WANTED ADVERTISERS TO MAKE USE of these classified columns. If you have something you have no use for, offer to trade it for something that some other party may have and have no use for, something that you may need in your business. You may have an extra horse that you may wish to trade for a cow or a vehicle. Somebody may have the cow and vehicle and want the horse. A fifteen or twenty-cent want ad will probably do the business.

SUBSCRIBERS TO MAGAZINES, IF YOU want to subscribe to magazines or newspapers in the United States or Europe, remit by postal note, check, or send to the EAST OREGONIAN the net publisher's price of the publication you desire, and we will have it sent you and assume all the risk of the money being lost in the mails. It will save you both trouble and risk. If you are a subscriber to the East Oregonian, in remitting you can deduct 10 per cent from the publisher's price. Address EAST OREGONIAN PUB. CO., Pendleton, Oregon.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU—IF YOU ARE seeking a position, or need help, call on or address J. C. Spoonamore, 220 Court St., Pendleton, Oregon.

IN FOUND.

The following described animal has been taken up by the marshal of the City of Pendleton, Iowa:

A bald face roan colt, one year old, with white legs up to the knees. No brand visible. If said animal is not claimed by the owners or those entitled to the possession of it, costs and expenses against it paid and it taken away within ten days from the date hereof, then at 2 o'clock, p. m. of the 12th day of May, 1920, the said animal will be sold to the highest bidder, at public auction, for cash, at the city pound, on the corner of Cottonwood and Webb streets, in said city of Pendleton, the proceeds of such sale to be applied to the payment of such costs and expenses of making sale.

Dated this 1st day of May, 1920.

J. A. BLAKLEY, City Marshal.

THE MAID AND HER MIRROR.

"My lady, here's a wayward curl, Made bolder Than all its fellows, hugs the curl, Your shoulder, Like that of Janice Meredith, Its beauty Lures men to make a mock and myth Of duty.

"Curls have bound men—all the way back To Nero; And, should you wish, you shall not lack A hero. The filmy letter makes the bond Thus mused the maiden, as she coned Her mirror.

—W. D. NESBIT.

Hay is by all odds this year in many parts of the country the cheapest food we can give to stock and dairy cattle, says Dr. J. T. Wooster in American Cultivator. Good, bright hay, especially timothy, has enough nourishment in it to keep the animals doing well when supplemented with a fair amount of grain. How much grain will suffice for a good balanced ration? I have found that about half as much grain in weight as good timothy hay produces most excellent results—that is, to twenty pounds of hay ten pounds of grain of mixed variety will keep the animals in fine condition. I should recommend about equal parts of wheat bran, corn and oat meal and either oil-meal or fine gluten meal, whichever is the cheaper. This makes a balanced ration which any one can mix and, by adapting it a little to the prices ruling for different foods, get economical results without in any way affecting the health of the animals or the yield of milk.

Pea Vine Hay.

A. S. M., Indiana county, Pa., writes to The National Stockman: "Cowpeas were a grand success with us last year in a small way. We planted one and one-quarter acres, plowing under the one-quarter acre by way of experiment and making the rest into hay, which we have just finished feeding. We never fed anything with more satisfaction, the stock eating everything up clean, wasting nothing." Our correspondent's success in the latitude of Pittsburg is encouraging, says The Stockman. He has some land in good condition that he wishes to make still better and is thinking of growing peas upon it for seed. He can do this, plowing the vines down after hand picking the pods and seeding to rye as a cover crop for winter. But he should have cheap labor picking the peas.

CHEMISTRY OF TEARS.

Weeping Improves the Sight Instead of Weakening It.

Tears have their functional duty to accomplish, like every other fluid of the body, and the lacrymal gland is not placed behind the eye simply to fill space or to give expression to emotion, says an exchange.

The chemical properties of tears consist of phosphate of lime and soda, making them very salty, but never bitter. Their action on the eye is very beneficial, and here consists their prescribed duty of the body, washing thoroughly that sensitive organ, which allows no foreign fluid to do the same work. Nothing cleanses the eye like a good salty shower bath, and medical art has followed nature's law in this respect, advocating the invigorating solution for any distressed condition of the optics.

Tears do not weaken the sight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tenderer orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold, the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech, implying the lack of balmy tears that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood.

Savage Legends.

The savage islanders of the south Pacific believe that the world is a coconut shell of enormous dimensions, at the top of which is a single aperture communicating with the upper air, where human beings dwell. At the very bottom of this imaginary shell is a stem gradually tapering to a point which represents the beginning of all things. This point is a spirit or demon without human form, whose name is Root of All Existence. By him the entire fabric of creation is sustained.

In the interior of the coconut shell, at its very bottom, lives a female demon. So narrow is the space into which she is crowded that she is obliged to sit forever with knee and chin touching. Her name is The Very Begging, and from her are sprung numerous spirits. They inhabit five different floors, into which the great coconut is divided. From certain of these spirits mankind is descended. The islanders, regarding themselves as the only real men and women, were formerly accustomed to regard strangers as evil spirits in the guise of humanity, whom they killed when they could, offering them as sacrifices.

The Growth of Seaweed.

Seaweeds vary surprisingly in their habits of life. Some species grow altogether beneath the water, attaching themselves below the lowest tide level, other frequent heights where they are left dry at every retreating tide, while others yet are found in situations where they are scarcely ever covered by water. Whereas most of them attach themselves to rocks or solid bottom, keeping to the shallows, there are exceptions to the rule, among which the most remarkable is the sargasso or gulf weed, which floats on the surface of the ocean. Immense fields of it are seen by the navigator, extending as far as the eye can reach. It is sometimes so abundant as seriously to interfere with the progress of ships, and it was this which so alarmed the crew of Columbus on his first voyage of discovery.
