SUED THE MINSTRELS.

The Parading of the Show People and Their Band Caused Enright's Horse to Run Away.

Action has been brought in Judge Fitz Gerald's court by James Enright, to recover $100 damages from the Barlow Minstrel Company, which played here Tuesday night. Mr. Enright is agent for a sewing machine company, with an office at the corner of Court and Thompson streets, and had his team tied to a rack near his place of business, when the minstrels were parading Tuesday afternoon. The paraders were going up Court street and when near Enright's team the band began playing and the racket caused the horses to break loose. In the runaway that followed the hack was badly damaged and one of the horses was injured, which is the grounds on which action is brought for damages. Mr. Enright secured a lawyer, who went to the manager of the company and demanded pay for the loss, but this was refused and arrangements were made to fight the suit.

BOY'S HORRIBLE TRIAL.

Fell into a Burning Haystack and Burned Almost to Death.

The 9-year-old son of Mr. Sliger, a farmer, was nearly burned to death Tuesday, near Albion, in Spokane county. A strawstack had been set on fire and burned at the bottom of one side, leaving the top whole. The lad climbed to the top of the stack and fell down into the supposed ashes, but what was really living fire. His body to the waist is burned nearly to the bone, several toes of both feet being burned off. But for his woolen shirt he would have been burned to death before his sad plight was discovered. He wandered away from the stack by himself and was trying to get to the house, some distance from the place of the accident, when found. He was nearly strangled with smoke and ashes and the blisters on his feet and limbs were broken, and his suffering was terrible. He is in a serious condition.

A Bicycle Cost $2000.

P. J. Scharback, whose invention of a changeable gear for chainless bicycles was mentioned some time ago, has received from Chicago a sample bicycle made according to the plans and specifications furnished by him, says the Oregonian. It is a very handsome machine, as well it may be, having cost him altogether $2000. The gear can be changed by simply moving a lever so as to make 86, 57, or 36 revolutions in a given time, by which the rider can surmount the steepest grade without difficulty. Mr. Scharback was formerly a blacksmith at Woodburn, who, although not a bicyclist, studied out this wonderful invention.

Governor Pardoned Him.

Governor Geer on Tuesday commuted the sentence of Claud McHargue, serving a term of four years for forgery in Linn county. McHargue had served three years. He has been ill for a long time with consumption, and the last few days suffered several severe hemorrhages. McHargue was formerly an inmate of the reform school. He accompanied his father to Linn county. He is not expected to live long.

Cementing Gables.

To plaster gables with cement use a good quality of slow setting portland cement with about equal proportions of clean, sharp sand and apply as ordinary plaster. If it is desired to ornament it in any way, such as inserting bits of glass, stone or gravel, these should be put in place while the cement is fresh. When the cement is in place, it should be kept moist by frequent wetting until the work is entirely finished.

"SKOOKUM SPRING."

A Fine Supply of Water in the Dry Sands.

A curious natural phenomenon exists in section 11, township 14, range 29, of Franklin county, Washington, near Pasco, in the sheep country. Here, after traveling miles and miles of sand and sagebrush, apparently not within a day's distance of water, the traveler suddenly comes on a living spring, where a stream of fresh water as big as a man's arm above the elbow, gushes forth the year around. This the Indians in former days termed "Skookum" spring. "Skookum" means good.

Set down in a 'pot hole,' with cliffs rising perpendicularly hundreds of feet high on nearly every side, the natural wonder is how there comes to be such a magnificent oasis in such a sandy desert as western Franklin. There is a feature still more remarkable. Year after year the water gushes out and runs in little streams among the stones into a large pool three acres in extent. The pool is only a few yards away, and hedged in on every side save one, has no apparent outlet. No water ever escapes over the surface of the ground from it, yet it never gets any bigger or any smaller, though the source of supply is undiminished. Few people have seen Skookum spring. Those who have offer the explanation of subterranean outlet.

For years the pool from Skookum spring has been the watering place for thousands of sheep, for wild horses, coyotes and all of the denizens of that country, in a district where the sand is so deep that agriculture would be impossible without irrigation. It is 18 miles from the white bluffs of the Columbia.

A SURPRISED AMERICAN.

His Talk in 1890 With a Young German Whom He Did Not Know.

One summer day in 1890 a New Yorker visiting Berlin, strolled to the Lustgarten, and, sitting on one of the benches, contemplated the various fine buildings around him. He did not know his bearings very well, and, in halting German, asked some questions of a young man who had sat down beside him.

This young man was unmistakably a German, but he replied in perfect English, remarking that he presumed his interlocutor was either an Englishman or an American. The couple chatted for half an hour and the American became more and more astonished at the minuteness of the other's knowledge of the archaeology of Berlin. He knew the history of every building in sight, told the American just these things that the guidebooks do not tell, and, withal, was so courteous and unaffectedly cordial that the heart of the tourist warmed to his unknown guide.

At length the conversation drifted from the past to the present, and the New Yorker made a remark about the opinion held in America of the kaiser. In those days the young "war lord" was regarded as a dangerous firebrand—as an irresponsible monarch who might any day plunge Europe into conflict. It was even said that he had shown evidence of insanity.

When this subject arose the young German suddenly changed from a giver of information to a seeker of it, asking eagerly for details of the reports about the kaiser current in America. These the New Yorker furnished to the best of his ability, and ended by asking: "What do you personally think of him?"

"I am afraid," replied the young man, "that my opinion on the subject is not of much value. I am the kaiser myself."

The American sprang to his feet with amazement. The emperor cut his apologies short.

"My friend," he said, "you have done me a service. It is hard for me to learn the truth about what is said of me—just as hard as it is for people far away to learn the truth about me. But, with God's help, I will show that what is said about me is wrong." "And no one," says the American in telling the story nowadays, "need say anything about the kaiser to me. I know a man when I see one." It has taken the world many years to find out how wrong was its estimate of the ruler of the German nation, but it has found it out now, or, at any rate, those whose opinion is worth anything have done so. Twelve years ago people talked of "the mad emperor." Nowdays he is referred to as "the cleverest man in Europe." The latter view, according to those who know him best, is far from being an exaggeration.—New York Times.

Take Charge of War College.

Washington, March 12.—General Samuel Young was relieved today by the direction of the president, of command of the department of California, and ordered to proceed immediately to this city to take charge of the American War College.

Freight Traffic Tied Up.

Butte, Mont., March 13.—The strike on the Northern Pacific will not spread, as the men at Butte and Helena refuse to join the strikers, claiming the strike to be illegal, and unauthorized. The freight traffic is tied up on the Rocky Mountain division, from Helena to Hope, Idaho.

Killed Woman Suffrage Bill.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 13.—The house today killed the woman suffrage bill. The bill passed the senate, which, and, it was believed by the suffragists, insured its final success.

Good Roads and Free Delivery.

According to a western paper, land in its section, along one of the newly established rural free postal delivery routes, has increased from $2 to $5 per acre. This is another argument in favor of extending rural free delivery, and it is indirectly an argument in favor of good roads.—Saratoga (N. Y.) Saratogian.

WHITMAN GLEE CLUB.

Will Give an Entertainment at Frazer's Saturday Night.

The Whitman College Glee Club gives an entertainment at Frazer's, in Pendleton, next Saturday night. The Lewiston Tribune speaks as follows of the club's appearance in that city:

"The Whitman College Glee Club is a credit to the prominent northwest educational institution that the club represents. The club last night did not simply please a large Lewiston audience at the opera—every person present was delighted. The program from first to last was heartily enjoyed. The singers showed perfect training and that harmony which elevates music from the commonplace to the grand. In elocutionary recital the standard of a finished artist was shown, and this was also true of the violin interpretations that gave so much enjoyment. In fact a criticism would be difficult, because none was offered. The club had given the fullest satisfaction. When they came to Lewiston again, they will be greeted by a larger house. They should receive an enthusiastic greeting in every northwestern city."

The city election at Vale, Malheur county, was a very tame affair, there being no contest for the various offices. The new officers are: Mayor, C. E. Boswell; recorder, John Boswell; treasurer, Thad Oik; councilmen, Walter Glen and J. A. Newton. Only 38 votes were cast.
