COUNTY COURT ADJOURNS.

Bills All Allowed and Other Business Finished Saturday.

After being in session from Wednesday and the county court closed Monday forenoon, after allowing the regular bills against the county for the two first months of the year, and transacting a little other unimportant business. At Saturday's session two liquor licenses were granted for six months duration—one to J. D. Shipp, of Alba, and the other to J. H. Tomlinson, of Umatilla. The bills allowed the last day of the session were:

New County Physician.
The resignation of Dr. F. W. Vincent, county physician, was accepted by the court this morning, and Dr. W. G. Cole appointed to succeed him. There were two applicants for the place—Dr. W. G. Cole and Dr. J. F. McPaul. The former's bid was $35 per month for doing all the county doctoring within two miles of the court house, and the latter's bid was $30 for the same territory. Judge Hartman voted for McPaul, but Commissioners Gilliland and Walker voted for Cole and, they being the majority, he was appointed under protest. Dr. McPaul is a democrat and so is Judge Hartman, and Dr. Cole, Commissioners Walker and Gilliland are republicans.

THE PARISH PRIEST.
Daniel Sully will be at the Frazer Next Wednesday.

"The Parish Priest," which plays a one night engagement at the Frazer on Wednesday, March 12, will be found by theater-goers a delightful play, where dramatic effect is sacrificed for naturalness and the heart, not the backbone, is appealed to by the dramatist. It reproduces Pennsylvania life with all the beauties of the Wyoming valley, made famous by the poet, John Boyle O'Reilly, telling a simple little love story that creeps out over the footlights into the hearts of the auditors and the graceful unraveling produces smiles and tears. It is a human story, a story of home where the glow of the peaceful firelights, the happy faces of reunited friends, who at sunset were separated, as they thought, forever. In that glow is Father Wallen, who by arts diplomatic has brought the happiness of his friends. In so doing he has unconsciously placed himself in positions where for a time he is denounced by those he has attempted to befriend. Comedy and pathos result from these complications which develop the peculiarities of the characters who are always interesting. There is much that is novel in the development of the simple story which glistens with incidents that are new. One of the beautiful scenes is the making of the chair by the brothers in act second. It is these mere incidents that appeal to audiences and awaken their enthusiasm. As Father Whalen, Mr. Sully has a character which demands from him more artistic work than any of his previous successes. He has surprised the most ardent of his admirers and has scored an individual success long and pleasantly to be remembered. The play has made long runs in New York, Boston and Chicago.

Bullet Through the Window.
It will be well for those who go out on the hills Sunday afternoons and at other times to shoot squirrels or at marks with a gun, to get out of reach of town or be a little more careful as to how they handle their shooting irons. Sunday afternoon Barney Crowner, who lives on West Railroad street, was startled by a bullet crashing through the window and at first he thought it was a stone from a slingshot, but after looking around, the ball, which was from a 22-calibre gun, was found on the floor. It passed through the window glass, struck a chair and fell to the floor.

HE WAS FROM MISSOURI.
And the Baggage Man of the O. R. & N. Had to Show Him.

A rather amusing incident occurred on the platform of the O. R. & N. depot one evening last week. Two trains are due to leave the depot at about the same time, and when the train going west comes in and there are any passengers going toward Spokane with baggage, this has to be transferred from the west-bound to the east-bound train. This particular evening there was a large, husky young fellow who had come from Missouri and was going to Spokane. He got off the train and was keeping his eye on his trunk, which had been taken out of the baggage car of one train to be transferred to the other. When the baggage man took hold of the trunk to load it on the truck to take it across the platform the owner walked up to him, slapped him on the shoulder and said:

"Look here, sir; what are you going to do with my trunk?"

The baggage man was in a hurry, and after looking at the fellow for a moment asked him where he was from. He replied:

"I'm from Missouri, and I want you to understand you can't steal my trunk and run off with it in broad daylight." At the same time the big Missourian was doubling up his fists evidently with the intention of showing the baggage man that he was going to be as good as his word. It took several minutes to explain to the traveler what was going to be done with the trunk and then he let the railroad man take it to the other train. The incident caused a great deal of amusement for those who saw it.

ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY.

Andrew Farman Accused of Larceny From a Dwelling.

Saturday, while Elmer Hale and family were in town from their home, three miles from Pendleton, on the Wild Horse creek, some person or persons entered his house and robbed it of a ladies' gold watch, a finger ring, cuff buttons and other small trinkets. The officers were notified and James Stamper arrested a man named Andrew Farman, near Athena, who was suspected of being the thief. Three comrades of Farman were arrested at the same time, but they were released for lack of evidence, but he was brought to the county jail, where he awaits further developments. Farman was seen this afternoon, by a reporter for the East Oregonian, and he denied knowing why he was arrested. In answer to a question the prisoner said: "I came here three or four days ago from Seattle and was cooking my dinner up the road here, when a man walked up to me and put me under arrest. I have worked around Seattle since last fall, when I came down from the Klondike. I am originally from Fort Scott, Kan."

He is a young fellow and looks like a foreigner, although he says he is a native born and of English descent. He is a very hard-looking character.
