GRIM SIGNS OF SHIPWRECK.

Children's Footprints in the Sand Tell of the Fate of a Long Lost Ship.

The following tidings of the ill-fated ship Manchester, which sailed from this port for Japan more than a year ago, are from a copy of the Japan Daily Mail, lately arrived from Yokohama:
"News comes from Australia of the finding on Bikar island, a small uninhabited atoll of the Marshall group, of wreckage which is thought to indicate that the British ship Manchester came to grief there. Footprints and marks of two boats' keels on the sand and other signs make it seem probable that the captain and his wife and children and crew had been on the island, and, being unable to find water, had pushed off again.
"There were footprints of a woman and children plainly marked in the sand. Also there were found bodies of birds which had been smothered for blood to allay thirst. A small schooner came across these traces about three months ago, and as no sign has been found of the missing people since, it is supposed that they died of thirst before reaching inhabited islands. The body of one man was found in the scrub near the shore.
"Many cases of kerosene were scattered about the beach. The Manchester, Capt. F. Clemens, left New York loaded with kerosene for Yokohama a year ago and has never been seen since. She was a four-masted steel ship of 2,831 tons."

WHERE NATURE IS UPSET.

Many Strange Incongruities Found in Icelandic Phenomena—Frost and Fire mingled.

Nature is all turned topsy-turvy in Iceland. Most people regard the island simply as an out-of-the-way spot of no particular consequence to anybody under the sun, yet it supports a frugal, industrious and pious people. It has almost a right to be called fireland, for there frost and fire are strangely mingled. The lofty mountains, towering skyward, are clad with snow fields and glaciers, yet at the same time send forth fire and steam and molten rock. At times the eruption, bursting forth suddenly, melts the ice and snow on the mountain sides, and great floods rush down into the valleys. On the cooled surface of the lava flow ice and snow accumulate, and then perhaps a new flow of lava covers up the ice without melting it. The ice is thus shut up as in a great natural greenhouse, and may be so preserved for thousands of years. Dr. Geikie mentions a case in which a layer of ice occurs between two beds of lava in a geological section. The antiquity of such a bed of ice is to be measured in thousands and tens of thousands of years.
On a smaller scale is the famous Eis-hohle, a natural icehouse not far from Casselburg, in the Eifel. There on the hottest day in summer ice is to be found. This ice is famous, and was always served at the table of the elector of Cologne.

Too Much for the Ostrich.
In the Belle Isle zoo, at Detroit, some one threw the bottom of a broken beer bottle into the ostrich yard. The big ostrich, which had performed such feats as swallowing glass marbles, slate pencils, spikes and tennis balls, promptly tackled the new food. It disappeared into the bird's mouth and spectators saw the moving lump in the ostrich's throat which showed the course of the tit-bit. Then the movement stopped and the ostrich looked unhappy, twisted its neck this way and that way, and started to run frantically about the yard. Finally it stopped and drooped its head after the manner of a sick hen. Next morning it was dead and a piece of ragged beer bottle sticking out through its windpipe told the tale.

How Could It Be Expected?
"You said," asserted the irate customer, "that this tonic would make hair grow."
"I did," admitted the clerk.
The customer removed his hat and showed a head as smooth as a billiard ball.
"I've been using that tonic for three months," he said.
"Oh, that's all right," answered the clerk, promptly. "You have no hair to grow. If you had the tonic would work all right. What more can you expect?"—Chicago Post.

No Divided Allegiance.
"Mamma," said the five-year-old boy, "if you should die, would papa marry again?"
"I don't know, Willie," she replied. "But if such a thing ever does happen, and you have a stepmother, I want you to be good to her."
"Well," said Willie, pondering deeply, "I will be very polite, mamma, but I will bear malice and hatred in my heart."—Chicago Tribunes.

Out of the Ordinary.
"That foreign nobleman who wants to marry you—"
"Yes, father," answered the fair girl. "I am sure he loves me."
"But are you sure he's a genuine foreign nobleman?"
"Why do you doubt him?"
"I asked him about his debts, and he said he didn't owe a cent."—Washington Star.

On an Errand.
A little fellow was sent a message by his mother to a lady. When he had delivered it he did not seem in a hurry to go, and the lady, noticing this, asked him if there was anything else his mother had bidden him say. She was not prepared for his reply:
"She said I wasn't to ask anything for coming, but if you gave me anything I was to take it."—Golden Days

A Notable Discovery.
"My wife is a very remarkable woman," said Mr. Meekton.
"She has a great deal of originality."
"Indeed she has. She has taken up the game of whist, and by watching her play I have discovered that all the books written on the subject are totally wrong."—Washington Star.

Substantiating Proof.

Poetry and Prose.
"Oh, papa!" cried Marie, "do you know the meaning of Christian names? 'William' means good. I wonder what 'Arthur' means?" And the girl blushed—oh, so prettily.
Papa put on his severest aspect.
"I hope Arthur means business!" was the reply.—Tit-Bits.

A Timely Question.
"Papa," said little Bobbie Whittierly, as he stepped on the wharf after an unusually tempestuous voyage from Liverpool, "do you suppose the time will ever come when they'll invent seasickness ocean steamers?"—Brooklyn Life.

Har Misconception.
"And so this is the end!" he exclaimed, bitterly.
"Well," she replied, "if you haven't any more nerve than to give up right at the start, I suppose it'll have to be the end. But I thought you were more of a man."—Chicago Record-Herald.

No Regretfully.
Negro Cook (to former mistress, who had declined to recommend her)—Now, now, Miss Belle, you 'fused to recommend' me, and here I been recommendin' you everywhere.—Judge.

Mightier Than the Sword.
"Colonel, I saw one of the latest implements of war a few minutes ago."
"Indeed; and what was that?"
"A typewriter, colonel."—Yonkers Statesman.

She Got It.
"She married for a home, I believe."
"Yes, I suppose that was one reason why he was glad to give her that $50,000 house as a part of the alimony."—Chicago Record-Herald.

No Absolute Certainty.
"You want to marry my daughter, do you? What reason have you to think, young man, she cares for you?"
"None at all, sir, except that she always kisses me good-night when I take my leave after calling on her, and says she'll be awfully lonely till she sees me again. But I don't know much about the ways of girls, sir."—Chicago Tribunes.

PENDLETON MINE OWNERS

GRANT MINING CO. IS DEVELOPING PROPERTY

J. H. Raley and Others are Working a Force of Men Near Comer.
Comer, Ore., Nov. 27.—The Grant Mining Co., of Pendleton, Ore., represented by Hon. J. H. Raley, W. T. Rigby and L. J. Kirk, have a force of men working on the property here formerly known as the Yager and Clayton mines. They are taking out ore and preparing to have it delivered to the Standard smelter. The smelter people are receiving their coke and accessory material and completing their new buildings and roads, and everything is in readiness to soon blow on in on the rich copper ore from the Standard mine. Teams are hauling ore from this mine and putting it in bins and will soon have sufficient to keep the plant busy for several weeks. The Dixie Mining and Smelting company is also delivering considerable quantities of silicious ores that carry rich values in gold.
The Standard people have just cut into a chute of cobalt and copper ore in their lower tunnel. It is the richest cobalt ore ever taken from the mine; in fact is almost pure cobalt. This strike was made at about 265 feet from the mouth of the lower tunnel and bids fair to be a large chute. Superintendent Houser pronounced it to be the best strike yet made on the property. Standard stock will now take a sharp advance, as the property is proving to be a very rich mine.
The Fitzsimmons people are driving a new tunnel to get more backing on their ore chute, and have just come to their pay ore. It is very good rock and carries considerable free gold, showing a stronger vein than in the upper workings. They are preparing to continue work during the winter months.

The Dixie Mining and Smelting company is still driving ahead the main crosscut tunnel, which has reached the 400-foot mark and soon will cut into another ore body. They are driving a 150-foot adit on a vein and banking the ore in their bins until new roads can be constructed preparatory to delivering the ore to the smelter. They are running a limited force of men at the present time, but soon as air connections are made by the adit they will work a double force whenever it can be done to an advantage.
