THE TICKET.

Viewed by the business man who does not care anything about politics, the ticket placed in nomination by the county democracy on Saturday is excellent. It is composed of capable candidates, who, if elected, are qualified to fulfil the duties of the offices to which they now aspire.

Viewed by the man who delights in speculating upon the political possibilities, the ticket is one of the best balanced ever offered to Umatilla county voters, the matter of location being kept very carefully in view by those who had the disposing power in making the nominations.

All in all, the democrats of Umatilla county may enter the campaign in the confidence that they may conscientiously ask the citizens to support them in their efforts to install these candidates in the various positions at the court house, as well as in the legislature.

The East Oregonian believes that, in county elections, it is wise to look at these matters from the standpoint of the business man. Politics does not have much to do with county script, taxes, assessing or any of the numerous acts to perform which these officials are elected, that is, politics has nothing to do with them if the officials serve the people as they should. It is a business proposition, purely and simply, and this view is being taken more and more by the most intelligent American citizens.

Now that both tickets are in the field, it is pertinent that the candidates inform the people regarding the points on which they will excel their opponents, and in what particular they will bring better results than will the others.

The platform matters little, for county conventions really need pay little heed to issues pertaining to national affairs. State and county problems rightfully have a place in the expressions of county political gatherings, and the platform adopted on Saturday contained much matter that was foreign to the scope of the convention it was drawn to represent.

For that matter, platforms in county conventions concern the voters very little, and few ever read them after their adoption from the committee's report.

The ticket has on it the names of a number of young men, in fact, young and active and competent men predominate. It is evidence that new blood has come into the party, and this is a sign that presages increased strength at the polls in June.

If the county democracy unite in support of this ticket, it may be elected. It has appealed strongly to the people, as judged by comment heard upon the streets since the convention adjourned, and if normal vigor be injected into the campaign, there is no reason why it may not receive a bunch of election certificates after the votes have been counted.

COMMERCIAL DISHONESTY.

Dr. Emil Hirsch, a distinguished Jewish Rabbi, delivered an address in Chicago, Tuesday evening, in which he resented the assertion that Jews are commercially dishonest.

"It is a lie of the blackest type," is the answer of Dr. Emil G. Hirsch. "On the contrary," declared Mr. Hirsch, "the Jewish religion has honesty for its foundation. One who takes usury is declared to be a destroyer of the world in the Jewish code. For professional gambling and taking usury Jews are excluded from the congregations, and it is not tolerated.

"For the commercial instinct," he continued, "which is generally attributed to the Jews, let the Christians take the responsibility. It was taught they by the Christians, and the Jews were driven to commercialism. What is considered commercial dishonesty is merely competition and the Jews have been able to bid lower. If you can get the Jew out of the way the yankees have a better chance, and thus has arisen this unfounded cry of 'dishonesty.'"

Every broad minded person will endorse the assertions of Mr. Hirsch. If there be a Hebrew who is dishonest in his commercial relations, it is because of no essential characteristic as a Hebrew, but because he is personally dishonest.

Indeed, commercial dishonesty is in the very warp and woof of the entire fabric of modern business and the man who wishes so to do finds it difficult indeed, to follow closely the most successful without resorting to practices that are questionable.

Let the manufacturers of cloth used in making clothing be used as an illustration, in which shoddy is sold as wool, from the manufacturer down to the retail dealer. There is not an honest feature of that trade from the time the rags are ground up until they reach the back of the innocent purchaser who thinks he is buying goods into which enters wool as the principal constituent.

And this is but an illustration. It does not begin to catalogue the proofs of dishonesty in modern business methods. Jew or Gentile, dishonesty is in the commercial practices of the day, but, as Dr. Hirsch says, it cannot be charged to any race or creed. It is the product of too intense competition for low prices. That comes nearer to stating the case.

UNCLE SAM TO JOHN BULL.

Dear John—I can't help feeling a little amused at your new friendship for us. You may fool some of the younger boys, John, but you can't fool the old man.

Of course, '76 is a by-gone, and 1812 is a back number, but I remember, John, in 1861, when you and Louis Nap had made up your minds to help the southern confederacy, I had to take pretty bold action. You did not love the south any better; but you wanted to divide the republic and destroy it. I don't hold any grudge, John, but I remember.

I had a pretty good man for minister at St. James then. Adams his name was, Charles Francis Adams. He shook his fist under your nose, John, I remember, and dared you. Told you that if you fired a gun, no British ship could sail the seas without a warship as convoy. Of course, he did it parliamentary and serene; but he did it and you knew it was so, John. Then he got word that you were fitting out the pirate Alabama.—Adams did, and gave you notice. You couldn't see, nor hear; but he kept on scolding you with notice, till he had you charged so dead to rights that you had to pay me the damages she caused after she did you out.

You are not worth of a friend to republics, John, and you have been a bad boy. Never heard of you helping the French much, and you never liked me before.

Well, as I was sayin', you did not pay enough attention to Adams to suit me; and Stewart made a little deal with Russia who has always been a friend in a real pinch. And so it happened that when you and Louis Napoleon got ready to interfere, lo and behold! a fleet of Russian warships was a-cruisin' off New York! You rubbed your eyes, looked again and went home. Two to one suits you, John, but two to two is a game you never did like.

I paid seven millions in gold to Russia for that little show, and she threw in Alaska that she didn't want, to make it appear a real estate deal. I don't know whether I ever told you before, but we are friendly enough for plain talks, John, at any rate.

SCROFULA

I bequeath to my children Scrofula with all its attendant horrors, humiliation and suffering. This is a strange legacy to leave to posterity; a heavy burden to place upon the shoulders of the young.

This treacherous disease dwarfs the body and hinders the growth and development of the faculties, and the child born of blood poison, or scrofula-tainted parentage, is poorly equipped for life's duties.

Scrofula is a disease with numerous and varied symptoms; enlarged glands or tumors about the neck and armpits, catarrh of the head, weak eyes and dreadful skin eruptions upon different parts of the body show the presence of tubercular or scrofulous matter in the blood. This dangerous and stealthy disease entrenches itself securely in the system and attacks the bones and tissues, destroys the red corpuscles of the blood, resulting in white swelling, a pallid, waxy appearance of the skin, loss of strength and a gradual wasting away of the body.

S. S. S. combines both purifying and tonic properties, and is guaranteed entirely vegetable, making it the ideal remedy in all scrofulous affections. It purifies the deteriorated blood, makes it rich and strong and a complete and permanent cure is soon effected. S. S. S. improves the digestion and assimilation of food, restores the lost properties to the blood and quickens the circulation, bringing a healthy color to the skin and vigor to the weak and emaciated body.

Write us about your case and our physicians will cheerfully advise and help you in every possible way to regain your health. Book on blood and skin diseases free.
