

POPE HAS HIS DAY

Celebrates His Silver Jubilee With Great Pomp.

CARRIED HIGH IN CHAIR INTO ST. PETER'S.

Crowd of Thousands, When Leo Entered, Cried in One Voice, Which was a Great Shout: "Long Live Pope, the King."

Rome, March 3.—The pope was in arriving at the silver jubilee places this morning, but the big audience awaited his coming with patience.

"Long Live Pope, the King."

Silver trumpets sounded the approach of the pontifical procession. It came the jeweled cross, carried by white-clad youths, then the religious orders of the monks, functionaries, archbishops, bishops and presbyters of all grades; finally the cardinals and his holiness entered, clad in gorgeous robes of white, red and gold. Pope Leo wore a triple crown and was carried aloft in a chair flanked by waving peacock fans. The crowd was silent until the pope entered and then with one voice it shouted: "Long live the pope, the king."

His holiness took no part in the service, which was conducted by the cardinals. After the service the pontiff gave his blessing, showing great emotion and some weakness of voice.

SEVENTY-FOUR YEARS A POPE.

His Day is Celebrated With Great Pomp and Ceremony.

Rome, March 3.—The pope celebrated the twenty-fourth anniversary of his coronation, and the jubilee of his pontificate today with great solemnity. The service was the most impressive in years. The Sistine chapel was crowded with cardinals, bishops and other dignitaries of the church, delegates from Catholic organizations from all parts of the world, the Italian and foreign representatives of the religious orders, and thousands of lay spectators. Several hundred Americans were among the guests present. The bright robes of the cardinals and the full dress of the Pontifical Noble Guard gave a brilliant coloring to the spectacle. Cardinal Rampolla, as archbishop of St. Peter's, officiated at the celebration of a solemn Te Deum, assisted by numerous cardinals, bishops and inferior clergy. The services terminated in impressive ceremonies attending the presentation of the triple crown to his holiness. The crown is made of gold, and encrusted with diamonds and rubies, the cost of which having been subscribed by Catholics throughout the world. The final presentation was made by Cardinal Respighi, the pope's vicar general and president of the international committee for the jubilee celebrations.

During the course of the day the pope received in audience, in the same room, the missions sent by the sovereigns of Europe who presented His Holiness with messages of congratulation. The grounds of the Vatican were crowded with pilgrims throughout the day. During the jubilee services the basilica was open to the public and it was filled to overflowing. It is estimated that the crowd inside and outside reached a total of less than 100,000 persons. Pope Leo XIII. (Vincenzo Gioacchino Pecci) was born at Carpineto, Italy, March 2, 1810, and was elected pope February 20, 1878, after the death of Pope Pius IX., which occurred February 7, 1878. Pope Leo was crowned March 3, 1878.
