. Young's scheme in a lengthy editorial, and various comments by press and citizens have been made. Some of the members of the legislature have inclined slightly towards the special session, but the preponderance of opinion seems to be against the plan. Mr. Reeder expressed himself in this manner, representative of the sentiment of most people of Oregon:

Pendleton, Oregon, Sept. 11, 1901.—Hon. Edward Everett Young, Baker City, Oregon. My Dear Sir:—Referring to your favor of the 7th inst., requesting my opinion as to the propriety of an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of providing a financial basis for the Lewis and Clark Centennial, would say in my opinion the urgency of the occasion neither demands nor justifies an extra session. Committed to the exposition stand most of the western states as well as the parliament of British Columbia. Our recent legislature pledged support of the state and impowered the city of Portland to raise funds. In view of the foregoing it seems to me that a well formulated plan for legislative action presented early in the next regular session would meet the desired ends so far as our state action is concerned and give ample time for the legislatures of other states and congress to make appropriations; and the power already given to Portland to raise funds ought to provide all necessary funds for the preliminary work of the Commission.

FEW SHEEP ARE SHIPPED

Remarkable Season Among the Breeders in Oregon.

Dr. Lantz, stationed at Pendleton as inspector of the bureau of animal industry for the department of agriculture, stated today that this has been one of the most exceptional seasons in the history of the state, in the matter of shipments of sheep from the state to the east or to other states on the coast.

"We have record of 5800 sheep shipped by E. and Otto Boettcher to Chicago or to be marketed there, and tonight the Baldwin Sheep company sent through Pendleton six cars of high bred bucks to go to points east from here. The latter I inspected at Shaniko, having just returned from there. Earlier in the season some yearlings and lambs were sent from Elgin. These constitute almost all the sheep that have been sent from Oregon this year.

"Heretofore, sheep buyers have bought in Oregon and trailed to the east thousands upon thousands going over the mountains to be pastured along the way, and finally marketed in Chicago, Kansas City or Omaha, with some going to the northern route to St. Paul. Nowadays, the trailing of sheep is about ended. Last year, one man trailed 8000 sheep from Oregon to California, and that was about the only lot that went out over the trail.

"E. Boettcher now here used to trail from 15,000 to 40,000 each year, and other buyers did the same as 200,000 sheep were trailed out from eastern Oregon every season.

All sheep shipped must be rigidly inspected, and cannot be moved unless couched for by the bureau of animal industry. This is preventing the spread of disease common to sheep in former years, and will eventually eradicate all such maladies practically from the sheep of this part of the world, at least confining them to the localities in which they originate.

RIGHTLY MADE Clothing

Means a great deal more per-haps than you think. Everybody admires a nicely dressed, stylish young man. You do—you do. Few stop to think why he seems nicely dressed. Few know that it because his clothing is rightly made. Not necessarily tailor-made, rightly make. A rightly made, ready to wear suit will fit as well and wear sometimes better than a tailor-made suit. You can't tell the difference between a tailor made suit and a rightly made ready to wear suit. Our
