SCHLEY TELLS THE STORY OF BATTLE

The Rear Admiral Was on the Stand Today.

OTHER WITNESSES SWEAR SCHLEY Was Unanimous Toward the Conquered Genera and the Other Spaniards Who Were Taken at Santiago.

Washington, Oct. 24.—In anticipation of Schley's appearance in the witness stand today, there was a tremendous rush in the court room this morning. Lieut. Wells, Schley's flag secretary, was the first witness. Lemley sought to introduce a report to the navy department written by Wells at Schley's dictation, but was never forwarded to Washington. Dewey refused to permit it to be introduced as evidence.

Generous to His Conquerors.

Major Murphy was recalled and testified that the time the colon surrendered, Schley addressed his men, commanding them not to cheer. When the captain of the Colon awoke on board he said the Spaniards had made a good fight, that they were gallant men, that they should not be humiliated. He made about the same address that evening, when the Brooklyn came alongside the Iowa, where Admiral Cervera was. Murphy said Cervera heard the speech and was very much affected by it and appreciated it.

Coming to the meeting with Sampson I Key West, he said: "Sampson showed me orders providing for a blockade of both the north and south shores of Cuba. The orders stated that he should have his choice, but I should retain the command of the flying squadron. He said he would hold to the Havana blockade, and he also told me of orders that our ships should not be exposed to the fire from the shore batteries, unless the Spanish fleet had been dispersed. He also told me the Spanish squadron was somewhere near Venezuela, and was supplied with stores for Havana and that that was the designed port. I agreed with him. No one would have supposed that Santiago would have fulfilled the requirements of the fleet. I told him I should be unqualifiedly loyal to his command." Capt. Chadwick, who was present, said: "Anyone who knows your character, knows your words and your actions. Schley said he left Key West on May 19 with orders to establish a close blockade on Cienfuegos."

Schley on the Stand.

Schley went on the stand at two o'clock. When his name was called there was a decided murmur in the court room. The rear admiral was cool and collected, serious in manner, but absolutely self possessed. He proceeded to give in narrative form his experiences with the flying squadron.

They met the Marblehead and the Eagle a few hours after the start. They had no news of the Spaniards. The next morning they left in the direction of Cienfuegos. They could not tell where the Spaniards were. Upon arrival at Cienfuegos, they heard six or seven guns, as if in salute. Examination of the harbor revealed masts, but they could see no smokestacks. He received the "Dear Schley" letter on the afternoon of May 22. He fixed the position of the squadron every morning and evening, closer at night. This was always the rule at Cienfuegos and Santiago. He believed then that Cienfuegos was the Spaniards' objective point. The conversation lasted, Wood says, he had with Schley could not be recalled. He thought Lieut. Wood did him injustice when he said that he (Schley) spoke with lack of respect for Sampson. On the morning of May 23 he received an order from Sampson to proceed to Santiago, as the flying squadron probably was there. He did not recall having any verbal orders reported to him by Hood. He said if Hood had any, he forgot to deliver them. Schley said Hood seemed to have remembered a good deal of talk with him (Schley) and forgotten a good deal of his duty. He seemed to have known a great deal Schley would have been glad to know at that time. Schley then told of information given by the captain of the Adula, who said he had seen the lights of seven ships, which he thought were the Spaniards' and that the report was received at Jamaica that the Spanish squadron arrived at Santiago on May 19 and left on the 20th. The captain said if allowed to go into Cienfuegos harbor he would come out in the morning and inform Schley of the situation. The Adula was allowed to go in, but did not come out, which strengthened the belief that the Spaniards were in there. The night of May 23 he saw three horizontal lights. The next day McCulla arrived, and asked if the lights had been seen, and he said they had, whereupon McCulla informed him they were signal lights from the Cubans. Schley asked why he had not been informed about the code, but McCulla didn't know. That night the start for Santiago was made.

Schley was not in daily communication with the enemy. Sometimes he guessed right, sometimes wrong. He did the best he could. He detailed the conversation he had with Sigabee, and was positive Sigabee said the Spaniards were not in Santiago. In saying this he did not mean to reflect upon Sigabee's veracity.

WALLA WALLA TO HAVE FAIR

R. C. JUDSON ARRANGED A MONTHLY SALE FOR NOVEMBER 1.
Will Follow the Same General Plan as That Adopted Here.
Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 24.—Special.—Col. R. C. Judson, industrial agent for the Harriman lines of railroad, was in the city yesterday, arranging for an exchange fair to be held here in a few days. It is proposed to hold a monthly exchange market for farmers, at which anything for sale may be sold and any wants may be supplied. At Pendleton a few weeks ago, the first fair ever known on the coast was held. Mr. Judson will return in a few days and perfect plans along lines employed at Pendleton. Men will likely be sent out over the county to interest farmers, and a place will be secured for the display of stock and produce which may be offered. The same plan is being put in operation at La Grande. The first fair will be held here about the first of November, if present plans are carried out.

Kloping Couples Return Home.

Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 24.—Special.—The two couples of young people who eloped from Prescott, 20 miles from this city, returned home yesterday, happily married. The ceremony occurred at Seattle, Rev. John Damon officiating.

Clifford Reavis and his cousin Alta Reavis, Timothy Shea and Myrtle Marr, all under age, left their homes at Prescott last Sunday night, and search failed to reveal their whereabouts until word came from Seattle that they were married. The couples caught a train for the Sound and made good their escape before their absence was noted. Yesterday they returned, much to the surprise of their parents, whether they have been forgiven is not known. But they are at home, safe and sound.

Weston Man Married.

Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 24.—A. J. McDaniel of Weston, Ore., and Miss Amy E. Collins of Linn county, Ore., were married yesterday afternoon in this city, Rev. Austin Rice of the Congregational church officiating. The young couple left for Weston today.

DAVENPORT CANNOT COME

Called to San Francisco on Urgent Business and Cancels Engagement.
Homer Davenport is unexpectedly called to San Francisco. The call was very urgent. He must leave tonight. Therefore he must cancel the engagement for Saturday night in Pendleton. He asks to present to the people of Pendleton his most sincere regrets, and hopes to see them at some future time.

Start Girls Right!

Many beautiful girls become invalids for life, because at the crucial period of puberty they pay no attention to the laws of health. Mothers should protect their daughters' health by giving them necessary information and proper treatment. When the menses come on a girl unawares in her inexperience she is either frightened into convulsions, or scared into trying to check the flow. Many girls have checked the flow and it has never started again. And as a result they have grown pale-faced, with "crow-tracks" on their cheeks, and dark hal-moons under their eyes. A dose of taken every morning after a girl is twelve years old will bring the menses on properly and keep them regular. It will help her to develop into attractive womanhood and equip her for the duties of wife and motherhood. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

WINE OF CARDUI

The Hollywood, Asbury Park, N. J., February 8, 1900.
I read your advertisement in regard to Wine of Cardui in the Baltimore American, and it so favorably impressed me that on my visit to Baltimore during the holidays I purchased a bottle of it for my adopted daughter, who was suffering with female troubles. She had been under the doctor's care for some time, and when her periods would come on her suffering was something terrible. I induced her to try it and the first dose brought on her menses. She took it regularly according to the directions, and was greatly relieved. To use her own words, "It saved my life." J. WHEATLY CURTIS.
