of a whole world, and may he yet take to England the America's cup?

DR. VINCENT'S MAYORALTY RECORD

Dr. F. W. Vincent refuses to reconsider his declination of a renomination. He has served as mayor of Pendleton for three years. They have been years of substantial progress for this town, progress largely due to his wise administration and the application of business methods to the city's affairs. Regardless of personal and political relations, the business people of Pendleton would like to have him for another term. He has eliminated politics from the city's government. He has ignored party considerations. He has known no friends when the town's interests were at stake. In many respects, Dr. Vincent has realized the ideal of non-partisan, thoroughly municipal control, and he leaves the office with a record clean and white of a character to entitle him to the best plaudits of all of the people.

TRIBUTE TO SWEDISH WOMEN.

I cannot close this series of letters without offering a humble and sincere tribute of respect and admiration to the women of Sweden. They are the backbone of the nation, the backbone of the home, the backbone of the school, the backbone of the church, the backbone of the state. They are the backbone of the nation, the backbone of the home, the backbone of the school, the backbone of the church, the backbone of the state. They are the backbone of the nation, the backbone of the home, the backbone of the school, the backbone of the church, the backbone of the state.

There is no country, not even the United States, where women exercise a wider influence, both direct and indirect, in the home, the school, the church, upon the platform and in the press. There is no other country in which the professions, trades and other occupations are so free to them, or in which their opportunities are utilized with greater zeal, ability and success. They work side by side with men upon the farms, in the factories, in mercantile establishments, counting houses, government offices and in art, science and literature, and are equally capable, although, as in other lands, their pay for the same labor and equal results is less.

From the time that Marget Larsen saved Gustavus Vass from capture by the Danish soldiers by hiding him in her cellar, the women of Sweden have exercised a powerful influence in politics, although it has been indirect, and the ablest and most progressive today prefer that their present political condition shall remain unchanged.

They do not think it wise to extend the franchise any farther for fear that the universal suffrage will result in the corruption of national politics, which is now comparatively pure. They prefer the present restrictions, which gives the ballot only to women who pay taxes, because it deprives ignorant and incompetent of a voice in the government and avoids the dangers that often attend the participation of the masses in elections. They prefer to direct their efforts to securing an increase in economic wages, so that they may receive the same compensation as men for the same work, and hope to accomplish practical results by educating public sentiment and bringing moral pressure upon the employing class.

The advancement of women in Sweden has been encouraged and assisted by the quiet influence of Queen Sophie and the late Princess Eugenie, the sister of the king. The queen is an intelligent, progressive Christian woman, with a profound consciousness of the responsibility attached to her official rank and influence. She is a woman's woman, and is habitually engaged in promoting movements for the benefit of her sex, and with due respect to the proprieties of her position, she never loses an opportunity to assist and encourage all who are engaged in advancing the physical, moral and social well-being of the women of Sweden.—Wm. E. Curtis, in Record-Herald.

TRIUMPH OF THE BIG BAT.

The big bat triumphs. The historical novel is responsible. Milliners have done their best, but what chance Heartburn, Belching of Gases, Pain in the Stomach, Bloating, Distress after Eating, etc.

There are many remedies for these troubles, but few cure.

NAU'S DYSPEPSIA CURE will cure the worst cases.

Clyde M. Dammack, with Flourish & Co., Chicago, Ill., says: "I have been a sufferer from stomach trouble for 10 years. It culminated in ulceration of the stomach last March. I took Nau's Dyspepsia Cure and am cured."

have they?" writes a New York correspondent.

Set a small, neat, thoroughly modern and practical toque beside a huge, sumptuous, swan-bucklering Cavalier or Continental hat, with its sweeping plumes and fluttering draperies, and what woman will hesitate between them? The rare she, perhaps, who reads no novels, but not the woman into whose veins has entered the stir and dash of the romance-miscalled historical that now fill the shops and dominate the stage.

Autumn fashions are rollicking, magnificent and picturesque. The little toque beside them looks prudish, prim, limited. The big hat goes with rich velvets and rare lace festoons and the glory of furs. Under the halo of its brim the little maid who has never without a chaperon set foot outside her mother's door feels her blood stir with the delicious fear of elopement, pursuit and old-time sword play. She lives a splendid romance every time she sticks in the hat pins.

There is the hat Continental. It is big, daring, three-cornered. It turns up from the face, and yet shades it like a halo. It sweeps back from the hair with great, curling ostrich plumes. It's bold, yet it hides blushes. It makes the girl who wears it feel as if she had a story or a patriot lover, and there were only she to save him from King George's troops or Washington's army.

Then there is the hat of 1812. Nobody yet has called it the "D'ri and I," but somebody before long is sure to do so. Its broad brim and low crown are covered with rich-hued velvet wallflowers, gladioli, nasturtiums, dahlias, brilliant asters and other old-fashioned autumn flowers. Tucked behind the ears, just under the brim, are knots of velvet in cherry red, pink and cream or any color calculated to carry out the low, flappy, eccentric and becoming scheme. Sometimes it has long black velvet strings that tie at the back of the neck or even under the chin.

The Cavalier hat is three-cornered, like the Continental, but it is cocked after a saucier, more swaggering idea. It is trimmed with velvet rosettes and glittering paste buckles. The girl who wears it will sing songs of Prince Charlie with a recklessness that has been safe now for many and many a long year.

Then of course there is the Devonshire, with its quaint mixture of darning and picturesque dignity, with its rich laces and its bold curves and its naughty plumes. There are, too, the Rembrandt hats, dusky black and rich, and the Raleigh and Di Vernon hats, and hats named for almost every painter and hero and adventurer who ever made history or had a taste for beautiful women.

A big, black velvet Dick Turpin hat was shown this week by one of New York's best milliners. The wide, soft brim was caught up in two places and fastened to the crown by means of handsome paste ornaments, circular in shape, like those that appear on Turpin's hat in the well known picture in the National Gallery, London. There was no other trimming except a long black ostrich feather that drooped over the left side.

White Man Turned Yellow. Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hygary of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. He had slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly. His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Only 25c. Sold by Tallman & Co., druggists.

"Nerve Waste."

One of the most helpful books on nerve weakness ever issued is that entitled "Nerve Waste" by Dr. Sawyer of San Francisco, now in its fifth edition. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable contrast to the vast sum of false selling which prevails on this interesting subject. It abounds in carefully considered and practical advice, and has the two great merits of wisdom and sincerity.

It is endorsed by both the religious and secular press. The Chicago Advance says: "A perusal of the book and the application of its principles will put health, hope and heart into thousands of lives that are now suffering through nervous impairment."

The book is $1.00 by mail postpaid. One of the most interesting chapters—chapter xx, on Nerves and Nerve Tonics—has been printed separately as a sample chapter, and will be sent to any address for stamp by the publishers, THE PACIFIC PUBLISHING CO., Box 2658, San Francisco.
