CITY COUNCIL ACTS

J. A. BLAKLEY, MARSHAL,
JOHN McCOURT, RECORDER.

The Old Officers Still Refuse to Retire and the Matter Will Have to Be Settled by the Courts.
Who is city marshal and who is recorder?

This is the question that every citizen in Pendleton is asking and would like to have answered. Last night the city council appointed Joseph A. Blakley marshal, and John McCourt recorder, to fill the places of Marshal Heathman and Recorder Beam, which were declared vacant. This was the first meeting of the council, when all the members were present, since Judge Ellis dissolved the injunction filed by Heathman and Beam against Mayor Halley and Councilmen Clopton, Johnson, Wells and Dickson, restraining them from electing men to succeed the incumbents of the marshal's and recorder's office. The rumor had spread that some action would be taken in the city fight, and the city hall was crowded with spectators, many of them went there expecting to see trouble, as a hot fight was expected. However, they were disappointed in this and, although the councilmen lined up four on a side, just as they have since the beginning of the fight, there was little friction and one faction was as determined as the other, but every member kept his head remarkably well and the meeting passed off good naturedly.

When the meeting was called to order the first move made was by Councilman Clopton, who asked City Attorney Carter if a councilman who removed from one ward to another was disqualified, and Mr. Carter replied that it did not. This applied to Clopton and Switzer, who had recently removed from one ward to another. The next question was, if the mayor had a right to decide in case of a tie vote by the council and then affirm the result. The city attorney replied to this by saying that he looked up the matter thoroughly and that the mayor had this right. Mr. Clopton then presented a motion declaring the office of recorder vacant and Councilman Johnson seconded it. Councilman Hartman objected and called for a division. Clopton, Johnson, Dickson and Wells voted "yes," and Hartman, Somerville, Switzer and Frazier lined up against it. Mayor Halley broke the tie by casting his vote in favor of the resolution and declared it passed. Clopton then moved to elect a new recorder. This move was seconded and received four votes for and four against and the mayor decided in its favor. John McCourt was nominated to take this place and the same proceedings followed as before. Mr. McCourt was present with his bonds in the sum of $5000, signed by Conrad Platzoder and James Neagle, as sureties, and the oath of office was administered by the city attorney, who had his seal present for the occasion, and Mr. McCourt was declared duly elected recorder by the mayor and told to take possession of the office. He presented a written request to Mr. Beam, informing him that he, (McCourt) had been elected to take the place of recorder and asking that Beam transfer the books and paraphernalia of the office to him. To this Beam demurred and refused to affix his name to the paper. McCourt was then given a seat on the opposite side of the table and began his duties of recording the minutes of the meeting. Councilman Hartman instructed Beam to continue taking the minutes also, and from that time on two sets of minutes of the proceedings were kept. Beam then arose, after a few minutes' whispered conversation with his attorney, Walter Pierce, put the records in the safe and locked the door.

The recordership disposed of, the name of Joe Blakley for marshal was proposed by Clopton and the same proceedings followed as in the election of a recorder. Mr. Blakley was present and was also prepared with his bonds for $2000, signed by Joe Basler and Godfrey Neuman. The oath of office was administered to him and he was declared the duly elected marshal. He demanded the surrender of the city's property belonging to this office, in the possession of Marshal Heathman, and was refused by that gentleman.

The council then acted upon the salaries and bills against the city for February, ordering them paid. Clopton moved that the new recorder, John McCourt, be instructed to fill out the warrants. Several petitions for liquor licenses were presented and Hartman moved that these be signed by acting Recorder Beam. Clopton moved an amendment to the motion, inserting the name of McCourt in place of Beam. This carried, the mayor deciding in favor of the amendment.

The Recorder.

John McCourt, the new recorder, is an attorney in Pendleton. He came to Pendleton from Salem in June, 1900. He was born in Canada in 1874. He served one term in the Oregon legislature from Marion county, from 1898 to 1900. He served for some time as assistant attorney-general of Oregon under Attorney-General D. R. N. Blackburn. Mr. McCourt is a popular man and one who has ability for the office. Mr. McCourt is a republican.

The Marshal.

J. A. Blakley, who succeeds Marshal Heathman, as city marshal, is a brother of Sheriff Blakley. He is well known and well thought of as an official and a man. He has served for several years as deputy sheriff. He was born in Lane county, Oregon, in 1856. He came to Eastern Oregon in 1878 and has made this section his abiding place since. He was appointed sheriff of Gilliam county by Governor Moody, although a democrat, when that county was founded in 1882, and two years later he was elected to succeed himself. His brother, George Blakley, is county judge of Wasco county.

An Injunction Issued.

The Heathman-Beam men in the council, and their attorneys, Stillman & Pierce, had anticipated another move would be made last night to oust Heathman and Beam from their offices, so injunction papers had been drawn up before hand and were signed last night after the meeting.

The injunctions are the same as the ones filed when the fight first began over the election of William Lane and L. G. Frazier, 45 days ago, to succeed Heathman and Beam. They pray the court to issue a writ of injunction against J. A. Blakley and John McCourt, as principals, and Councilmen Clopton, Johnson, Dickson and Wells, and Mayor Halley, prohibiting Blakley and McCourt, from proceeding further in attempting to act as marshal and recorder, and from molesting the plaintiffs in their duty as such officers, and enjoin the other defendants from attempting to act as marshal and recorder, and from molesting the plaintiffs in their duty as such officers, and enjoin the other defendants named, from attempting to have the bonds of the new officers filed as the official bonds for these offices. This order was signed and filed this morning by County Judge Hartman.

J. A. Blakley and John McCourt filed petitions with the county clerk this morning, petitioning Judge Ellis to issue a writ of mandamus directed to said defendants commanding them to surrender to plaintiffs the possession of the city jail and the keys thereto with all other property belonging to the marshal and recorder's offices or show cause why they have not done so. T. G. Halley and John McCourt are the attorneys for plaintiffs, and the petition is to be acted upon by Judge Ellis this afternoon.

FIGHT AT ATHENA.

Fred Poehler Struck With a Piece of Scantling and his Arm Broken.

When the W. & C. R. train arrived in Athena Wednesday afternoon, a fight was indulged in between some of the crew and Charles Gay, in which blows were resorted to and Express Messenger Fred Poehler received a broken arm.

The trouble arose over the incoming train bumping against freight cars Mr. Gay was loading with wheat. This angered Gay and he and Conductor Hoover mixed in a fistie encounter. During the scrap Mr. Poehler struck Mr. Gay in the eye. They were then separated by G. W. Bradley and A. B. McEwen, and Gay asked who struck him. On being informed that it was the express messenger, he seized a piece of scantling and raised it to strike. Mr. Poehler threw up his arm to protect himself and the arm was broken by the blow. About this time, the marshal appeared on the scene and the fighters gave bonds to appear at Athena Friday for trial.
