PLAGUE OF SWINE

HOGS ARE DYING FROM SOME BAD INFECTION

Matter Demands Attention of the Authorities—Has been Kept Somewhat Quiet but Losses are Known to have been Heavy.

Rumor has it that many hogs are dying in different parts of the county from some infectious disease which has been raging in some places since last summer. Those who are losing hogs are loath to give out information for fear the hogs would be quarantined and killed. The disease has now a fearful hold on many herds and is causing considerable alarm among raisers. In several cases, Dr. Christie, veterinary surgeon, has been called to investigate and he pronounces it the regular old eastern hog cholera, which is feared above anything else by dealers in the East, but has heretofore been practically unknown in this country.

It is said that out of one band on the reservation, six hogs have died in the past few days, and others are infected. In addition to those dying on McKay creek, as published in the East Oregonian last week, Pat Kine, living at the west end of town, has lost 60 head. This fact has just leaked out, as those living around him have tried to keep it quiet, thinking that it was not cholera and would die out without further fatalities.

It has now come to a point when something will have to be done. The infected herds will have to be quarantined and killed or the whole country will suffer from the plague. State Veterinary Surgeon McLean, of Portland, has been informed, and as soon as he is heard from, steps will be taken to check the spread of the disease.

Following is what the law of the state of Oregon, enacted by the legislative body of 1895, has to say on the preventing of the spread of contagious disease among animals:

The Law.

"To amend an act entitled an act to prevent the spread of contagious animal diseases, approved February 25, 1889:

"Section 1.—That section six of an act entitled an act to prevent the spread of contagious animal diseases, approved February 25, 1889, be, and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 6.—It shall be the duty of said state veterinarian, upon the receipt of such information from a stock inspector of any county that any contagious or infectious disease does exist, to immediately examine, or deputize a competent person to examine all animals reported to be diseased, and if he finds that such animals are infected with a contagious or infectious disease, he shall take such measures as he may deem expedient and necessary to prevent the spread of the disease; he shall also immediately notify the commission of his actions, which shall be subject to the approval of the commission, who shall subsequently instruct him to proceed, and prescribe such rules and regulations as in their judgment the exigencies of the case may require for the effectual suppression and eradication of the disease; and for that purpose the state veterinarian may list and describe the domestic animals affected with such diseases and those which have been exposed thereto and included within the infected district or premises, so defined and quarantined with such reasonable certainty as would lead to their identification; and no domestic animal liable to become infected with the disease, or capable of communicating the same, shall be permitted to enter or leave the district, premises or grounds quarantined, except by the authority of the commission. When, in the opinion of the commission, it shall be necessary, to prevent the spread of contagious or infectious diseases among livestock of the state, to destroy animals affected with, or which have been exposed to any such disease, it shall be determined what animals shall be killed, and appraise the same as hereinafter provided, and cause the same to be killed and the carcasses disposed of as in their judgment will best protect the health of domestic animals of the locality. When, in the opinion of the commission, any of the livestock of the state are infected with tuberculosis the commission shall have the power to instruct and authorize the state veterinarian to apply to such animals as are suspected of having tuberculosis the 'tuberculin' test." Approved February 25, 1895.

ISLAND CITY-COVE ROAD MAY BE PUT THROUGH.

Company Has a Survey—Electric Power to Be Used, When Warranted.

La Grande, Jan. 27.—Survey is completed and right of way will now be secured for the Island City-Cove railroad. S. F. Shaw, the engineer in charge, reports a very easy grade where a road can be built at a nominal expense. The route is on the south side of the river for six or seven miles to the Hardy Harold farm, then across the river to Nibley and east to Cove. It runs through the finest body of best land in the valley which is thus made tributary to the La Grande sugar factory in La Grande. The land is tapped for its great variety and quantity of products.

J. M. Church, president of the company, says there is no certainty of the road being built, but the company will proceed at once to get the right of way. It is thought the road will be of such value to the people on the route that they will not hesitate to give the right of way.

The distance is 15 miles and a survey made to Red Pepper and Conway Spur was thirteen miles long. The motive power will be steam at first, with a change to electricity as business demands. The company owns a power site at Cove, secured last summer when they first organized. It is at the falls of Mill creek and will develop 200 horse power at the lowest stage of water.

The members of the company are J. M. Church, F. S. Stanley, J. M. Berry, N. K. West, J. L. Caviness, M. L. Causey, M. B. Reece, A. B. Conley, George Miller, George B. Stoddard, C. W. Nibley and E. P. McDaniel. The company already has sufficient ties and rails for the road and expect if they build to haul out next year's crop.

WALLA WALLA SHORT OF WATER IN SYSTEM.

Supply Somewhat Limited, Especially Since Cold Weather Came On.

Walla Walla, Jan. 27.—The cold snap which has held the Walla Walla valley in its unrelenting grip for three or four days, has already caused anxiety among the city councilmen, for the supply of water has been affected as never before. The excessive use of water in allowing taps to run to prevent freezing and the shortage in supply caused by the intense freezing have worked together to cause a shortage in the reservoirs, and the water department has issued an order that all taps be closed and water carefully used. This is the first time that anxiety has been felt for the supply of pure water in this city. The city has grown wonderfully during the past two years and the water system has been extended in many directions. Yet the supply has not been enlarged and when an unusual call comes the system is found inadequate. The city paid $200,000 for the plant in 1900.
