Winter Goods Must be Closed Out.

We are putting out all our suits and overcoats, at a big reduction during this sale. You will find our net prices far below the prices of others on the same goods, notwithstanding the big discounts offered by some. The size of the discount does not mean anything to the purchaser; it is the net price that determines whether an article is a bargain.

- Ladies' Waists and Wrappers at a reduction.
- Ladies' Capes and Furs greatly reduced in price.
- Flannelettes and French Flannels at cut prices.

SUPPRESSING VICE.

District Attorney Halley, also mayor of Pendleton, has announced that gambling must stop in this place. The order is promulgated in a statement that argues benefit to the business interests in the prevention of further operation of games—faro, roulette, "21," poker, craps, slot machines and all forms of gambling—and the statement is made that the present intention of the district attorney is to see that the law is enforced during the remainder of his term of service.

District Attorney Halley took an oath so to do when he assumed the duties of his office, and the authority of his position as district attorney is sufficient to enable him to compel entire stoppage of all public gaming in this or any other town in his district. It is the plain letter and spirit of the law of Oregon, and all of the machinery necessary to the carrying out of the announced intention is in his hands. He has the circuit court, as well as the city courts, for the ordinances of the town prohibit the games and bawdy houses as well as do the state statutes.

It cannot be denied that the majority of the business men believe that it will work a detriment to the town, although everyone concedes that the district attorney cannot keep his oath sacred without doing what Mr. Halley is now doing. He argues that it will in the long run be a business benefit, and in no manner a commercial injury. It will be an interesting experiment in municipal management for perhaps no other town on the coast of equal importance does away entirely with such things.

TELEPHONE SERVICE.

Pendleton gets along with telephone appliances that are not up-to-date. The system utilized here by the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph company is post-dated by one much better and convenient. It is the one in which the subscriber calls up central by merely raising the transmitter from the hook, the action being automatic. Pendleton has the old system, necessitating ringing up central, just as telephone subscribers have done for years past.

Over in Walla Walla when the town was using about as many 'phones as are now used in Pendleton, the company installed the later system, and the result has been that now, where 200 'phones were used, 1000 are on the company's lines in that town alone.

Would it not be good business policy for the telephone company to adopt the same plan in Pendleton? If improvements induced Walla Walla to increase the number of 'phones used from 200 to 1000, why is it not logical to assume that considerable augmentation of patronage would result from a like move here? Pendleton people are probably much like Walla Walla as to their general characteristics, and the telephone company might profitably ask its officers to put in a time studying the elements of human nature as manifested hereabouts. If, as would be the case, it is found that Pendletonians are constituted from about the same component parts as are those who live over the line in Washington, then applications of business methods here would bring to the company the same fine increase in patronage that has been recorded there.

PAYING "PETER'S PENCE."

A powerful influence has been exerted to secure the appointment of an American, or at least an Anglo-Saxon or a Frenchman, as apostolic legate from the vatican to the United States. Cardinal Martinelli will be recalled next May, when his term of service expires, and it was represented that the American Catholics would appreciate the selection of one of their own race and blood. But the Italian influence at the vatican is too strong to permit such a thing. Both legates thus far have been Italians, and the next will be of the same race.

The American Catholics should congratulate themselves upon their narrow escape from being placed under the spiritual jurisdiction of a Spaniard. The most influential candidate for the appointment to Washington has been Mery-du-Val, a son of the Spanish ambassador to the vatican and an intimate personal friend of both the pope and Cardinal Rampolla. Perhaps no one except his own relatives has such intimate relations with the pope, and ever since Cardinal Rampolla was papal nuncio at Madrid the Mery-du-Val family has enjoyed its fullest confidence and personal favor. Mery-du-Val, senior, has represented the government of Spain at the vatican for many years, and is the most influential of the ambassadors. Therefore it will be seen that the junior member of the family, who is a bishop and who was attached to the papal household at different times, had unusual influence behind him when he applied for the appointment to Washington. But the pope was too wise to permit such an appointment, for Mery-du-Val is perhaps the most sympathetic of all the prelates in Rome to the Catholics of the United States and hostile to every thing that is American. During the recent war with Spain he was very active in stirring up sentiment against the United States and in trying to persuade the pope to interfere on behalf of his country. He excited the indignation of every American in Rome. He belongs to the extreme conservative faction.

Unless the plan is changed for reasons that are now unforeseen, the successor of Cardinal Martinelli at Washington will be Mgr. Diomede Falcino, metropolitan of the province of Thessaly. He is a Franciscan monk, 58 years old, who spent several years with the members of his order at Allegheny, Pa., and speaks English fluently. In 1899 he was sent to Canada to settle a quarrel between the clergy of the Dominion which grew out of the insanity of the archbishop of Quebec, and has conducted himself with such ability and tact as to command the approval of the papal authorities. His promotion to the legation at Washington is his reward. Although an Italian, he is comparatively liberal, and his experience in foreign countries has made him progressive in his ideas, and he belongs to the younger generation of churchmen of Rome. He has an attractive personality, enjoyed great social popularity when he lived in Rome, and is an eloquent speaker. It is expected that he will be called back to Rome for instructions before his appointment is officially announced.

The influence of the Italians in the affairs of the church can be better understood when it is known that more than half the members of the College of Cardinals are Italians. There are now sixty-seven cardinals, of whom sixty-one have been appointed by Leo XIII since he was elected pope, in February, 1878. Of these, thirty-seven are from Italy, and thirty from the rest of the world—eight from France, seven from Austria, five from Spain, two from Germany, two from Ireland and one each from Poland, England, Portugal, Belgium, Australia and the United States. Three of the Italian cardinals are from Sicily, representing a population of 3,682,722, while there is only one in all America, with a population of 76,000,000. Twenty-two cardinals reside at Rome and are in actual control of the affairs of the church. Of these nineteen are Italians and three are foreigners.

Peter's pence is the sole stay and support of the papal household, and the contributions average about $1,500,000 a year, according to good authority. Nearly one-half of the full amount is contributed by France and the United States combined. Italy, Austria and Spain, the three Catholic countries of Europe, are the three smallest contributors. Ireland, with all its poverty, contributes twenty times as much as Italy, with her thirty-seven cardinals. The contributions from the United States are made through the apostolic legation at Washington, and are greater than all other countries combined with the exception of France and Ireland. As long as the Catholics of these three countries continue to pay the expenses of the vatican the Italians will allow them to do so. The latter explain, however, that while they do not contribute so much as other nations to the direct support of the papal household, they are compelled to support a larger number of priests, bishops, cardinals, monks and nuns than all the rest of the nations put together. This is probably true, but it does not affect the force of the complaint made by the Catholics of America that they are improperly represented at the vatican.

His holiness has shared with the rest of us the benefits of the prosperity wave in the United States, and there was a considerable increase in the contributions for two or three years. Then, when the attempt was made to suppress what is known as "Americanism," there was a falling off.

My little girl's hair did not grow. It was harsh and dry, and would break off, and her scalp was full of dry dandruff that I could not comb out. A piece around the back of her head was bald, and on the top of her head the hair was only two or three inches long. I used CUTICURA SOAP and some CUTICURA Ointment, and her hair has come in thick and as soft as silk. Mrs. A. DOWNEY, Alfred, O.

A Strong Woman

Iowa City, Iowa, Aug. 15, 1900
My wife was sick for three years. We tried everything without relief and spent much money. My wife tried Wine of Cardui and four bottles cured her. She took two more bottles, knowing she would have to work hard during the hay harvest. She attended to all her household duties and loaded and unloaded all the hay. This medicine gave her strength. Formerly she was weak and tired and could hardly get about, but since she has been taking Wine of Cardui she feels better and stronger than when 30 years of age. JOS. A. EISENHAFFER.

Mrs. Eisenhafer had tried everything during her three years sickness and had spent considerable money. She was weak and could hardly get about for three years before she took

WINE OF CARDUI

Now, after taking the Wine of Cardui, she can work with her husband in the hay field. That is hard work, but it is not as injurious to a woman's health as labor in stores, factories and offices where thousands of girls are closely confined year after year. With the aid of Wine of Cardui a woman can do any reasonable work and enjoy good health. The health that Wine of Cardui brings makes a woman vigorous in body and mind. Freed from those terrible devastating pains a woman grows well and strong naturally. Wine of Cardui regulates the disordered menstruation and cures leucorrhoea, falling of the womb and periodical pains in the head and back caused by standing or sitting a long time in the same position. Theford's Black-Draught puts the bowels, stomach, liver, kidneys and blood in proper shape. Greatly increased strength and endurance is the natural result. Most cases are cured quickly. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui and 25 cent packages of Theford's Black-Draught.

Nasal CATARRH

In its stages there should be cleanliness.

Ely's Cream Balm cleanses, soothes and relieves the diseased membrane. It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head quickly.

Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents by mail.
