AS TO STATE LANDS

STATE LAND BOARD AND ATTORNEYS COME TO TERMS

Regarding Reclamation of Arid Lands Under the Carey Law and the Oregon Arid Land Law; How Arid Land May be Reclaimed.

The state land board and the attorneys for irrigation companies have at last agreed upon a form of contract which shall be used in agreements to be made for the reclamation of arid land under the Carey act and the Oregon land law, says the Portland Oregonian. There are several points upon which the irrigation companies and the members of the state land board differed. Some of these were satisfactorily adjusted, and the others have been settled, presumably with satisfaction to all concerned.

Under the contract now to be given the irrigation companies will be permitted to take possession of the arid land and reclaim it. In the case of large tracts they will have 10 years in which to complete the work, but in the case of small tracts the time that may be deemed reasonable will be designated. Work must be commenced within six months after the contract is signed, and at least ten per cent of it must be completed in the first year. All expense of reclamation must be paid by the company accepting the contract, and for its reimbursement the company is given the land for the cost of reclamation as estimated by the state engineer.

Water for Irrigation.

It is provided that the annual charge for water for irrigation purposes shall be fixed by the state land board; that the company shall maintain the canals, laterals and works in good condition, and furnish water during the irrigation season, according to such reasonable rules and regulations as the company may adopt; provided, however, that the rules regarding the distribution of water shall be subject to the approval of the board.

Each subdivision of the land reclaimed must bear such proportion of the entire lien as its value bears to the value of the whole tract. The clause regarding sales to settlers is as follows:

It is further agreed between the parties hereto that the date of the execution of the contract between the secretary of the interior and the state of Oregon any bona fide settler who is a citizen of the United States, or who has declared his intention to become such, desires to settle upon or become the purchaser of not more than 160 acres of the land set aside and described herein, shall sign an agreement in duplicate with the party of the first part (the irrigation company) one copy of which shall be filed with the state land board, and when such applicant shall file his release of lien for reclamation, the deed of conveyance to him from the state will be issued without further payment.

State Engineer G. L. Dillman is now in eastern Oregon, examining land for the reclamation of which application has been made. He will estimate the cost of reclamation and report to the board, whereupon contracts will be entered into with the irrigation companies.

Location of Largest Tracts.

Crook county contains the largest tracts for which application for reclamation has been made. A tract in the central part of Crook county comprises about 86,000 acres. The contract for reclamation has been applied for by the Pilot Butte Development company, of which A. M. Drake is president. In the proceedings before the state land board the company has been represented by A. King Wilson. Another tract, lying part in Crook county and part in Klamath county, comprises 78,000 acres. The Oregon Development company of which J. E. Morson is president, is asking for the contract for the development of this large tract of land. C. M. Idleman, attorney for the company, was before the state land board last week, presenting the claims of his company.

The land which these companies propose to reclaim is vacant government land, and not state land. The state can acquire it by reclaiming it.

Under an act of the last legislature, the state land board is authorized to enter into contracts for the reclamation of arid lands, the persons or companies building the irrigation works paying all the expenses and having a lien upon the land for the cost of reclamation. What the cost of reclamation is to be yet to be determined by the state engineer, but it is expected the cost will be $10 to $12.50 per acre.

Total of Applications.

Applications have been filed asking for contracts for the reclamation of more than 200,000 acres. The tracts mentioned are of the most important now under consideration, for the reason that the land is now lying unused, and it is believed that, by the construction of irrigating ditches, the land can be made very productive. Water for irrigating purposes will be taken from the Deschutes river or small tributaries, and conducted through long canals around the upper part of the tracts to be watered. If these enterprises should prove successful eastern Oregon, and Crook county in particular, will receive such an industrial impetus as has never been known before.

For all kinds of sores, burns, bruises, or other wounds DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is a sure cure. Skin diseases yield to it at once. Never fails in case of piles. Cooling and healing. None genuine but DeWitt's. Beware of counterfeits. "I suffered for many years by a gunshot wound in my left leg," says A. S. Fuller, English, Ind. "It would not heal and gave me much trouble. I used all kinds of remedies to no purpose until I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A few boxes cured me. Tallman & Co. and Brock & McComas.

Made Excellent Record.

A. D. Stillman, a Pendleton lawyer who made an excellent record in the legislature four years ago, has been chosen as chairman of the democratic county central committee, succeeding Col. Raley, who is a candidate for attorney general—against his own will, but much to the pleasure of others who admire him and want to vote for him.—Weston Leader.
