HOW THE LA GRANDE CHRONICLE EXPLAINS IT.

The Town of Pendleton Has the Most Loyal Population of Any Town in the Country, Says This Paper.

The Christmas number of the East Oregonian claims that Pendleton has a population of 6000. This claim is based on the fact that 500 residences have been built in Pendleton since the last federal census. The census report gives Pendleton a population of 4400. It is assumed—and the estimate is certainly conservative—that the 500 new houses represent an addition of 2000 since the census was taken. This would make a total of at least 6000.

Pendleton is fortunate. It has the most loyal population of any town in the country. What year betides—two or three years without a wheat crop, or whatever else may happen—you never hear of a Pendletonian going back on Pendleton. The instances are also very rare when a Pendleton money-maker gets restless to find some other locality to invest his money. If no other opportunity presents itself he builds a big house. There are not less than 50 residents of Pendleton whose residence property represents an investment of from $5000 to $10,000. In this way the money which is earned there is expended there. Mechanics and laborers are employed and the money is put right back into the local channels. In this respect Pendleton people are like the Illinois farmer who "bought more land to raise corn to feed hogs so that he could buy more land to raise more corn to feed more hogs to buy more land."

The constant building and improving in Pendleton makes a demand for more mechanics and laborers who will require more homes and improvements and demand more mechanics and laborers to build more houses, etc.

Pendleton has been as a unit in the establishment of local business enterprises. In constructing good roads to all adjacent communities, and so on, but the mainstay of the town's progress is the fact that very little Pendleton money escapes to exploit other fields. It is all used or invested in Pendleton, and that makes a big difference in comparison with those localities where the hard money-maker soon finds that his health demands a new location or whose family yearns for the multiplied advantages afforded in a larger city.

It makes a big difference.

WOODMEN LOG-ROLLING.

Three Hundred and Three Candidates to Be Initiated at One Time.

Walla Walla, Dec. 28.—Three hundred and three candidates are to be initiated into the mysteries of Woodcraft in this city at a log-rolling which is now being arranged. The Woodmen of the World is the order making the special effort. A committee consisting of J. M. Hill, C. H. O'Neil, C. I. Hall and J. W. Cockerly, will do the work of arranging details for the Woodmen, while Mrs. I. M. Stiles, Mrs. Eva Davis, Mrs. Eliza McDowell and Mrs. Belle Munson will represent the Women of Woodcraft.

The exact date of the log-rolling has not been set, but it will occur as soon as the weather settles, perhaps in a month or two. Prominent speakers will be present and some of the best degree teams in Oregon and Washington will be on hand to present the ritualistic work of the order. The number of candidates which it is proposed to have on hand is 303, and an effort is now being made to interest a large number of persons in the proposed event.

Early Closing in Walla Walla.

Walla Walla, Dec. 28.—Beginning last night, an early-closing agreement took effect among the merchants of the city. Hereafter all stores will close at 6 o'clock each evening except Saturday, and on Sundays business will be discontinued.

Fruitgrowers to Meet.

Walla Walla, Dec. 28.—A meeting of the fruit-growers of the Walla Walla valley has been called for this afternoon in this city, when steps will be taken to entertain the Northwest Horticultural Association, which is to meet in this city January 21, for a three days' session. The plan is to interest as many as possible in the meeting, so as to insure a large attendance of local people, and to raise a fund sufficient to entertain the visitors properly. A large number of prominent fruitgrowers, shippers, commission men, and railroad officials are expected to be present. The meetings will be held in the court house.

SCHOOLS OF COMMERCE.

They Are Being Established in Many of the Universities.

An interesting editorial of the Chicago Tribune says that the establishment of schools of commerce in quick succession in so many universities ought not to be regarded as a mere educational fad, but ought to be viewed as a sensible adaptation of our educational system to the needs of American youth. It is the first important innovation in university training that has been made within many years, the first serious proposal to include such a course of study having been made about 10 years ago by Professor Laughlin, of Chicago University, since which schools of commerce have been established at the Universities of Pennsylvania, California, Wisconsin, Ohio and Dartmouth College, many now offering more elaborate curriculums than Chicago, where the movement originated. The writer thinks it probable that many other universities will soon follow and make full provision for instruction in commercial subjects.

MRS. I. L. RAY DEAD.

Passed Away Friday, at 3:30 O'clock at Her Home, Corner of Water and Johnson Streets.

Mrs. I. L. Ray passed away Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at her home on the corner of Water and Johnson streets, from the effects of a grippe, contracted something over a year ago, the immediate cause of death being heart failure.

While Mrs. Ray's death has been expected for several days, it comes as a shock to her host of friends in this city, who join in offering condolence to the grieving husband, Mrs. Ray was born in Stuttgart, Germany, and was a finished musician as well as having composed and written many pieces of music. She had only lived in Pendleton the past three years.

The funeral will be conducted by Rev. W. E. Potwine, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, from the house at 2 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, and the remains will be interred in Olney cemetery immediately following the funeral.

The Pall-Bearers.

The pall-bearers will be Frank B. Clifton, E. D. Boyd, J. F. Robinson, R. J. Slater, J. M. Leezer and J. T. Lambirth.

MRS. NANNIE RANKIN.

Dies Suddenly at the Home of Her Daughter, Mrs. M. B. Scott, in Pendleton.

Mrs. Nannie Rankin, widow of J. Rankin, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. B. Scott, at 301 Lillith street, about 2 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Scott was 83 years of age, but had been in her usual good health, going around the house helping her daughter to attend to the household duties. Friday she ate three hearty meals and went to bed saying that she felt well. A few minutes before passing away she called her daughter, saying she had pains in her shoulder.

She came to this country from Kentucky, 22 years ago, and with her husband, lived on their farm near Pilot Rock for years. After his death, nine years ago, she came to live with her daughter, where she died.

The funeral will be conducted from the residence of Mrs. Scott, at 2 o'clock Sunday, and her remains will be interred in Olney cemetery.

Governor Refused Writ.

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 28.—Governor Hunt refused to issue a writ of habeas corpus to the governor of Oregon for the extradition of Paul Aveline, held in Portland on a charge of removing property from the state for the purpose of defrauding creditors. The warrant on which the arrest was made was sworn out by his brother, Prosper Aveline, the proceedings being the outcome of long-standing business troubles between the brothers. Paul converted all his property into cash and left the night before the judgment would have been signed against him. The requisition was refused because it was shown that the real purpose of prosecution was to collect a judgment.
