A GREAT RECEPTION

(Concluded.)

In a tight place, concluded that it was the proper thing to do and asked the Lord if he could not help him; not to help the other fellow, but to just stand back and he would see the "dod rottest" fight that had ever been seen. He was making the same appeal to the people of Oregon.

An Electrical Announcement.

Touching lightly upon Furnish's defection from the democratic ranks and the turning down of Judge Lewis, Ankeny and Governor Geer in order to place him at the head of the republican ticket; the possibilities of fraudulent voting, the attacks made by his opponents on his pecuniary condition as compared with that of Furnish, and the charges made as to his slighting the old soldiers, he declared that no real charges had been made against him and electrified the audience and evoked a storm of applause by announcing that if any real charges with any substance of truth were brought against him by any reputable citizen or newspaper of the state he would immediately retire from the race and hand back to the people the nomination they had given him.

Speaking of the work of lobbies at Salem and his promises regarding the railway employees' bill, he said that Fulton and the Oregonian were crying that he was peddling "hot air" to the railway men; before he got through with them he would show that the railway men had never got anything but "soup" from Fulton. (Cheers and laughter.)

Wants No Orientals Here.

As to Oriental immigration he said that he was in favor of excluding the Japs and all Oriental races as well as the Chinese. He had been painted in hideous colors as dodging the Philippine question but he declared that there was no question to dodge, the islands were ours and the question of their future would be a matter which would still be disturbing the country in the days of our children's children. For himself, he was in favor of treating the islands as Cuba had been treated as soon as the people were educated up to a point where they were capable of self-government. The talk being made by republicans to the effect that his election would be an expression of disapproval of the administration's Philippine policy was the veriest twaddle as the government had no Philippine policy as yet. According to the republican platform of 1900 the Philippine question was left to the wishes of the people and a republican candidate could stand on this platform as either for or against the retention of the islands.

Where the Shoe Pinched.

It had been charged by his opponents, said he, that he was trying to deceive the people into believing that he was not a democrat, but he thought the shoe pinched on the other foot. If he were elected to the governorship he should pay no attention to the politics, race or religion of anyone who came before him asking favors, if that was being not a democrat then he was not one but merely a loyal citizen of the great state of Oregon. (Cheers and applause.) If the people did not think that he was honest or capable enough to administer the affairs of the state they were foolish if they voted for him; if, on the other hand, they believed him more capable or honest than his opponent, they should in all honesty, give him the support of their ballot on the second of June.

Mr. Chamberlain then closed his address in a perfect storm of applause by declaring his confidence of being elected and promising that he would, if placed in the gubernatorial chair, do no act which could bring the blush of shame to any honest cheek.

Other Candidates Spoke.

W. A. Wann, candidate for superintendent of public instruction in a 15-minute address, outlined the reforms which he proposed to inaugurate in the public schools of the state in the event of his election, claiming that the present system of education was nothing more nor less than a cramming process, and that children of tender years were forced to carry such lists of studies that they could not learn anything thoroughly and in many instances they came from school with nothing better than wrecked nervous systems and a smattering of numerous kinds of knowledge which could do them no possible good in their future lives.

Henry Blackman, candidate for state treasurer, gave a short but pointed address, as did Judge James H. Raley, candidate for attorney-general, who devoted most of his attention to advancing the claims of E. A. Reaser, county candidate for representative, and W. F. Mallock, candidate for joint representative of Umatilla and Morrow counties, neither of which gentlemen are making an active campaign.

This concluded the meeting, after which many of those in attendance, went over to the opera house, but were not able to get in. During the evening the Pendleton quarter rendered a campaign song written by W.

C. Howeson, of this city, and a medley which was also well received. The Overflow Meeting.

The overflow meeting held in Fraser's opera house, was as large and enthusiastic as that in the court house. Democratic County Chairman A. D. Stillman presided and stirring speeches were made by W. A. Wann, Walter M. Pierce, candidate for joint senator, and Hon. George E. Chamberlain, who came over immediately after his address at the court house. After the meeting a short reception was held on the stage and many came up to shake the hand of the "next governor of Oregon."

Is Confident of Success.

Seen on the stage immediately after the speaking, Mr. Chamberlain expressed extreme gratification to an East Oregonian man over the enthusiastic reception given him by the people of Umatilla county. "I have had just the same kind of enthusiastic meetings all day," said he, "and feel assured that I will carry the county by a large majority. I am equally confident of success throughout the state."

Mr. Chamberlain and party left last night for Arlington, where they addressed a meeting today, going from there to Heppner.

Chamberlain Will Carry East End.

Walter M. Pierce, democratic candidate for senator from Morrow, Union and Umatilla counties, who has spent several days in the east end of the county and has carefully felt the political pulse of the people, says that Hon. George E. Chamberlain, will win out in the east end with at least 500 votes more than his opponent, William J. Furnish. He says that the sentiment is almost universal in that section for Chamberlain who was accorded one of the warmest receptions there Friday ever tendered any politician.

Robbed of His Purse.

How often we see this startling headline in our daily papers, and how much we sympathize with the unfortunate victim, be he rich or poor, but there are hundreds of other cases, of people who have been robbed of a far greater treasure than wealth that we never hear of. We refer to those who have been robbed of their good health by a rebellious stomach. There is one medicine, however, that will conquer a rebellious stomach and make it perform its duties properly, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a specific remedy for the stomach and will cure belching, flatulency, sick headache, indigestion, constipation and biliousness. Try it and see. Our Private Die Stamp is over the neck of the bottle.
