GENERAL NEWS

The movement to erect a monument for ex-Governor William A. Newell, developer of the life-saving service, is taking definite shape in New Jersey.

Lieutenant-General Miles, in his annual report, gives the total strength of the army as present as $4,513, of which number $3,574 are in the United States, 43,238 in the Philippines, 4914 in Cuba and the remainder in small detachments, being in Porto Rico, Hawaii, China and Alaska.

The North German Lloyd Company has made overtures to the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company for the establishment of a joint German and British steamship service from Oriental ports to Vancouver and Puget Sound.

The Berlin National Zeitung says that Great Britain treats the Boers, who are still in a military state, masters of the country, as though they were assassins. The Tageblatt talks of "barbarous herding of defenseless women and children in the shambles of the English concentration camps."

At Boston, in connection with what the United States marshal's office declares to be one of the biggest frauds they ever had to deal with in that city, members of the firm of J. C. Fisher & Co., bankers, were arrested in a charge of using the United States mails in a scheme to defraud. It is alleged that $1,000,000 has been taken from the public since January 1, 1900.

The new treaty which is to be submitted to the senate as the result of the conferences of Mr. Choate and Lord Lansdowne and Paunceforte, to take the place of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, provides that the United States will be the sole guarantor of the principle of the neutralization of the canal, and recognizes the right of the United States to fortify the canal. The stipulations of the new treaty will apply not only to the Nicaragua Canal, but to all other canals taken up by the United States.

The Yale varsity oarsmen will meet Captain Phil Kunzig at once and begin training for the coming year. The plan for the work this fall will be to form three crews, which will be kept growing until college closes for the holidays. After the holidays the oarsmen will rest until February, when they will be called together again for tank practice. Mr. Kennedy and Captain Kunzig will direct the coaching this fall.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST NEWS

Samuel Coulter, of Portland, has sold to C. S. and R. S. Moore, of Klamath County, a tract of timber in the Klamath region, containing 10,563 acres. The price paid for the big tract was $12,500.

The freight car famine complained of by the shippers to the Chamber of Commerce is no longer as serious as was reported. Both the O. R. & N. and Southern Pacific company have greatly relieved the situation and removed much of the cause for complaint.

According to an estimate of the reductions made by the Multnomah county board of equalization, the whole amount will be in the neighborhood of $100,000, which is a small amount as compared with the total assessment of $48,000,000, and also reductions of former years.

The severest storm of the season broke over the Pacific Northwest Coast last week, and for three days shipping was nearly at a standstill. Skagway steamers were forced to seek shelter and the steamers New England and Capilano, which have arrived in Vancouver, B. C., report that the sea was the roughest seen on the north coast for a year.

Seattle is full of highwaymen, bunco men, thieves and burglars. They held high carnival Sunday night. An unsuccessful attempt to blow open a safe of Zerewich & Kitchener, Western avenue, was made early Monday morning. Harry Eugeik was knocked down and robbed on the water front. The robber tried to throw him in the bay. Thomas Mannas, a clever pickpocket, is in jail for several jobs. Joe Whitehouse, who attempted to kill a man at Franklin, has been arrested. Several small burglaries have been reported to the police.

"Played Out"

Is one of the curious expressions used for "sweaked out." Many a woman drops into a chair, and wonders "all played out," and wonders why she feels so weak. She has not yet realized that the general health is so intimately related to the local health of the womanly organism. The weakness must follow womanly diseases. Restoration of the general health invariably follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulcers, and cures female weakness. It cleanses the system, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. There is no substitute for "Favorite Prescription," for there is nothing "just as good" for womanly ills. "I wish to thank the suffering women of this great land of the good I have received from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mrs. Mary Wilson of Columbus Grove, Putnam Co., Ohio. "For four years I had been a sufferer from female troubles, and at times was unable to do even the housework for three in the family. I had such pains that I suffered almost death during the time, and after taking five bottles of your medicine, I can truthfully say that my health was greatly improved. I have a good appetite and am enjoying life as never before. This spring is the first time in five years that I have seen my house cleaned all by myself and without the least fatigue whatever. I hope all suffering women may find relief as I have done. My medicine has been just ten pounds, and I am still gaining."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only, or for cloth-bound book, send 51 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CZOLGOSZ PAID PENALTY.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Leon F. Czolgosz was electrocuted at 7:15 o'clock this morning. Three contacts were made, one lasting thirty seconds and the others of short duration. He was pronounced dead at 7:16:15 A. M.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—President McKinley's assassin is dead. Leon F. Czolgosz was successfully electrocuted in the Auburn prison this morning. He was pronounced dead at 7:16:15. With the purely animal courage that had sustained him, and the innate cowardice struggling to his lips, the youthful murderer, hated by the nation and by the world, paid the penalty of his fearful crime. Seated in the death chair, Czolgosz faced his witnesses and said: "I shot the President because I thought it would benefit good working people."

Appearance of Czolgosz. Three contacts were made, one lasting thirty seconds, the other two of short duration. The work of preparing for the electrocution was done quietly. After the witnesses were seated and the apparatus had been tested, Czolgosz was hustled from his cell to the death room. He walked down the corridor with a shambling gait. His face was almost ghastly. As the murderer approached, the witnesses sat silent, immovable, every eye on the doer from which the doomed man would enter the death chamber. Many thought the assassin might collapse, others that he might die propounding his anarchistic theories. Those who saw the prisoner's face for the first time noted the effeminacy of the amorous lips, the long hair, the strong, thick nose, the unweavily molded features.

The Electrodes Applied. In less time than it takes to tell it, he was placed in the chair, the electrodes applied and the straps drawn taut. Czolgosz glanced helplessly. The witnesses were surprised. They gazed their eyes on the assassin and strained their ears to catch the words which followed. Only sounds came. They were almost unintelligible words. "I am not sorry for the crime," however, was painfully distinct. Some of the witnesses cast significant glances at each other. "Let him die, the dog," they said.

Spurred Spiritual Consolation. During this time the attendants were busy strapping him in the chair. His last words were: "I am heartily sorry I did not see my father."

This was said after the strap had been drawn across his face, yet his words were heard by all in the room. Czolgosz went to his death unsupported by spiritual ministrations. He scorned its aid, and spurned the entreates of the priests who visited him in his last hours. He declared he wanted no one to pray for his soul. It was the first time in the history of the prison that a condemned man marched to the chair without a spiritual advisor.

The Fatal Current. His last words were spoken with effort. When he had ceased speaking the fatal signal was given, the lever quickly turned, and Czolgosz's body stiffened with startling suddenness. It bounded with a powerful convulsiveness, as if it would burst the strap which held him in the chair. Then the current was turned off. No sound came from the body. Twelve more the current was turned on, after which the doctors pronounced him dead. The corpse was taken to a room adjoining the death cell, where an autopsy was held.

Czolgosz Slept Last Night. Czolgosz spent the greater part of his last night sleeping, apparently peacefully. He talked with no one after the visit from his brother and brother-in-law. The warden went to his cell at 5:30 o'clock this morning and found him asleep. He was awakened and the death warrant read to him. The assassin listened in silence and gave no outward manifestation of the emotion he must have felt. Czolgosz then asked that he might see his brother again, but this was refused and breakfast was sent to him. The prisoner ate sparingly, then prepared for the death chair.

Other Convicts Were Silent. The thousand convicts in the prison were not taken out until the assassin had been hunched into eternity. As the witnesses passed down the corridor, not a sound was heard from the convicts who were standing in their cell doors watching the little procession as it filed past. Heretofore, groans and cat calls have greeted the witnesses bound for the death chamber, but today there was silence that was almost impressive.

The autopsy showed Czolgosz's brain to be in perfectly normal condition, above the average in weight and showed not the slightest lesion. Every organ in the body was in normal condition at the time of death.

Completely Blotted Out. Soon after the autopsy was completed, the body was secretly buried. Before 10 tonight, the prison authorities say, not a vestige of it will remain, as the quick lime and vitriol in which it was buried will quickly consume it. The place of burial is unknown. A mound marks the grave and there is nothing to indicate that Czolgosz ever lived.

There is a fine bed of timber in the section through which the line will be built, and it is the purpose of the company to log out this timber. Two carloads of cavalry horses were shipped last night to Lathrop, Mo. thence to go to South Africa. They were purchased by Captain Grissell, of Sheridan, Mo.

BLOODY RACE RIOT ENDED

BALLTOWN, LA., WAS THE SCENE OF A CONFLICT.

The Death List is Nine Negroes, One White Man—Trouble Arose Over Restaurant License at a Camp Meeting—Several Were Burned to Death, One a Negro Child—Precautions Against Another Outbreak of Hostilities.

New Orleans, Oct. 29.—The Balltown race riot practically is ended, and, although first reports were exaggerated, the clash was one of the bloodiest in the history of the state. Ten persons, nine colored and one white, are dead. Great unrest is felt at the scene of the trouble, and, while there are no outward signs of a renewal of hostilities, precautions are being taken to prevent another outbreak. Negro Lott, who refused to take out a license to run a restaurant at a camp meeting, caused the trouble. When a constable and posse started for the place to enforce the law, Lott and several other negroes barricaded themselves in the restaurant, firing upon the posse when they approached.

When the Killing Occurred. The fight became general, negroes on the outside coming to the assistance of their barricaded brothers. The restaurant finally was fired, whereupon Lott and another negro emerged firing into the whites, killing Joe Seals and seriously wounding another. Other male members of the barricaded party tried to escape, but all were shot down. Lott's head was blown off. After cessation of hostilities, five dead negroes, three negroes and one negro child were found, four of the latter having been burned to death in the restaurant.

REMINGTON ALMOST CAPTURED GEN. BOTHA.
Boer Leader Was Surprised at His Laager and Had Only a Short Start in Effecting Escape.

Pretoria, Oct. 29.—General Botha today barely escaped capture at the hands of Colonel Remington's forces. Remington surprised Botha's laager, the Boer leader escaping by only a few hundred yards start. Botha left his hat, revolver and papers behind in the flight. Ten prisoners were taken, including Commandant Hans Botha.

Valuable Postage Stamps. In the recent edition of the Pan-American two-cent postage stamp it was found that the illustration was printed upside down, and as only a few of them were sold before being noticed, the value of them has been greatly increased. People who have once used Hostetter's Stomach Bitters place a very high valuation on it as a family medicine. It is for weak people and the most delicate stomachs can retain it. It restores the appetite and stimulates the digestive organs, thereby extracting all the nutritive element from the food. It has a record of fifty years of cures of indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, and flatulency to its credit. We urge you to try it. The genuine has our Private Die Stamp over the neck of the bottle.
