AN INSPECTORSHIP

WILL PARSONS HOLDS

EXCELLENT POSITION.

Is an Officer in the Constabulary of the Philippines, Living at Tarlac.

Will Parsons, son of Colonel and Mrs. William Parsons, of this city, who was a Philippine volunteer, now holds a fine position in the inspectorship of the native constabulary of the Islands, having a commission and living in Tarlac. Tarlac is a town of about 30,000 population, 40 miles from Malolos, which, being 40 miles north of Manila, makes Tarlac 80 miles from the Philippine capital.

Parsons writes regarding the na tive contingent, saying that, notwithstanding its rather conglomerate character, it is effective, and composed of men who are willing to do their duty, and who make good constabularies. In the forces are Filipinos, Portuguese, Spaniards, Mestizos and East Indians. They are all drilled, ready to do their duty, and have never failed to perform any service required of them.

His letter states that the province possess one advantage over Ameriuses of policing the islands perform almost as efficient services. Then, too, they understand the country and get over it even more easily than the Hobson is a Busy Man.

Captain Hobson seems to be a very busy young man. It appears he is interested in cotton and contemplates entering politics; meanwhile he has charge of the navy exhibit at Charleston. And then he is doing some speechmaking from time to time, and incidentally, according to some of the special dispatches, he is getting engaged to be married.
