GENERAL NEWS

The senate passed Senator Foster's bill appropriating $25,000 for improvement of the Mount Rainier National Park by construction of roads, bridges and trails.

It is the purpose of the interstate commerce commission to employ every means within its power to secure an absolute observance of the provisions of the interstate commerce act.

Sheriff James Davis, of Blackfoot, Idaho, captured near Missoula, Mont., Charles Carey and Charles Irwin, notorious horse thieves of Southern Idaho. Their pursuit had been kept up since August.

At Hot Springs, Ark., Manson M. Johnson, of Anderson, Ind., who is alleged to have forged paper to the extent of $100,000, was arrested at the request of Cashier Marker, of the Anderson National Bank.

While no definite promises have been made, there seems to be quite a general understanding that the Nicaragua Canal bill is coming up as soon as the Chinese exclusion bill is out of the way, and yet the Philippine government bill reported yesterday, may be used to antagonize the Nicaragua measure, on the ground that it is necessary to put through a Philippine bill at an early date.

The house committee on interstate commerce favorably reported four of Senator Foster's lighthouse bills recently passed by the senate, as follows: Appropriating $15,000 for lighthouse at Burrows Island, Rosario Strait; $22,000 for lighthouse at Mukileto Point, near Everett; $60,000 for fog signal at Battery Point, and $32,000 for completing lighthouse at Brown's Point, Tacoma harbor.

Senator Mitchell, who was authorized by the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals to confer with the republican steering committee of the senate, reported to the canal committee that he had been in conference with the members of the steering committee, and had been led to believe that unless there is change of plan the Nicaragua Canal bill will be placed on the senate calendar as the unfinished business after the disposal of the Chinese exclusion bill.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST NEWS

Rogue River Valley orchardists have begun a united and determined campaign against the codling moth.

Many holders of desert land claims in the lower valley north of Yakima river, have petitioned congress to pass a law allowing them an extension of time in which to prove up.

At North Yakima the Reidel-Allinger Company, which opened up an office a few weeks ago to do a commission business, succeeded in "doing" a number of farmers and others, and has vanished into thin air. G. W. Allinger, a young man with one arm, was all that was known of the company.

At the 35th annual commencement exercises of the medical department of Willamette University the graduates were: Doctors of medicine—F. E. Beauchamp, Walter W. Bruce, Orland W. Bean, James W. Thomas, Augustus E. Tamiesie, Nurses—Miss Lida L. Thompson, Mrs. M. M. Patton.

While no price for salmon has yet been fixed by either the fishermen or cannermen, it is generally understood that the price will open the same as last year—5 cents per pound for the smaller fish and 6 cents per pound for all over 25 pounds. The Astoria Fishermen's Union will hold a meeting at which the price of fish will be agreed upon.

THE BRIDESMAIDS

WHAT THE MODISTES ARE PRESCRIBING

Some Fashionable Gowns Worn at Weddings in the East.

New York, April 2.—However frequently the fashions change, there are certain events to which their influence extends which are as fixed as the seasons of the year and for which the modistes and milliners make elaborate advance preparations because of the rush which is subsequent to the arrangements for these events. Just now, for instance, it is the spring weddings, which follow close upon the Easter season. The old superstition that May is an unlucky month in which to marry grows less popular every year, and this season the May Queen will find herself compelled to share honors with many a charming bride.

A fabric which is coming prominently to the fore as a fashionable wedding-gown material is peau de soie. Among many designs to which fashion chroniclers have been accorded a view are models of this silk. They are trimmed with appliques of rich lace. Their distinguishing feature being their elegant simplicity. A particularly charming wedding-gown has a train four yards in length. The design is en princesse, but instead of fastening in the back as is usually the custom, it closes invisibly in the front. The skirt opens at the side of the front and the bodice is draped. The entire gown is built upon a foundation of exquisite satin, with a slight suggestion of a cream tint.

The bodice has a gamp of lace and the sleeves are extremely long, tight fitting, entirely covering the fingers so that no gloves need be worn. Economy is delightfully blended with fashion here in that the gamp can be removed, and, if desired, the gown worn later as an evening dress.

Another pretty design is made with separate skirt and bodice, the skirt having a close fitting hip yoke of real lace of whitish gray tint. The fastening is effected at the side. This is done so that the back may be left plain, as it is considered the most conspicuous part of the gown. Around the foot of the skirt there is a deep graduated founce of chiffon, the greatest width being at the front. As the founce nears the back it becomes very narrow and is continued all around the flowing train. The chiffon is edged with a tiny ruching of point lace, making the trimming an extremely expensive one.

The bodice is laid in very narrow box plaits which are applied half their length with bands of lace scalloped on the outer edge. The sleeves also have applications of the last and are finished very simple over the hand with a scalloped riple of silk edged with lace. Although the expensive lace veils are the fashion, there are others of tulle which are very pretty and as frequently used as the expensive nets. A fad of the season will be to have bridesmaids wear immense black hats with gowns of light, clinging materials. Not that the white hats will not be fashionable; only the seekers of novelties prefer the black ones because the striking contrast between the hat and gowns is more effective.

Bridesmaids' gowns are bewitching in their beauty. A material much used is lansdowne. This has the double advantage of being extremely fashionable and serviceable. It has the lustra of silk, the softness of crepe de chine and the delicate coloring of the pastel tints combined with the durability of which comes of a combination of linen and silk as a foundation. A pearl gray bridesmaids' frock has the skirt tucked in groups of seven tucks each, the tucks beginning at the end of a shirred hip yoke about nine inches in depth.

The tucks expand into a graceful!

HERPICIDE
A Luxuriant Growth of Hair.
The chief adjunct of beauty is now placed within the reach of every one by means of Newbro's Herpicide, a new scientific discovery that effectually destroys the microbes responsible for all scalp diseases.
It not only makes dandruff and falling hair things of the past, but invigorates the hair roots, causing a soft, thick growth to supplant the old thin and brittle one. Here is what one happy woman says:
"Pittsburg, Mo., Nov. 25, '90.
My hair was coming out very rapidly, and in places was entirely bald; and calling on our physician he strongly recommended Herpicide to me, and after three or four applications my hair stopped falling, and is coming in again quite thick. I used to be troubled with dandruff, of which I was cured, and I have cause to praise Newbro's Herpicide. MRS. MARY GARGOVICH."

flare around the feet and there is a suggestion of a train at the back, although the additional length of the general hang of the skirt can scarcely be noticed. The bodice is made over a close fitting lining, but the outer material is laid in accordian plaits. At frequent intervals there are applied box plaits of the gray lansdowne. The sleeves are puffed to the elbow where they are gathered into an elbow-deep cuff of gray silk overlaid with lace. The neck is finished with a high stock also of silk overlaid with lace and finished at the extreme outer edge with a simple fold of white satin.

The hat accompanying the gown is composed of gray velvet leaves embedded in a crown of the same shade chiffon. Around the flaring brim, on the very edge, is a wreath of white ostrich tips. The effect is decidedly novel and the idea is exclusive, such a combination, so far not having appeared in any other design. At a pink and white wedding to be celebrated in the merry merry month of May, the bridesmaids are to wear frocks of shell-pink chiffon over slips of the same color of taffeta. The skirts, which will be extremely girlish, will be shirred over the hips, and trimmed around the foot with insertions of white chiffon hand-painted in Dolly Varden pink roses—which are very tiny.

The bodices are to be made very much after the same fashion, being shirred over pink silk and trimmed with insertions of the hand-painted chiffon. The entire scheme of the dresses is noticeable principally for the absence of any lace trimming, and for the woman seeking a fashionable departure, the idea is worth "borrowing." A dainty blouse is to be included in the trousseau of a spring bride—who, is a debutante of the season, as well—is of palest blue chiffon trimmed with white lace. What simulates an underblouse is in the chiffon laid in fine lengthwise tucks. Over this is a round bolero of the plain chiffon, edged all around with the lace. Round the shoulders is draped a fishu with deep lace frill for finish.

At the front of the fishu and bolero meet upon the bust in a big chou. Below sags the underblouse over the belt. The sleeves end at the elbow in a frill of lace. There is a stock of folded chiffon circled with three rows of narrow velvet in black, ending at the front in a rosette with long loops reaching almost to the waistline. Knots of velvet reappear upon the sleeves. Another dainty included in the fashionable bridal wardrobe is the shirtwaist. Among the most captivating materials for this all important summer article of dress are granite crepe de chine, soft-finished taffetas, brocades and polka-dotted pannes. The latest shirt waists, made in the more expensive materials, do not seem to boast as much trimming as formerly, but they do show a very pretty outline in the popular "Gibson" effect, which throws the shoulders back very erectly by extending the shoulder seam well over the back—almost on an even line with the back of the collar.

What It Is.
Advertising is the life blood of the business world today, and well directed advertising is like the powerful searchlight of a river steamer, thrown upon a distant cottage on the bank, cutting it out like a picture painted on a black canvas. The timid buyer and the prospective industry will follow the rays of the searchlight of publicity. Just as surely as will the eyes of the steamer's passengers follow the light thrown from their vessel. They will not search the surrounding gloom for objects of interest when a beautiful picture is clearly shown before them. Prospective buyers will not search the surrounding gloom for your competitors if the searchlight of publicity is turned on your own place of business.—Canastota (N. Y.) Bee.
