MARRIAGES IN 1901

MORE JOINED IN WEDLOCK THAN IN ANY OTHER YEAR.

And During 1901 There Were Fewer Divorces Than in Previous Years.

The record of marriages in Umatilla county for 1901 has been a record-breaker, compared with any former year. This is, of course, due to the increase in population. Since the first day of January, 1901, 164 marriage licenses have been recorded with the county clerk, against 125 for 1900, showing a gain of 39 marriages, to say nothing of the large number that go to Walla Walla to get licenses. This will run the total number up to almost 200, as it is estimated that 50 or 40 couples go from that end of the county each year to Walla Walla for this purpose.

A peculiar thing shown by the records at the court house is the fact that in almost every instance two and sometimes three licenses have been granted on the same date, there seldom being a time that one lone swain has applied for the right to wed.

Another circumstance, out of the ordinary, is that most of the licenses have been granted during the first of the week, the majority of the weddings taking place on Wednesday, instead of Sunday, as is usually the case.

Although the marriage record has been greater than any previous year, the divorce record is not so large as it was in 1900. In 1901 55 divorce suits were filed on the equity docket, against 63 for 1900. The majority of the divorce suits instituted are by the wives, and in almost every case the allegations are cruel treatment and failing to provide. In 1900 out of the 63 suits instituted 18 were by the husbands, and for 1901, out of 55 there were only 14 men who were on the boards for legal separation.

The first in the list of divorces for the year just ended was Minnie Hodges vs. Simon Hodges, which was filed on the 11th of January, and the year winds up with Lina Archibald asking that he court sever the bonds existing between her and John Archibald.

The largest number of divorces instituted without a break was 14, beginning the 21st of October and ending the 20th of December, lacking one day of being two months. This number were filed without a suit of any other kind being filed on the equity docket. This is a record never before reached. The largest number without a break in 1900 was seven, but several three and six cases would be instituted without one of any other kind.

THE CASE OF WONG QUONG.

A Chinaman Arrested for One Crime Found Guilty of Another.

Walla Walla, Jan. 2.—The supreme court of the state has affirmed the judgment of the superior court in the case of Wong Quong, a Chinaman convicted of grand larceny. Wong Quong was convicted of stealing a diamond from a ring, and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. From this sentence he appealed.

Wong Quong was a cook at the house of B. D. Crocker. With Mrs. Crocker lived her sister, Mrs. Eleanor Truax O'Neil, now Mrs. Floyd W. Harris, her husband being in the regular army. Mrs. O'Neil lost a diamond, and it was found in the possession of Wong Quong.

At the Dalles a number of years ago Chinamen robbed a bank and fled undetected. Two years ago it was thought that one of the Celestials was in this city, and it was known that a good reward had been offered for the capture of the robbers. Wong Quong was suspected as the guilty Chinaman, and he was arrested on suspicion. When taken to the jail and searched it was found that he was not the man wanted, but on his person was found a diamond for which search had been made without results. The jewel was secreted in a belt closely fitting the body. Arrest for grand larceny, trial and conviction followed.
