ATTACK ON SPEAKER

THREATENS TO MAKE ANOTHER STILL WARMER.

Declares a Majority of the Republican Members are Opposed to Reciprocity Bill But Driven to Vote For It by the Powers That Be.

Washington, April 17.—Cushman, a republican member from Washington, created a sensation in the house during the debate on the Cuban reciprocity bill, today, by making an attack on Speaker Henderson.

Cushman said: "To do business in the house a man must first make terms with the speaker. All glories that cluster around the holy of holies of Solomon's temple look like 30 cents when compared to the jobbing department of this government office occupied by the speaker of this house. Aye, like 29 cents. When I get the opportunity, later in the session, I will make another speech on the rules of this house, which will be so hot that it will have to be printed on asbestos paper to keep it from burning."

Cushman was frequently interrupted by uproarious laughter and tempes, tuous applause, that came not alone from the democratic side. Continuing, Cushman said:

"Why am I so thin? Because people of my state are asking me to promote certain legislation, that is what is pushing me from the rear. Then I get up against the speaker and committee on rules—a stone wall—and that is what pushed me from the front, and that why I now look as fat as a canceled postage stamp."

Cushman then launched forth in an attack on the reciprocity bill, alleging the majority of the republican members of the house were opposed to the bill, but had been convinced by the powers that it will be best to serve their interests and vote for it. Cushman dramatically appealed to the republicans not to desert the principles of protection and said, no matter what may be the outcome, he would stand for protection of American industries. He concluded amid loud and continued applause from both democrats and republicans.

They offered no defense and displayed no weapons, but were ruthlessly shot down, men, women and children being killed without mercy.
