GENERAL NEWS.

The navy department has granted an extension of nine months in the case of the monitor Wyoming, on account of the strike at the Union Iron Works, at San Francisco.

Lieutenant W. S. Sinclair, of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, recently tried by court-martial on the charge of causing the death of a soldier prisoner by gagging him and pouring water on his head, has been acquitted.

The Turkish government has directed the Ottoman ambassadors to solicit the friendly intervention of the powers at Sofia, concerning the differences between Turkey and Bulgaria in relation to Macedonian affairs.

Charles J. Swindells, Stanford's baseball coach, and a senior in the law department, who has been signed as a catcher for the Tacoma team of the Pacific Northwest League, will go north to join the Tacoma team in its first game, April 29.

The bill introduced in the senate by McMillan, of Michigan, to prevent robbing the mails, provide a safer and easier method of sending money by mail, and to increase the postal revenues, has been introduced in the house by Gardner, of Michigan.

In 45 per cent of the territory of the islands there is no insurrection, and Americans go about singly and unarmed with about as much safety as they would in a large majority of the states at home. There is a fast-dying insurrection in two provinces of the island of Luzon and the remote southern island of Samar. . . . I see no reason to doubt that American authority can now be maintained without more troops than indicated by Governor Taft.—Acting Governor Wright, of the Philippines.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST NEWS

At Albany, Or., Linn county's oldest citizen, Patrick Brannan, registered at the age of 94, his birthday occurring last Sunday. He walked to the court house and up one flight of stairs unassisted, remarking that he never felt better.

George Griswold has been appointed permanent receiver of the Salem Labor Exchange. Its assets amount to about $1300 and its liabilities about $4000. The organization has been defunct for five years.

Men who are interested in the wood business in Salem say that the present outlook is that there will be plenty of firewood on the market this season. Prices, it is said, will be in the neighborhood of $2.25 for second-growth fir, and $2.75 for first-growth.

Father Aloysius Jacquet, the venerable Jesuit priest, who was sent to Nome from California late last year to have charge of the missions in that vicinity, and who, through fatigue and suffering on the long trip down the river became insane, is to have a refuge among the brethren of the church at the mission of the Holy Cross, 80 miles up the Yukon.

A combination of 24 tie and lumber mills of the Upper Columbia river region was effected in Portland Thursday, under the name of the Columbia River Tie & Lumber Association. Most of the mills represented are situated on the Sandy, Lewis and Hood rivers, and one is at White Salmon. The incorporators believe that by this combination they will be able to successfully raise the price of ties and other mill products, and improve the general conditions of their different enterprises.

CHILDREN'S STYLES

WHAT SPRING FASHIONS BRING TO "THE KIDS."

Tendency is to Make Them Small Editions of Their Elders.

New York, March 22.—Of late years Dame Fashion has cultivated so remarkable a taste that many modists have found it a lucrative departure to devote their time and efforts solely to the designing of gowns for little ones. In fact, the industry has expanded beyond the province of the dressmaker, and there are several very fashionable shops in Gotham that cater exclusively to the rising generation of metropolitan society in the matter of dress.

Happily, there is no tendency to impose upon little frames many of the exaggerated modes of the season, but those that can be accommodated to the dictates of common sense are adopted and carried out upon the most luxurious lines. It is a matter of no consequence whatever for a party dress for a fashionable little maid to be delivered at her home, accompanied by a bill for $75 to $100. Think of it! and this does not include the bonnet, which runs anywhere from $10 to $35.

The spring styles for children, however, are very elegant, and many of them, are capable of reproduction upon economical lines. White will be used to the greatest extent, as in the matter of ladies' dress and the thin, sheer fabrics will hold sway. Little girls' dresses of white crepe de chine are trimmed with narrow braid of simple design, ribbon rubbings, lace and the simplest patterns of embroidery. They have grown-up drop skirts of taffeta, or imitation silk and these in turn, are finished around the bottom with graduated flounces of the same material laid in tiny plaits.

One especially smart little frock has the gores of the outer skirt joined together with a featherbone stitch of white silk and through this the silken lining gleams. The skirt is gathered slightly all around the waist, with the greatest fullness at the sides and back.

The bodice has a yoke of tucked white taffeta cut perfectly round. The bodice proper is gathered upon the yoke top and bottom, front and back, with a fullness over the beltline at the former point. Finishing the yoke is a bias fold of taffeta edged with braid and slashed in fanciful design.

The sleeves are of crepe de chine finely tucked to the wrist where they fall over an undercuff of chiffon over silk. The undercuff is gathered into a wristband of silk trimmed also with the braid.

Something charming for a larger girl is in delicate blue net over mouseline. Anemones are wrought in tulle all about the bottom of the skirt.

The same form of trimming is carried out in the bodice. The next is finished off with a broad band of black velvet ribbon, about four inches in width. This is laid all about the round décolletage, fastened with small bunches of silk and velvet forget-me-nots. The ribbon drops from the bust to the side of the corsage, where it is caught with the forget-me-nots. The ends, finished off with knots of the flowers, fall almost to the hem of the skirt.

For less formal usages, ducks, piques, linens and crases will be greatly worn. Many of the summer dresses of little folk are in brown linen embroidered with red and blue or with dark green and pink and made after the style of the shirt waist suits. This allows for the wearing of a dainty white linen shirt waist; or, in cases where the suit is made in one piece, the shirt waist is replaced by a gumpie of linen, either in white or of the grass variety.

Little tailor-made pique gowns for misses will also be fashionable. These are stitched with bands of pique in white or any preferred contrasting color, and as a rule, are confined to the Eton effects. They are accompanied by sheer blouses, which, in turn, are smartened at the neck with fancy stocks and ribbons very much after the modes of grown folk.

In the matter of headgear, children's fashions are very distinctive.

They have the advantage of embodying several patterns of straw that must remain exclusive, because of their infantile effect. Yet if they were of more substantial appearance, they would admirably serve the purpose of older women.

Among the novelties for the latter, however, are hat shapes made of rice straw in the rough, inserted end to end. Countless dozens of yards of the straw are required for a single hat, twisted round and round, and tacked together on the wrong side, a slight space being left between each round.

For children, hats made of solid color chiffons lined with white are fashionable. It is surprising the number of black hats that are seen upon the counters of the little folks departments this year. Something extremely smart is composed of bands of black chiffon overlapping each other over a very large frame. The crown is rather high and the brim is faced with white chiffon finely shirred. The top of the hat is trimmed with rosettes of white chiffon which are placed around the crown and finished at the back in the rather unusual manner of a large bow of white taffeta ending in wide streamers of the ribbon.

The effect is particularly chic and the spreading shape of the hat makes it becoming to almost any child's face.

Fruit is not used upon children's hats at all this year. Flowers, rosettes of spidery materials and ribbon have the preference. Something smartly severe is a broad sailor shape with very flat crown covered in silk and applied with medallionly composed of chiffon and lace.

The wreaths of tiny flowers twined around children's millinery are very pretty and have the advantage of being always the best imitation of flowers, and in many cases are extremely costly.

The woman with a moderate dress allowance for both herself and children will find the rage for white advantageous, because the imitations in this color are the most inexpensive of all and they are invulnerable to the damaging effects of the sun or salt air. Then, after all, is it not an economy to purchase little folks' clothes in white? The best cared for child has a constant claim upon the services of the laundry woman, and where collars are worn they are so pale in tint and delicate in effect that the hue is destroyed after but few ablutions.

Would Smash the Club.

If members of the "Hay Fever Association" would use Dr. King's New discovery for Consumption, the club would go to pieces, for it always cures this maddening—and asthma, the kind that baffles the doctors—it wholly drives from the system. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers from consumption, pneumonia, bronchitis owe their lives and health to it. It conquers grip, saves little ones from croup and whooping cough and is positively guaranteed for all throat and lung troubles. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottles free at Tallman & Co.'s.
