A WORD TO CANDIDATES.

Every man who broke a law, every officer who permitted law breaking and failed to search out the law breaker, contributed toward the assassination of the late president. Two things give rise to anarchy—non enforcement of the law by those to whom is intrusted the duty of preserving the authority of the people as expressed in statute, and the disregard of that authority by persons of high or low degree.

This is a view expressed by the East Oregonian immediately after the assassination. It has been lately endorsed by countless conservative newspapers and by men prominent in the discussion of the causes giving existence to anarchy and the methods whereby it may be eradicated.

Senator Doliver of Iowa, one of the leading republicans of the country, uttered this in an address treating of the theme:

It should not be forgotten that conspirators, working out their nefarious plans in secret in the dens and caves of the earth, enjoy an unconscious co-operation and silent partnership with every lawless influence abroad in the world. Legislatures who betray the commonwealth, judges who poison the fountains of justice, city governments which come to this in their crime—all these are regular contributors to the campaign fund of anarchy.

Senator Doliver has spoken plainly a truth that needs emphasis in every town and hamlet in the country. It needs to be told to officials everywhere in no uncertain terms.

The mayor who fails to exert his influence in favor of law enforcement "contributes to the campaign fund of anarchy," to quote Senator Doliver.

The chief of police who winks at law breaking "contributes to the campaign fund of anarchy."

The councilman who raises not his voice demanding enforcement of the law "contributes to the campaign fund of anarchy."

The district attorney who permits citizens to go on breaking the law "contributes to the campaign fund of anarchy."

The judge who, vested with a maximum of power to compel officials to act when they are derelict, neglect to exercise that power, "contributes to the campaign fund of anarchy."

The citizen, in the last analysis, the controlling force of our government, able to place in office men who will respect the oath to which they swear, if he stand by and utter no protest against the awful disregard of law that characterizes our generation, "contributes to the campaign fund of anarchy."

Following the outbreak of lawlessness by Czolgosz with the people giving their earnest attention to the subject, we may look for a campaign of law enforcement throughout the entire country. It will be one of the benefits that even in small degree assuage the nation's grief over the killing of the president.

Back of it all as a partial cause, is the enactment of laws that do not represent the real will of the people, thus giving us laws that have not the support of public sentiment. Better no such laws than to have them violated with impunity. However that may be, the executive officer is not the judge of the correctness of a given law. He has not the right to discriminate. He is a purveyor, when having sworn that to the extent of his power he will enforce the law, he fails so to do.

ruled shaded by the grand old maple. Sometimes walks are made of crushed rock or fine gravel, whose gentle undulations are a cheap price to pay for long avenues of coolness and beauty.

One way and another the magnificent heritage of shade left this beautiful city by the thoughtful and tender hands of its pioneer men and women is in process of destruction. If a house is to be moved, down go the trees—elm, maple, chestnut—along its line of march. If a tenant complains of a dark day, the owner acquiesces and cuts down the trees. If the cement contractors had their way, not a shade tree would be left in Portland's streets, and the walks would never need repair. Encroachment of trade upon erstwhile residence neighborhoods, and the multiplication of overhead wires and the passion for getting somewhere in a hurry with the least obstruction, are all laying bare our streets and doorways to the blaze of heat. Poetry night rest a while from its labors in the mountain and desert to take up the education of dwellers in our cities and towns.

The city officials doubtless will persevere in their esthetic program of substituting cement walks for maple trees. But they will stop short of perfection until they have uprooted also every blade of grass and covered the parks with an asphalt floor. Nature's carpet is quite incompatible with the ideal park as Nature's shade—Oregonian.

COL. HOFER AS A POET.

Col. E. Hofer of the Salem Journal has his portrait in the Seattle Herald, a biographical sketch, and the following poem which he recently ground out:

How I Love Mary.

I love my Mary washing clothes,
When morning sun is shining bright—
Her face is bloming like a rose,
That's when I love my Mary.

I love my Mary when she is done,
With hands and arms of snowy white
She hangs her washing in the sun,
Oh, how I love my Mary.

We go to take them from the line
When dewy night has settled down
And nestling close she says she's mine
Then most I love my Mary.

This reminds several people about the East Oregonian office of the song entitled: "I Love to See My Dear Old Mother Work."

Seek Relief!

The great proportion of women who suffer never make a serious effort to benefit themselves. The most of them go on paying no attention to their little menstrual disorders, believing they will eventually wear off. They grow worse and worse every day. At the period of menstruation a woman is peculiarly susceptible to cold and other external influences and it is also the most favorable time for the development of hidden disease germs which may be lurking in the system. Any physician knows that disordered menstruation, falling of the womb and leucorrhoea are blighting lives in almost every home. No woman should neglect herself a moment after she sees indications of female diseases. Almost instant relief can be secured by the use of

WINE OF CARDUI

It will relieve you right in your own home. Will you accept the testimony of Mrs. Beigler and thousands of other women and really seal relief today? All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

10 Chicago Street, Fort Wayne, Ind., March 27, 1900.

Your Wine of Cardui has done a world of good for me. I have used five bottles of the Wine and part of a bottle of Thelford's Black Draught. And since I have started to use it I will not be without it in the house. It helped my sister in Toledo, who did not menstruate as she ought. She was about 40 years of age and nothing else helped her. She took two bottles of Wine of Cardui and found relief in three days. And now I feel like a new woman and do all my housework and washing, which I could not do before I took Wine of Cardui. I would be very glad to write any poor woman and tell her how I suffered before I used Wine of Cardui.
