WALLA WALLA TEAM.

The Statesman Scores it for Poor Playing: Only Won Two Games Out of Ten or More Played.

In reporting the baseball game at Athena Sunday, between the "Yellow Kids" and the "Sharpshooters," the Walla Walla Statesman declares the Walla Walla boys played "rotten ball." It also declares the Walla Walla ball tossers are the "has-beens" and says that it appears as if those subscribing money for the support of the Walla Walla team are contributing it to a "pension fund."

The "Yellow Kids" won the game by a score of 8 to 4. Nine errors were marked up against the "Sharpshooters" while the "Kids" only made four. The Statesman is somewhat excusable in scoring its local organization when it is a fact that the Walla Walla team has only won two games out of something like a dozen played by it.

The Athena players passed through Pendleton Monday evening for La Grande, where they went to cross bats with the La Grande team this afternoon.

London's Prosperity.

Land at £2,613,600 an acre does not frequently come into the market even in London, but a few years ago, when the freehold of 54 Cheapside was sold, the sum it realized was at the above rate per acre; that is to say, a piece of ground that could be covered by an ordinary postage stamp realized 6s 11½d—not at all a bad

ELK TEETH DRESS.

The Most Valuable Indian Curio In Existence.

O. L. Richards of El Reno, Okla., has what is, perhaps, the most valuable Indian curio in existence and one which cannot be duplicated in any collection of relics of the red men. It is an elk teeth dress.

Richards has just purchased this garment from Mary Roman Nose nee Bent, granddaughter of the famous Colonel Bent and wife of a famous Cheyenne brave. It is the most cherished heirloom of the Cheyenne tribe and has long been the envy of curio hunters in this country and abroad.

For more than a century it has been in the possession of the tribe in which Mary Roman Nose belongs. In fact, it was originally owned by her great-grandfather, who counted it among his treasures.

It took Richards many months to induce her to close the bargain with him, which left him $1600 poorer and Mary Roman Nose minus the famous dress. This robe is ornamented with the 1024 elk teeth, mostly gifts from great chiefs. Joseph, the great Nez Perce chief; the famous Black Kettle, Chief Red Moon, White Shield, Stone Calf, Little Raven and a host of other red men who gained fame for their tribes on the warpath and in the hunt, are represented in this garment.

Each one of these teeth has the chief's mark on it. When it is remembered that elk's teeth now bring from $1 to $10, and that they are very scarce even at the latter figure, and that to the Indians they represented so much wealth, the value of this curious costume can be thoroughly appreciated.

Many romances and a few tragedies are connected with this dress. Forty Indian maidens, robed in the dress, have sworn allegiance to swarthy braves. It is held by the Indians that a maiden who becomes a squaw robed in it may feel sure of holding forever the affection of the brave she weds.

INVENTION OF BIKE SULKY.

How Charles F. Clark, of Boston, Conceived His Idea.

Charles F. Clark, of Boston, the inventor of the bicycle sully, has had his share of troubles. When Mr. Clark saw "Willie" Windle, one of the old guard of cycle riders, ride his fast races on the wheels fitted with the then new pneumatic tires, the idea of fitting sulkys with the new rubber contraptions entered his head and stuck. From that time he began experimenting.

The first vehicle of the kind was one that today would be considered clumsy, but when the first race was run at Worcester, Mass., 10 years ago, the new machine took the flat turns nicely, and so excited the officials that the horse drawing the vehicle, Albert D. was thought to be a ringer. Albert D. was driven on that day by J. B. Woodbury.

Soon after this first sully was constructed, other inventive Yankees thought they, too, could profit by the idea, and since 1894 Mr. Clark has been fighting his claim as the originator of the bicycle sully. He has been assisted by Colonel Albert A. Pope, the bicycle manufacturer, and the legal fight has so far cost over $10,000.

The Queen of Holland.

Persons high in authority are interested at this time, more than ever in the health of the queen of Holland. From one end of the land to the other is discussed a clause in the Dutch constitution which provides that if the queen has a son her majesty shall abdicate in his favor when he reaches his 18th birthday; if, on the other hand, no child is born within five years, the Dutch parliament has the power to dissolve the marriage. It would then be in order for the queen to take another husband, and if another five years elapse and her majesty is still childless, a like dissolution of the second marriage may be ordered. And this procedure may be continued until a child is born.

Unclaimed Tombstone.

Agent Waite opened a package at the depot that had been lying in the warehouse for a long time, and found that it contained a marble tombstone inscribed with the name of W. R. Jones. Mr. Jones was a well known resident of Weston in early years, serving as recorder and justice of the peace. He will be remembered by many old-timers as 'Squire Jones. He died in 1890 and was buried in Weston cemetery, where his grave was unmarked and neglected. There are no charges on the package, which will be delivered to anyone with authority to claim it.—Weston Leader.

Took It for a Mail Box.

There is a striking resemblance between the slot machines and the United States mail boxes. A gentleman blacksmith who recently crossed the water, started for the postoffice to mail a letter, but on the way came across a gum slot machine and proceeded to mail his letter, and after three or four unsuccessful attempts was about to throw the machine out upon the street when the store keeper interfered and directed the enraged blacksmith to the post-office.

Don't Use Too Many Words.

Multiplication of words increases the expense and decreases the effectiveness of advertising. Say what you have to say in as few words as it can be said—then stop. By so doing you can set what you want to say in larger type, so that it will command the attention of more readers than would a wordy discourse set in small type.

The Vote of Oregon.

In Oregon there are about 120,000 voters. A fairly full vote would be about 100,000. Nearly that number was cast as far back as 1896. But it is doubtful if the vote will reach 100,000 this year.

Henry E. Harris, aged 35, author of "King of Andorra," is dead at Duluth, Minn., of ptomaine poisoning. He was a son of the late A. Harris, a distinguished Virginian confederate officer. He leaves a widow and daughter. The remains will be cremated.

In a succession of rows between whites and negroes on an excursion at Beaumont, Texas, Solomon Whitney, a negro, was shot and killed; a young white man, Thomas Kitchen, of Beaumont, was fatally wounded, and four others more or less injured.

Lewiston, Idaho, May 13.—A special to the Tribune from Orofino, Idaho, reports the death by suicide of Dr. F. J. Leadbrooke, a prominent physician, and Miss Winnie Booth, the 19-year-old daughter of Rev. G. M. Booth, pastor of the Methodist church at Moscow. On Sunday evening they attended Epworth League meeting and then retired to a hotel. They did not appear for breakfast, and when their room was opened the girl was found dead on the bed. Beside her was Leadbrooke in a dying condition. The couple had taken morphine by hypodermic injection. Leadbrooke was a married man and wealthy. Miss Booth was a school teacher employed near Kendrick.
