RIOTING IN CHICAGO.

Mob Attempts to Prevent Meat Delivery and Police Interfere.

Chicago, June 3.—Rioting as a result of the stock yards drivers' strike was resumed this morning when the packers sent a number of wagons up town to deliver several tons of meat. The wagons were escorted by 50 police who were later augmented by 50 of the reserve when the outbreak took a serious phase.
Shortly before the wagons reached the center of the downtown district, a mob of several thousand gathered and followed them, jeering the drivers. Later a rush was made for the wagons with the intention of upsetting their contents into the streets, but the police charged the mob using their clubs freely and making several arrests. They finally succeeded in getting the wagons to one of the big department stores, where delivery was made. Here a crowd of 10,000 gathered and made another rush for the wagons, but the police beat them back until the wagons had delivered the meat. The wagons then returned to the yards, followed by the crowd jeering.

LAST DAY OF DEBATE.

But Few Senators Were Present to Talk on Philippines.

Washington, June 3.—This, the last day of the battle on the Philippine civil government bill, found but few senators in their seats when the gavel fell. According to previous agreement, the debate under the 15-minute rule was resumed as soon as routine business was disposed of. The house this afternoon, without opposition, adopted the conference report on the river and harbor appropriation bill.
When Culberson, of Texas, took the floor in the senate, he created a sensation by producing a copy of the charges filed with the war department by Private Andrew Weir against Lieutenant Arnold and Sergeant Edwards, which Culberson had been vainly trying to secure from the department. The charges recited inhuman treatment of Filipino prisoners. Beveridge demanded to know where Culberson got the copy and asked if General Miles had not furnished it. Culberson refused to tell, saying: "The question of the senator from Indiana is impertinent."

More Drivers Struck.

Chicago, June 3.—Every department store driver in the city struck today. The delivery business of the big stores is completely paralyzed.

RECLAIMING THE DESERTS.

Nothing More Forlorn Than Those of Wisconsin and Michigan.

The deserts still maintains its fastnesses in the west, says the June Century. There are some spots better entitled to the name than others, but each year these fastnesses are shrinking before the advance of human enterprise as the water might rise over the land, leaving the high and difficult places to the last. So these lands are scattered through several states and territories, mostly in Arizona, New Mexico, California, Nevada, Utah and Oregon, in the great valley lying between the ridge of the Rocky mountains on the east and the Cascade, Sierra Nevada and the Coast range on the west. Chief among them are the Mohave desert in Southeastern California, a territory as large as Switzerland; the Colorado and Gila deserts of southeastern Arizona and southern California; the marvelous Painted desert of southeastern Arizona, and the great Salt Lake desert of Utah. Opening northward from the Mohave desert lies Death Valley, perhaps the most desolate and forbidding spot in America, though comparatively small in extent. Yet there are few places even in those desert strongholds that are wholly without life of one sort or another, and a large proportion of them could be reclaimed, if water were available. Even as it is, not one can bar human activity; railroads have been built directly across three of the worst of them, mines are being open and oil wells driven; land is being reclaimed by irrigation; and even in the fastnesses of Death Valley there are many mining camps and an extensive borax industry. In all the west, look as you will, you will find no desert more pitifully forlorn, more deserted, more ir-reclaimable and more worthless than the man made deserts of northern Wisconsin and Michigan, where fire has followed the heedless lumbermen and spread a black and littered waste thousands of square miles in extent, where once grew a splendid tree forest of pine. One is beautiful with the perfect grandeur into which nature molds even the most unpromising material; the other is hideous, grotesque, pitiful, a reminder of the reckless wastefulness of man.

EARTHQUAKES IN AMERICA.

Seismic Disturbances Which Have Affected the United States.

Besides the Charleston earthquake in 1836, in which 41 lives were lost and about $5,000,000 worth of property was destroyed, says the New York Sun, there have been two other notable earthquakes in the United States within historic times—one near the head of the Mississippi delta in 1811-1812, and one in the Inyo valley, California, in 1872.

The former, known as the New Madrid earthquake, was remarkable for the length of time which its phenomena covered. There were several shocks at short intervals for several months, and the whole series of shocks lasted about two years. The country was sparsely settled, and no scientific records of the disturbance was made, but it is related that the alluvial land of the river bottoms was traversed by visible waves, which rocked the trees to and fro and uprooted many. Huge fissures were opened and lakes were drained by the escape of waters into them. The largest sunken area is said to have been 60 or 80 miles long and nearly half as broad.

The Inyo valley earthquake was caused by a renewed movement along the great fault plain at the eastern base of the Sierra Nevada. The chief shock lasted only a few minutes, but others of less violence continued for two or three months. A tremendous fissure was formed along the base of the mountain range for about 40 miles. The land west of the fissure rose, and the land east of it fell several feet.

Owens river was temporarily swallowed up. In the village of Inyo all the houses were thrown down and one-tenth of the inhabitants were killed.
