sense of the farmer's son to be less and less a loss, until eventually one or two hired men and an overseer will attend to duties and perform labors formerly requiring six to a dozen.

The cityward flow of the tide of humanity will continue. There is no resisting it. The pleasures of town life, the excitement of the throng, the greater tendency towards fashion and style in dress, the theatre, the every form of amusement will continue to attract as heretofore. The countryman, as always in the past, will have greater opportunity for sober reflection over the lesser number of books he reads, will live in an atmosphere conducive to clearer thinking will live more wholesomely and healthier, and will be closer to nature without which no man ever was great.

CAPT. COOK'S TESTIMONY

Capt. Cook went upon the witness stand and pulled out all the inside works of the prosecution in the Schley court of inquiry. When he left the court room, the Sampson side of the controversy looked the height of absurdity. That loop—the one for which Schley had been exonerated from one end of the country to the other by the navy ring—was Capt. Cook's own idea, conceived in an emergency of a great battle, a precautionary measure, a means to avert disaster, without knowledge by Schley that such a maneuver was about to be made.

"What do I think of Schley's bearing and conduct at the battle of Santiago?"

"I think," replied Capt. Cook, "it was that of an enthusiastically patriotic and splendidly brave man."

And now, people with sympathies for the unfortunate will expend their sentiment in hoping that Admiral Sampson may emerge from the crucible of inquiry in a manner as graceful as that which Schley promises.

A BISHOP BOOMS OREGON.

Bishop Mallevou of the Methodist Episcopal church said this in Astoria the other day:

"You have a wonderful commonwealth here. I used to think Massachusetts was a great state, but you could put twelve such states in the state of Oregon; and if your mountains were spread out you would find room for sixteen. You have some magnificent mountains, and I have been seized with a desire to take one of them home with me. I refer to Mount Hood, with which I would like to adorn my state. But I must content myself and the people of Massachusetts with pie tures. I like your state because it rains here. Some like California, but I think it is too dusty. I like the oranges but not the dust."

"Just think what a state this is! You have everything that nature desires. You have the ocean, with its abundant productions. It is different from the camping table where there were only codfish and boiled potatoes. An aged preacher was asked to say blessing. Looking over the table, he said very devoutly and reverently: 'Oh Lord, we thank thee for the abundance of the sea and land.' He did the best he could but it had been in Oregon and tasted of the fruits of the field and the rivers he could not have said that you can raise potatoes and wheat to feed the nations of the earth. And what trees you grow! I had to stop the other day and look twice to see the top of one. The fish crowd up your rivers and block the streams. In Boston we have to pay fifty cents a pound for salmon, and we don't like it very well; it tastes of money. But here you get it so cheap it tastes like salmon."

"If you study history, you know that a tide of immigration went out from the east that peopled the world. This tide of immigration has reached the western coast. Seventy-five million people in the United States today confront 750,000,000 people across the water. You are in the tide of this immigration; you have to stand the brunt of the conflict. I wonder if men and women realize that God expects great things of us. When God confers such blessings on a people He holds them responsible for the use they make of them."

AN UNSUNG HERO.

William Phelps of Richmond, Kentucky, died a hero. His heroism was displayed without hope of reward, in the face of almost certain death and amid surroundings bereft of all the enthusiasm, the cheers of comrades and the excitement of battle that lead to great deeds when the flag is to the fore and an enemy is to be overcome. This man deliberately made way for a comrade when the two were imprisoned in a boiler into which steam had been accidentally turned. There was room for one to escape and Phelps said, "You go first Jim, you are married." "Jim" went first and William died in horrible agony, but with a smile, and with the words "It was Jim's right to first," he expired.

William Phelps was a negro. He was a laboring man, and presumably had not received greater advantages than thousands of his fellows in the south. He was strong and full of the love of life implanted in all of us. Opportunity came to him to go first and escape comparatively unhurt. Deliberately he chose the path of absolute self sacrifice, and thousands who read his story will think of the text, "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend."

We read of bad negroes who are ostracized not only by the whites but by many of their own kind, who, maddened by drink or brutalized by despair, commit crimes against humanity that deserve and almost always receive condign punishment, let us hesitate before we impute instinctive brutality to the race, remembering history that there is no man in every nation who showed a whiter soul than did William Phelps of Richmond, Kentucky.

HOW SHALL WE PREACH

First of all by a righteous example. By living a life in his presence which convinces him of the worthiness of truth and the emptiness of hypocrisy. Preach to him with the sacred voice of a clean character. Make him know by actual contact with your life that there is no satisfaction in falsehood. That all shams are sins. That seeming to be a righteous man when you are not is a crime. That a constant violation of very moral and divine law is the struggle for the dollar and the fame at the expense of things which are immortal. Young men follow the paths of their elder associates to a great extent. If they see a vicious man prosper and learn from his life that unscrupulous means are justifiable, they win, they are very likely to drink in a lesson of unrighteousness.

In the next place, we can preach to them through education. Schools and colleges give men false ideas of life in many ways. They teach a would-be aristocracy of learning, which makes of thousands of worthy young men, moral misfits. There is no place in the actual world for them. They were led to a little dogmatic circle, where their qualifications debared them from honestly, every day of their Christian citizenship, which earns its bread by the sweat of its brow. The world is full of opportunities to do right. But the reward is not great, and so young men risk the uncertain methods of gaining success, because the price is in sight. We could preach to them better by teaching down the little mercenary ideals of present society, than in any other way. We could set a new goal before them, by hearing men in the pew and pulpit declare as of old that "ye cannot serve two masters."

HUFFMAN.

COPIED FROM OTHER PAPERS.

To run a newspaper all a fellow has to do is to be able to write poems, discuss the tariff and money question, umpire a baseball game, report a wedding, saw wood, let a lawyer, describe a fire so that the readers will shed their wraps, make a dollar do the work of ten, sit in a source address horticultural societies, measure calico, abuse the liquor habit, test whisky, subscribe to charity, go without meals, attack free silver, defend bimetalism, sneer at snobbery, wear diamonds, invent raisers, minister to the afflicted, heal the disgruntled, fight to a finish, publish doctor's resolutions denouncing a lawyer, set type, mould opinions, sweep the office, speak at prayer meetings, and stand in with the people.—Hartford City Times.

When you ask a man to subscribe for your paper and he says, "Oh, I never read much, and besides the times are too plagued hard," for God's sake apologize and leave him. Life is too short to teach a jack to sing soprano. All gentlemen nowadays read newspapers and lots of them. Show us a man who lives for years in a town or community and never subscribes for the paper published there, and we will show you a man whose head is shaped like a piece of pie, with the point up, and ignorance is only exceeded by his gigantic gail.—Ex.

GOVERNOR YATES.
Endorsement of Paines' Celery Compound.
Attracts the Attention of Medical Journals.
Thousands of Such Cases—Mr. Storm's Letter.

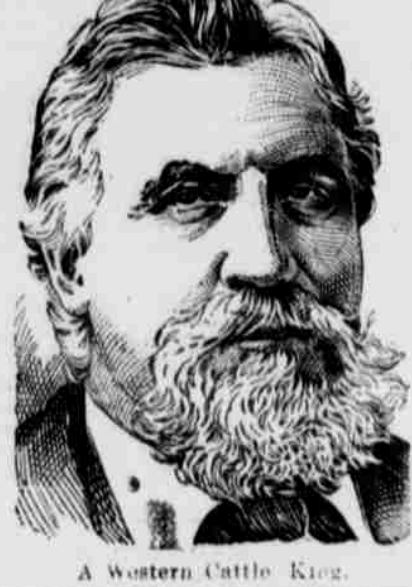

A medical journal, says a writer in the Boston Traveler, has the names and addresses and full histories of hundreds of cases of chronic and acute rheumatism that have been permanently cured by the wonderful remedy which has recently been attracting wide attention since Governor Yates of Illinois publicly endorsed it.

Nothing else has ever been known to cure like obstinate cases, when all others have failed this marvelous remedy for blood and nerves has made sick people well.

Paine's celery compound corrects unhealthy nerve action and feeds the nerve centers with the elements needed to build them up again into healthy tissues. It cleanses the blood of every trace of poisonous humor and encourages a rapid growth of the red corpuscles upon which the vigor of the entire body depends.

Its action is perfectly intelligible to every able physician.

Diseases of the nervous system do not come without warning. Rheumatism, dyspepsia, insomnia, and diseases of the liver and kidneys are but loud cries for a prompt increase of nourishment for the brain and nerve centers. Paine's celery compound feeds the vital parts, and it is upon

A Western Cattle King.

Its marvelous power of nourishing all the nerve tissues and purifying the blood that its remarkable cures depend.

Weariness, lack of energy, and despondency are more a matter of nerves than of the muscles. At this season of the year when thousands of overworking people are entering upon the drudgery that will have no cessation for nearly a year to come, many are already showing the symptoms that sooner or later result from hurry, care, anxiety, and haste without the amount of recreation that nature intended.

Thousands of tired mothers, school teachers, and too ambitious scholars will reveal the strain before the winter is over.

It is high time for all to strike at the root of the trouble. Begin the work of recuperation at the earliest moment.

All who try it will find strength and freedom from disease in Paine's celery compound, which corrects unhealthy nerve action, and supplies the veins with pure, more abundant, more vigorous blood. Paine's celery compound is almost universally prescribed by physicians—who differ on many other things, but who estimate at its proper worth this greatest of all remedies for the prevention and cure of disease. It is not exaggeration to say that every week brings hundreds of letters from those who have used Paine's celery compound and have been benefited by it. Above is the picture of Representative G. H. Storms, one of the cattle kings of Kansas, who says: "I regard Paine's celery compound as the most beneficial and valuable of remedies, especially during the fall months." He writes as have many thousands of others of the good the remedy has done in his own case. Let the reader try it and prove for himself the abundant truth of all that has been said.

It is not what Paine's celery compound says, but what it does, that tells the story of its world-wide fame.
