A contest to decide the most popular lady in Pendleton has been arranged at the Merry-go-round, and persons are entitled to one vote for each ticket purchased. The prize is a beautiful gold watch, 20-year Dyer case, purchased of W. E. Garrison, and is on exhibition in his show window.
A very strange thing happened in the Wonders and "Its" game, the "Its" got 14 hits off of Rebbins, the Wonder's pitcher, while the latter never made a safe hit off Drake, the "Its" pitcher, and yet the score was Wonders, 9, "Its" 0. This shows great team work for the one and very poor for the other.

Lost—On train between Pendleton and Weston, Saturday afternoon, a medium-sized lady's gold watch, with butterfly stone on back. Finder return to Mrs. S. P. Sturgis, Water street, and receive reward.
Adams Advance: Dean Schull and Victor Eliot, painters for C. C. Sharp, the well known Pendleton painter, have just completed one of the finest jobs of painting on Purl Hale's residence that has been done in this section. Charley never keeps anything but first-class workmen, and a natural consequence his work is always the best.
A large crowd attended the Thompson Street M. E. church Sunday evening to hear Rev. James A. Tate, of Nashville, Tenn., deliver his temperance gospel address. Mr. Tate is one of the most forceful and pleasant speakers on the road today. He has the faculty of keeping his listeners in a pleasant mood, at the same time impressing the truths of his subject on their minds.
Weston Leader: The seven-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Fuson attempted to swallow a small piece of concentrated lye Sunday morning that had fallen from a table that its mother was cleaning. The child's tongue and mouth were fearfully burned, causing great alarm to the household, and Dr. Best was at once summoned to its relief. It was found that none of the frey stuff had gone down the little one's throat, and aside from the burns, nothing serious developed.

CLASS RECEPTION.
Very Pleasant Evening Spent by the Young Ladies of the Academy.
Although Saturday evening was a little disagreeable for the class reception for the students of the Pendleton Academy, given by Miss Delle Beagle, a good crowd was present and a very pleasant time enjoyed by all. The reception was to have been given on Mrs. J. H. Turner's lawn, but owing to the damp weather and cool evening Mrs. Turner kindly threw open the doors to her palatial home and invited all inside, where many enjoyed the evening out of the weather, but some preferred to remain on the outside, and spent a large part of the evening in the hammocks stretched for the occasion.
The house and yard were elegantly lighted with Chinese lanterns and the reception was a success throughout, which was greatly owing to the efforts of the hostess.

A PLEASANT PARTY.
Farewell Given Miss Starkweather, Who is Soon to Wed.
A very pleasant party was given at the home of Mrs. Lee Field, north of the river, by Mrs. Held and Mrs. Starkweather, Saturday afternoon, as an announcement party in honor of the marriage of Miss Evelyn Starkweather, of this city, to Mr. Harry B. Rees, of Salt Lake. The afternoon was spent in playing hearts and refreshments were served. Mr. Rees and Miss Starkweather will be married Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. W. J. Furnish, on Water street, Rev. W. E. Potwine officiating, and the happy couple will leave immediately for Spokane, where they will make their home. No cards will be issued.

The prune crop in the vicinity of Silverton, Or., is estimated at 100,000 pounds for this season; about half of what was shipped last year.

GULF STREAM MYTH.
Great Ocean Current Does Not Influence Climate.
In the light of science today the Gulf Stream as a determining factor in climate-forming, loses all of its old-time glamour. Moreover, what is true of its relative insignificance in this respect, is also true, a fortiori, of the Kuro Siwo, or Japan current. This current, a very much feebler stream than the Gulf stream, owing to the enormous size of the mid-Pacific basin and of the unfavorable configuration of the Asian continent, has few of the dramatic characteristics of the Gulf Stream, and yet the Mauryan myth has endowed it also with the virtues of supposedly belonging to its Atlantic congener, and it is but recently that the chamber of commerce of San Francisco was passing resolutions about it, since they believed that if its shifting could be studied California weather might be foreseen long in advance. In this they were confusing effect with cause, and were on the wrong track. Had they passed resolutions about the shifting of the great Pacific anti-cyclone, they would have hit the nail on the head, since it is the variation in its pressures and in its position that makes for climatic and weather changes on the Pacific coast and also causes any shift in the drifting of ocean currents. And the same is true of the Atlantic basin—the Gulf Stream shifting with the winds and the general barometric stresses; which shifting far from being the cause of any weather vagary, is an indication of the secondary relation of the ocean current to the primary causes of weather changes, the shifting of the aerial currents; in fine, the anti-cyclone itself. We who live in the Atlantic seaboard states of the United States notice the effect of the shifting of the anti-cyclone less than people in Europe perhaps, since for the most part weather in the east is not brewed in the ocean because the aerial drift moves from west to east, and carries the oceanic influences eastward, or away from our shores. But occasionally the Atlantic anti-cyclone intrudes on our southern coast with very remarkable results, at times apparently reversing the seasons by setting up a south to north (southeast to northwest, southwest to northeast) circulation that is the primary cause of the spells of halcyonic weather that have been variously christened "Indian Summer."—From the Gulf Stream Myth and the Anti-Cyclone," by Harvey M. Watts, in the June Scribner's.

The Philippine Matter.
Mr. James H. Eckels, who was comptroller of the currency in Cleveland's second term, a democrat, takes the proper view as to what his party should be on the Philippine matter. He says:
"The democrats should take the position that the Philippines have come into the possession of the United States, whether permanently or not we cannot say. However, we do know that the islands will be ours for a long time, so we should enact legislation that will result in the wise and just exercise of governmental authority in our new possessions."
His position is the correct one. Future questions should be left to the future. The Filipinos should not be promised independence, of course, because they are not fitted for it. They must be educated, civilized, and grow out of the tribal idea into homogeneity as a people. The right and proper course is to give them a good government, enforce peace and order, and have them understand that whatever of good the future has in store for them must be determined by their own conduct as a law-abiding and industrious people.—Toledo, O., Blade.
