THINGS ARE NOT WHAT THEY SEEM.

COMMERCE - TRADE

There has been practically no change in the local wheat market for more than three weeks. The price quoted now is 53 cents locally and foreign markets remain about the same as several weeks ago. No wheat is changing hands, as the farmers who have small lots left are not compelled to sell and will hold over unless they get a better price than the present.

Other markets remain about the same they were a week ago. No change in any line except canned goods has occurred, although everything in the grocery and produce line is quoted at a good figure and with a stronger tendency indicating that the consumer will make no mistake by laying in a supply of all the staple articles in the grocery line. Canned goods have advanced 10 cents on the dozen in the Portland markets, with good indications for a still further advance.

Sugar remains weak, being quoted at the same figure it was a week ago—$5.25 per sack for the best grade of granulated.

Livestock and dressed meats are the same.

Portland Wheat.

Portland, March 20.—The Commercial Review says: There is only a limited inquiry for wheat outside of milling requirements; exporters having fair stocks on hand and not inclined to purchase more just now, especially on the basis of sellers' ideas. Plenty of grain remains in the country, but it is in very strong hands and holders show indifference about selling at this time, and firmly impressed with the idea that the flour mills will be compelled to use what wheat remains for their grinding the next five months before any new wheat is marketed, and that they will be repaid for waiting by selling at advanced figures. There are a number of vessels, both at Portland and Puget Sound, loading wheat, and when these vessels are finished the market will be of a dragging character until next season. Portland will virtually be completed, but there is plenty of wheat at Puget Sound and tributary thereto to load a great many cargoes. Shipments from both ports to date show a considerable increase over the 12 months of last year, and there are three and one-half months to go yet in this season. Crop advances are of the best, and all the grain damaged by the freeze of January has been resown. Spring seeding is going on quite rapidly, and indications point to a larger area than that of the past year. Prices of wheat show but little exchange and exports have reduced their limits and are quoting for club, 65c; bluestem, 67c, and valley, 66c per bushel. No sales are made at these figures. Mills are paying 2c and 3c premium for choice stock.

London Wool Auction Sales.

London, March 20.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today numbered 14,755 bales. All fine scoureds were in good demand at full prices, and occasionally higher rates were paid. Crossbreds and Merinos were firm. Inferior stock sold less freely. Americans purchased fine merinos and greasy crossbreds at higher rates. The present series will close on May 26.

Boston, March 20.—Business in the wool market here, as well as in other branches here, has been practically suspended during the past week, owing to the general sympathetic strike among the longshoremen teamsters. The market, however, is firm. The price for territory holds steady, choice lots of fine wool selling on the scored basis at 48@50c, with fine medium quoted at 44@45c. Medium territory grades are selling at 38@40c, scored, with occasional fancy lots going higher. The market for fleece wools is quiet, but prices remain steady. Australian wools are held firm, but offerings available and sales made were small.

San Francisco Markets.

San Francisco, March 20.—Wool—Spring—Humboldt and Mendocino, 15@16c; Nevada, 12@14c; Eastern Oregon, 12@14c; Valley, Oregon, 13@15c. Fall—Humboldt and Mendocino, 10@12 1/2c; mountain, 9@10c; south plains and San Joaquin, 6@9c; lambs, 6@9c.
