$10,000 DAMAGES

MRS. MOLLIE SAUERS
SUED PATRICK LYONS.

Alleges He Drove Carelessly Over Her
in Walla Walla Last October, Giving Permanent Injury.

Walla Walla, Dec. 13.—Patrick Lyons, a wealthy farmer residing near this city, was sued yesterday in the superior court for $15,000 damages for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained by Mrs. Mollie Sauer. October 13, Mrs. Sauer was driving on one of the streets of the city, when she alleges that Lyons' team collided with her vehicle, throwing her to the ground and injuring her seriously. It is alleged that Lyons was driving carelessly and too rapidly. For the injuries, which it is alleged will prove permanent, Mr. Sauer and his wife ask for the modest sum of $15,000.

WALLA WALLA PHYSICIANS HAVE PLAN TO BEAT BEATS.

Formed an Agreement to Exchange
Names of Poor Payers, Then Refuse to Attend Them.

Walla Walla, Dec. 13.—Practicing physicians in this city have tabooped the idea of beating doctors' bills, which has been common in recent years, and arrangement has been made by the Walla Walla Valley Medical Society to place the names or slow pay individuals in the hands of each of its members, that they may be on their guard when called to attend the man who regularly beats his bills. The medical society has been working on the matter for months, and finally struck the idea of each member reporting to the secretary all delinquents who determinedly remained delinquents. Ever after this posting, no member of the society will attend a case unless the money is advanced. This will settle the dead beat business in this city.

ONTARIO HORSES TO BE BROKEN BY MONTANA RIDERS.

Animals Bought by English Government to Be Prepared for the Saddle.

Ontario, Dec. 13.—Several experts in handling wild horses have arrived in Ontario from Montana to assist Moncrieffe brothers in the breaking of range horses from the interior. Quite a number of these animals have been purchased from raisers all over this country for the British government and these men are here to break them to the saddle. Oliver H. Wallop has charge of the purchasing, and he has instructions to purchase several hundred head. They will go through rapid training to break them in, and then they will be shipped to Lathrop, Mo., where they will have a thorough training before shipment for use in the British-Boer war. The Oregon range is being stripped of most of its animals which are adapted for saddle horses, and the price paid is very good, ranging from $25 to $50 per head. This compared with the prices a few years ago makes horse-raising profitable again.

FARMERS ACROSS STATE LINE FEEL FROST RESULTS.

Ground in Poor Condition to Protect
Growing Grain From Much Cold Weather.

Walla Walla, Dec. 13.—Walla Walla valley farmers are becoming alarmed at the recent cold snap and the severe frosts which have visited this section the last two nights. Grain is very small and delicate, much of it having been sown late and it is in poor condition to stand severe weather without a snow covering. On Wednesday night a severe frost occurred, the ground being frozen to a depth of an inch or two. This, following so closely upon the recent rains, is likely to have a bad effect upon fall-sown grain. A few days more will seriously injure the present excellent prospects. The severe frosts without snow are unusual in this section.

Athens Fever Scare Abated.

Athens, Dec. 12.—The scarlet fever scare which held sway here for some time past, has just about abated. The two children of Harvey Caton, who had it in a mild form, are now convalescent and no new cases have developed. In fact, the general health of the town was never better at this time of year than it is at present.

Rothrock-Jarrett.

Adams, Dec. 13.—Mr. Andy C. Rothrock and Miss Maud Jarrett, both prominent young people of this city, were married in Walla Walla yesterday.

Mr. McCabe Goes East.

Walla Walla, Dec. 13.—Joseph McCabe, manager of the Washington & Columbia River railway, accompanied by Mrs. McCabe, left last night for an extended business trip east. Mr. McCabe goes in the interests of his road.

MILTON EAGLE'S VERSION OF COUNT / DIVISION IDEA

Says no Present Movement is on Foot,
But Argues that it will Come Some
Time—Richness of Walla Walla
Walla Valley.

The Milton Eagle has this to say regarding the recently agitated county division idea:
County and state papers have had much to say recently concerning the division of Umatilla county. In fact one hears more division talk everywhere else than in Milton, about which humble town the division plan supposedly centers. The purported interview of A. M. Elam published in the Portland Oregonian has doubtless been the cause of much unnecessary comment, speculation and headache on the part of contemporary publishers in this county. Mr. Elam's account of the interview to the Eagle was to the effect that he met an old friend in Portland to whom he related something of the history of the fight made for the division of this county in other years, not knowing that his friend was a reporter on the Oregonian and without suspecting for a moment that he would be quoted as saying that a vigorous division fight was now on or would be inaugurated soon.

The plain truth of the matter is that Milton wants a division of Umatilla county as a matter of right and justice. Not that a few may enjoy the emoluments of office, not that a few speculative land owners may reap profits from a boom sale of town lots, not that Pendleton or Athena may be impoverished by loss of territory or trade, but because of the convenience to the people of this end of the county; because of natural topographical and geographical divisions, and because the territory proposed to be cut out from Umatilla county, though small in area, is yet broad enough and rich enough to maintain an ideal county government.

Proposed Line.
Taking as a natural boundary the divide from which the waters flow to the Umatilla and Walla Walla rivers, leaving Athena, Helix and Adams in the old county, and in a small territory not more than perhaps 16 miles in width and 30 or 40 miles in length, there would yet remain a greater population and more taxable wealth than could be boasted by a dozen or more Oregon counties at the present time.

Conceding that the west end of the proposed new county is desert, that the east end is mountains and timber, and that the population would naturally center around Milton within an area of possibly not more than ten miles square, and yet it must be remembered this small extent of territory is of unsurpassed agricultural and horticultural wealth. Every two acres of ground will support a large family in all the comforts and even the luxuries of life. The wheat lands are unsurpassed in the world.

The county seat as a trade center, as a city aspiring to great population and wealth, would certainly reap no hardships from the detachment of the Milton country whose trade for the most part, on account of distance, goes to Pendleton's rival Walla Walla—not alone from the county seat, but from the state.
