WE MUST RESPECT AUTHORITY.

Now that the city council has duly elected a marshal and recorder to succeed the present incumbents of those offices, it is meet and proper for the old officers to step down and out gracefully, for the power and the law is against them.

The authority of the law should not be longer questioned. The council has power to elect a marshal or to remove them from office, and it has announced its preference in no uncertain voice, so the decision should be accepted by all concerned.

If those who are put in authority are not to have authority, matters will come to a pretty pass, until there will be no government at all in Pendleton. If every man who wants office is to have his own way, scrambles for office will increase and chaos will take the place of order.

It is a waste of time and energy to keep alive hopes that have to be buried in the end and to attempt to continue Heathman as marshal and Beam as recorder in spite of the council's action, is to fly in the face of law and add embarrassment to failure.

It is a hopeless, empty undertaking. It is time to call the curtain down.

A DESERVED REWARD.

Mr. B. Campbell, for many years the head of the traffic department of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company has been selected by Mr. Stubbs to be assistant traffic manager of the Harriman lines, with headquarters in Chicago.

Mr. Campbell has been in the service of railroads ever since he was a boy. He knows the rights of a railroad and he respects the rights of the people. He is a sterling, honest man in every way, forceful, resourceful and untiring.

CONDITION OF THE STREETS.

The streets of Pendleton have been neglected for 10, these many years. Property owners have been allowed to improve them or not as they chose, and hardly have the property owners ever acted together, with the result that there is no regularity in the streets and little in the sidewalks. These "marks of the country town" should be eliminated and a good time to begin is this year.

Because of circumstances over which no one had control, Webb street, the best thoroughfare in the city, is in a deplorable condition and made worse every day because of the uses it is put to and the fact that the railroad track in the middle of it is away above the level of the street, forcing travel on both sides of it, which is fast destroying all semblance of a street.

In any event Webb street should be put in order, and that right away. Its condition has been an disgrace to the good name of Pendleton for almost a year past.

THE ORIGIN OF NAMES.

The origin of names, even those of greatest importance, often depends on accidental circumstances, which it is impossible to trace to their real sources. England got its name from the Angles and France from the Franks; but the origin of the name of Rome is unknown.

One of the most curious of these or similar inquiries relates to the manner in which the name America came to be applied to the continents of the western hemisphere. It is familiar enough the name is that of Amerigo Vespucci, the Italian navigator; but Amerigo never laid claim to the original discovery, and died without knowing that his name was to be thus immortalized.

Following the discovery of Columbus, Vespucci made several voyages—how many cannot be known, with certainty. Some say two in the service of the king of Portugal and two in the service of the king of Spain. Whatever the number of his voyages, they were made during the lifetime of Columbus, and the authority for them rests upon letters written by himself, which no longer exist in the originals.

The New Jersey assembly, after a long and humorous debate, passed the mosquito extermination bill by a vote of 48 to 9. The bill appropriates $10,000 to the state experimental station for the purpose of making a scientific investigation of the habits, origin and their relation to malarial and other diseases.

Hylacompylus says he made his Latin version from the French. Italian, Spanish and Portuguese versions also existed. They seem to have emanated from a common source, and not from each other; therefore it is not conceivable that there were no genuine originals.

The name America passed very slowly into use among the English. No copy or version of the Amerigo letters was published in England, and there is no record of them there till after the lapse of a long period. Curiously enough, the first mention of Amerigo in England was in a play written and published at an early stage in the development of English dramatic literature.

The streets of Pendleton have been neglected for 10, these many years. Property owners have been allowed to improve them or not as they chose, and hardly have the property to its perfection in the Elizabethan ear. A morality was a play enforcing a moral truth or lesson by means of speech and action of characters which may be personified as abstractions—figures representing virtues and vices, qualities of the human mind, or conceptions in general. The lesson which the play was designed to teach was the advantage of the pursuit of science.

This sort of inquiry is much pursued in our time. Our American institutions of learning are devoting large effort an increasing effort to all subjects relating to the history and antiquities of America. Sources of information that once were passed over without curiosity or interest are now eagerly explored.

The republican primary election will be held in Portland and Multnomah county on March 15.

When I bought that bottle of Herpicide a few months ago, like the majority of such preparations, I thought it would prove a fake, but I am happy to state that it does, and even more, than you claim for it. My hair is growing rapidly, luxuriantly.

Blood Poison

THE MOST DESTRUCTIVE OF ALL HUMAN DISEASES.

The poison ejected from the fangs of the rattlesnake is not more surely fatal than the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, which pollutes and vitiates the blood, destroys the tissues and bones and eats like a canker sore into the flesh.

This disease appears first in the form of a little sore or blister; soon the glands begin to swell, pimples break out on the body, the mouth and throat become sore, making it painful to eat or swallow; dreadful ulcers appear on the tongue, copper colored spots and other characteristic signs of Blood Poison come as the disease progresses, and the destructive virus takes deeper hold upon the system.

OUR FREE HOME TREATMENT.

Our book on Contagious Blood Poison gives more information about this disease than you can possibly get from any other source. It describes accurately and fully the symptoms as they appear in each stage of the malady, enabling the reader to correctly diagnose his own case, and, by following the instructions laid down in this book, to successfully treat himself at home.

S. S. S. has for nearly 50 years been known and used as a remedy for this dreadful disease. Gently, but thoroughly, it removes all traces of the poison without the least injury to the system.
