THE GOLCONDA MINE.

Reports from the Superintendent Are Exceedingly Favorable.

Recent reports from those in charge of the Golconda mine, near Sumpter, indicate that the fortunate purchasers of that property have been about as successful as were those who developed and recently sold the Concord mine at such a handsome figure.

Superintendent Melkle, of the Golconda mine, who was for a long time in charge of the Red Boy mine, being considered one of the best and most competent mining operators in the Sumpter district, reports to the owners of the Golconda that he has finished cleaning out all of the old workings in the mine and he has disclosed high grade ore in the drifts at several points.

At one place he finds three feet of ore that averages more than $70 to the ton at least two other places there is ore that will yield over $50 to the ton. Mr. Melkle expresses himself as confident that he will be able to open up high grade ore at three or more different points in the workings. It will require only a few feet of such ore as was taken out by the Englishes, the former owners, to then put the Golconda among the million dollar mines, and of Mr. Melkle's expectations are reached it will be yielding dividends inside of six months, if not sooner.

There is some of the treasury stock of this mine for sale at 10 cents a share, the money from the sale of it being used for the present operation of the mine. But only $20,000 worth of it is to be sold at this figure, as that is considered ample to put the Mathies Japson, John K. MacGillvery and Chas. Geiss, all subjects of the King of Great Britain, have renounced their allegiance to Britain's ruler and declared their intention of becoming American citizens.

C. W. James, recorded of Baker county, and one of the regents of the state normal at Weston, was in town Monday on his way home from a visit to the school. Mr. James says that he found everything in the very best condition at the school and there is no ground for complaint from any quarter.

SCIENTIFIC TORTURERS.

Some of the Cruelties That Are Perpetrated in Vivisection.

A certain Dr. Casten, wishing to study the effect of massage upon dislocations, deliberately dislocated the limbs of numerous dogs, says Henry C. Merwin in The Atlantic. He published an account of all these experiments, and the following is a fair example of them: "Experiment C. Poodle dog... replaced on the table without chloral. I dislocate his two shoulders. The animal utters screams of suffering. I hold him for twenty minutes with his two shoulders dislocated and the elbows tied together behind his back..."

"Dr. Majendie," relates Dr. Elliston, "in one of his barbarous experiments which, I am ashamed to say, I witnessed, began by cutting out a large round piece from the back of a beautiful little puppy."

Majendie may have been by nature a brutal man, but even he would hardly have done that when he was young in vivisection. In this country we are not quite so cruel as the French or Italians, but we are more cruel than the English, more cruel perhaps than the Germans.

A Medical man in Jersey City published an account of some experiments which he made upon dogs—I will not shock the reader by describing them—and of this publication the British Medical Journal of Nov. 15, 1891, said, "It is a record of the most wanton and senseless cruelty we have ever seen chronicled under the guise of scientific experiments."

Story of a French Cat.

This cat story comes from Pont Ste. Maxence (Oise), and for such a small place it is an extremely tall tale, says the Paris Messenger. It would appear that a resident in the place, who is an enthusiastic angler, used to keep live bait in a small tank on his premises. The angler also had a cat who naturally was fond of fish, raw or cooked. This being so, his owner covered his tank with wire netting to keep pussy out of temptation.

But the cat knew a trick or two and went to the nearest refuse heap for some fowl giblets which were providentially lying there. These she took to the tank, let them hang into the water from the netting and began fishing on her own account. When the fish nibbled at the bait, pussy would catch it with a nimble claw! The angler, noticing the trick, threw the bait away, but half an hour later pussy was at it again.

We hardly know which to admire most, the cat's ingenuity or that of the concealer of the story.

Strange Things About Plants.

Strange things are found among the plants and vegetables. A well known student of nature once tried the growing forces of a squash. When it was eighteen days old and measured seven inches in circumference, he fixed a sort of harness around it, with a long lever attached. The power of the squash was measured by the weight it lifted, the weight being fixed to the lever. When it was twenty days old, two days after the harness was fixed on it, it lifted sixty pounds. On the nineteenth day it lifted 5,000 pounds.

The seed of the globe turnip is about the twentieth part of an inch in diameter, and yet in the course of a few months this seed will be enlarged by the soil and the air into 27,000,000 times its original bulk, and this in addition to a bunch of leaves. It has been found by experiment that a turnip seed will under fair conditions increase its own weight fifteen times in a minute. Turnips growing in peat ground have been found to increase more than 15,000 times the weight of their seed in a day.

The Lost Smile.

Lost—a merry, good morning smile. With a cunning dimple on either side Of coaxing lips that are parted wide, Showing small rows of teeth, like pearls. It hasn't been missed but a little while And matches a pair of hazel eyes, Clouded now like the summer skies And a mop of tangle-y, flaxen curls.

It was lost in the nursery this morning, when Dorothy, fresh and rosy from sleep, Looked out and saw the troublesome rain Beating its greeting against the pane, Bathing the blossoms and bending the grain. And—would you believe it—there and then, She, like the skies, began to weep!

If you find it, don't put it on a shelf, Where Sunday bonnets and manners are stored, But bring it at once to Nursery row, For mother and brother both miss it so, And you shall receive a rich reward, For it will repay you its own sweet self! —Mary L. C. Robinson in Youth's Companion.

Good Roads in Massachusetts. Massachusetts has a permanent highway commission of three persons which has charge of the expenditure of $600,000 annually for the building and maintenance of what are called state roads, and through this plan more than 300 miles have been built at an average cost of $9,000 per mile. These state roads of Massachusetts are the finest examples of highways in this country, and they are equal to most of the best roads in Europe. The commissioners cannot build more than ten miles of state roads in one county within a period of six years. The roads thus built are eventually turned over to the county, and one-fourth of the money spent must be paid by the county when the highway is finished.

General Butler on Good Roads.

In an address at the Interstate good roads convention held in Columbia, S. C., recently General Butler strongly advocated national appropriations for roadmaking. He believed that if the government could make appropriations for rivers and harbors, build the Nicaragua canal and give land grants to assist railroads then it was proper and right for it to make appropriations for improving the common highways. Governor Candler of Georgia thoroughly indorsed the good roads movement. Road improvement, he said, was one matter which did not receive adequate attention. It was a question which was coming to the front and must be considered.
