People Here Today. C. M. Naff, who is here for the Spokesman-Review, tells an experience that came to him the other day, when he entered a Pendleton home to solicit a subscription for the Review. He had in his hand a copy of Rand, McNally & Co.'s atlas, which they are using as an inducement to make people subscribe for the Spokane publication. The Review man knocked, and a lady appeared, clad in house gown or dainty material and stylish tallorina. She opened what the novel set calls the "valve," but which sensible folks call the door, and peered out into the face of the newspaper man and saw that book. "Book agent," she laughed said the lady. "I never admit book agents into my house. But, miss," said the Review man. "I am not a book agent, and, furthermore, I am sure if you will call your mother, she will be glad to look at the fine newspaper proposition I have to offer. You see you get the paper a year and the atlas. But the Review man finished his remarks in the comfort of a rush couch, as the lady's parlor, while she smilingly explained to the apparently astonished Spokaneite that she was not the daughter of the house, but the wife and old enough to be his mother. He claims he got a "sub" and got it with ease.

RECEPTION TO THE PREVY WHITMAN COLLEGE AND ITS FRIENDS. Enjoy an Evening in the Memorial Chapel Attended by Hundreds of Students and Others. Walla Walla, Nov. 14.—Special.—A splendid reception was tendered President and Mrs. S. B. L. Penrose, of Whitman College, last night by the faculty, students and friends of the institution, at the Memorial chapel, hundreds being in attendance. The reception was given in honor of the return of the president from his eastern trip and was the first function given since the opening of the college several weeks ago. The chapel was decorated lavishly in the college colors, and the faculty and students were out on masses. Citizens from all parts of the county were in attendance, to give hearty greetings to the man who has done so much for the college and Walla Walla. The address of the occasion was by Rev. Lee A. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and President Penrose, responded in his usual happy vein, greeting the people with a hearty appreciation of their testimonial to his presence and his efforts in behalf of the college. The speeches were received with hearty applause and rousing yells from the students. At the close of the reception refreshments were served. A well arranged program had been prepared by the students, and the music was heartily enjoyed.
