WHAT COURTS SAY IS LAW

SOME INTERESTING DECLARATIONS MADE RECENTLY

If a Man Kisses and Embraces a Woman Without Her Consent He is Guilty of Assault.

If a man kisses or embraces a woman without her consent he is guilty of assault and battery, holds the supreme court of Alabama, in the case of Walker vs. State (30 So. Rep. 557.)

Slot Machine Gambling.

A nickel in the slot machine, involving in its operation the element of chance as to whether the player obtains in cigars more or less than the value of his money is held by the supreme court of Minnesota, in the case of State vs. Woodman (65 Pac. Rep. 1118), to be a game of chance, and to be prohibited by the statute forbidding nickel in the slot machines "for money, checks, credits, or any representative of value or for any property or thing whatever."

Trade Mark Can't be Sold.

A trade mark is not by itself such property as can be transferred and the right to use it cannot be assigned, except as incidental to the transfer of the business or property in connection with which it has been used, holds the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in the case of MacMahan Pharmaceutical Co. vs. Denver Chemical Co. (113 Fed. Rep. 468.) A transfer of the right to use it in connection with a different article, or one of different manufacture, would result in deceiving the public as to the article of its origin, which it is the sole legitimate purpose of the trademark to prevent, and a transferee will not be protected in such use by a court of equity.

Bank Protects Depositors.

A bank is in duty bound to honor the check of a depositor, and it can not refuse to do so on the ground that the money deposited belongs to some other person, or that the title of the depositor is defective, holds the supreme court of Nebraska in the case of the Nehawka Bank vs. Ingersoll (89 N. W. Rep. 618). Deposits in a bank create between it and the depositor the relation of debtor and creditor, and the obligation of the bank is to pay all of the depositor's checks upon the funds. A banker is not required to protect the rights of third parties or to initiate any inquiry between himself and the customer.

Drunkenness an Excuse.

Though drunkenness is, in general, no excuse for crime, the court of general sessions of Delaware, in the case of Snow vs. Snow (51 Atl. Rep. 607), holds that one accused of breaking and entering a dwelling house with intent to steal, who through intoxication is in such a stupor as to believe in good faith that he is entering another house where he resides cannot be convicted of either phase of the offense; he is merely guilty of breaking and entering.

Responsible for Signature.

A man by the name of Nalty subscribed for $1000 to a subscription paper to build a church and signed as follows: "Nalty Family, $1,500." He refused to pay and was sued. Among other defenses he contended that the signature was not binding on him, as it was meaningless and void. Judgment was rendered against him and on appeal the supreme court (Nebraska, Hodges vs. Nalty, 89 Rep. 535) affirmed the judgment and held that the subscriber was bound by the signature he adopted to the same extent as though he had signed his full name.

Liquor Dealer not Liable.

Mere knowledge on the part of a liquor dealer that the purchaser is buying the liquor for sale in a prohibited district will not render the transaction illegal, but there must be in addition some participation by the dealer in illegal purpose and act. (Bluthenthal vs. McWhorter, 31 So. Rep. 559, Sup. Court, Alabama.)

Pass Bars Damage.

A person who rides on a railroad pass, given without consideration and after assent to conditions that he should assume all risk of accident and that the carrier should not be liable, cannot recover on it for injuries from negligence of its servants, holds the United States circuit court Maine, in the case of Dunbar vs. Maine Cent. R. Co. (113 Fed. Rep. 508.)

Held to be Gambling.

Playing cards in a strip of woods a quarter of a mile in length in a pasture about a mile from the public road, is held by the supreme court of Alabama in the case of Russ vs. State (31 So. Rep. 550) to constitute gambling in a public place within the meaning of the statute.

In Need of Money.

All parties knowing themselves indebted to D. Kemler are hereby notified to call and settle at once and save costs. D. KEMLER.

H. W. Kerrigan of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club broke two world's records at Portland. He established a new mark of 6 feet 2-3/8 inches in the running high dive and cleared 15 feet 3-1/2 inches in the running long dive, adding 20 inches to the world's record.

Prominent among the members of the mission are General Brugers, commander-in-chief of the army; General de Chalander, one of whose ancestors was a lieutenant of Rochambeau; Lieutenant-Colonel l'Hermite, Captain Lasson, Vice Admiral Fournier, Robert de Billy, a member of the bureau of the ministry of foreign affairs, M.
