The advocates of Cuban reciprocity are very much depressed. The hearings in the house have been very decidedly discouraging to them. Even the Cubans themselves made a poor showing. A majority of the ways and means committee can not be counted in favor even of a limited reciprocity, although only one democrat will vote against it.

NEW YORK LETTER

MATTERS OF INTEREST FROM THE METROPOLIS

Prince Henry and Other Topics That Engross Attention There.

New York, Jan. 25.—When Prince Henry of Prussia makes his much discussed visit to this country next month New York will do its share of entertaining, and it is not exaggeration to state that even his highness' eyes will open in amazement at the splendid elegance with which Americans do things. Preparations for the royal visitor in Gotham are proceeding rapidly. Mayor Low has arranged to receive him at the dock at West Thirty-fourth street and there will be a large and representative committee to arrange the proper welcome. By a strange coincidence the Prince arrives in this country on the same day that the anniversary of George Washington's birthday is celebrated, so he will see New York in double array of splendor, one for the father of his country, the other for himself.

Although no announcement has yet been made of society's plans for the fit entertainment of Prince Henry when he arrives in particular is the launching of his imperial brother's yacht, it may be taken for granted that the representatives of the fashionable world will not miss the most attractive opportunity of showing their mettle that has presented itself since the memorable visit of King Edward VII. of England, then Prince of Wales, forty years ago.

Next Wednesday being the anniversary of the birthday of the late President McKinley, Governor Odell has issued a proclamation recommending that exercises be held in the schools of the state suitable for the occasion and that the flags be displayed upon public buildings. The New York board of trade and transportation will celebrate the day with a dinner to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria. Ex-Postmaster General Chas. Emory Smith will deliver the eulogy on the late president and Admiral Dewey will be present.

No other career in New York politics not even Governor Odell's or Mayor Low's will be watched with greater interest the next few months than Lewis Nixon's, whom Richard Croker has appointed to succeed him in Tammany hall. While many people believe that Mr. Nixon is simply a figure head for Croker and will retire whenever the latter, having won the English Derby and weary of Wantage, desires to return to politics, it is said in behalf of Mr. Nixon—and by the majority—that his remarkable record in the navy and in business shows that he is too strong a man to consent to occupy the position of a figurehead. It takes no unusual prescience to predict that if Mr. Nixon makes a success of his leadership of Tammany hall, he will be a power in the politics of the state and nation.

At last the four great sandstone images of the evangelists, presented to famous old Trinity church by Fitzhugh Westinghouse, have been raised to the tower niches that have been waiting for them for fifty years. This completes in every detail the outside decoration of the fine old structure. The statues were made in London and are ten feet in height, and weigh three tons apiece. It is doubtful if any church in the country has a more beautiful exterior than Old Trinity. The outside of the doors of the vestibules as well as those leading into the church proper are elegantly carved with historical pictures and are of expensive iron and brass. A vast sum of money has been expended upon the edifice and New York is justly proud of the historical old building.

In connection with the matters religious it may be stated that the Rev. Dr. Ross Stevenson has been called to the chair of ecclesiastical history at McCormack's seminary, Chicago. To fill the pulpit of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church and will receive the largest salary of any New York clergyman. The church is composed of probably the richest membership in the metropolis, the majority of its worshippers being multi-millionaires. In fact it is one of the wealthiest in the country and its pulpit was made famous by the Rev. Dr. John Hall.

Wall street is anxiously awaiting the decision of the supreme court in connection with the attack of the Minnesota authorities on the Northern Securities Company, which will be announced on Monday. The general impression in the street at present is that it will be adverse to Governor Van Sant and his associates. This company was formed under the advice of the best legal talent in the country, and it will be surprising if all of these corporation lawyers have been in error in their interpretation of the laws of the different states. Until the question of the legality of this controlling company is resolved it is hardly probable that there will be great activity on the bull side.

The plan set afloat by a number of New York sporting men to govern boxing all over the United States by the formation of a so-called protective association has caused an emphatic protest from the men interested in promoting the sport in Chicago and other cities where glove contests are permitted to flourish. The Chicago promoters say that the new organization cannot enforce its rule for the simple reason that there is no boxing in New York state, and that fighters will not recognize the right of any one to disqualify them from the privilege of accepting matches wherever offered.

Further the Chicago men aver that if there is to be a governing board to control boxing in America it should be far reaching and include in its membership those who are prominent in fostering the sport by the liberal outlay of money in the shape of purses hung up for competition. In other words the impression prevails in the Windy city that there is no apparent reason why New Yorkers should take it upon themselves to rule the boxing game without first consulting those who are actually engaged in promoting it in other cities. So far the present movement is at a standstill and metropolitan sports are wondering just what plans to adopt to have their wishes in this matter realized.
