UMATILLA COUNTY BOY.

Makes a Brilliant Record at Cornell University.

The daily Tacoma Ledger, of June 1, has the following to say of Emory L. Walker, the son of J. M. Walker, and formerly a Umatilla county boy, who is a student at Cornell university:

Last week word was received, through a friend of the young man, of a brilliant record which Emory L. Walker, another Tacoma high school student, is making at Cornell University. Mr. Walker has been elected a member of the Sigma Xi society of Cornell. This is the highest scientific honor conferred by the university, and is given only for original investigation along the line of scientific research. Mr. Walker, who is the son of J. Marion Walker, a prominent Tacoma man, is only 23 years of age, yet he is to be graduated this month from the Cornell university college of mechanical engineering. He has taken the full university course of four years, in addition to the high school course, and two years' special work in the Puget Sound university before going east. His work in Cornell has shown remarkable ability, and has been sent out by the authorities of Cornell to do expert work in engine testing. Mr. Walker was a favorite in Tacoma, where he was known as an excellent student and also as an athlete of ability. This is testified to by the fact that he was selected during his freshman year to represent Cornell University at the athletic contest of colleges in New York city. Mr. Walker was married a year ago to Miss Mabel Scott, a graduate of Wellesley College, and an accomplished musician. He will bring his wife to Tacoma to visit his parents after commencement, to spend the vacation.

PIONEER GON.

Amos Strong, of Salem, Died at Sonora, Mexico.

Salem, June 5.—Mrs. Amos Strong, wife of Amos Strong, well and favorably known as one of Salem's prominent business men and a member of a well-known pioneer family, received a telegram Tuesday evening informing her of the death of her husband in Sonora, Mexico, where he had been spending several months on business and also for his health.

Mr. Strong left here several months ago for Cos, state of Sonora, Mexico, to look after some mining property he owned there. About 10 days ago Mrs. Strong had a letter from him stating that his health was much better there than here, and he expected to move his family to that country. The shock to the family at the receipt of the message announcing Mr. Strong's demise can, therefore, scarce be described.

The body will be brought back to Salem for burial. Deceased leaves a wife and daughter, Miss Ama, both of this city, and a host of warm friends to mourn his untimely demise. He was a charter member of Oregon Cedar Camp, No. 5246, Modern Woodmen of America.

Slade was taken ill on the train about 8 o'clock, and when he reached here at 9:15 he was unconscious and never regained consciousness, although everything possible was done for him. The body has been taken to Jesse Failing's undertaking parlors, where it will be held until his friends in Portland, who have been notified, are heard from.

HORSES KILLED THE TIGER

THE WILD ANIMAL GOT INTO CAR AT NIGHT

The Horses Fought Him Furiously and Trampled him to Death; Only One Horse Dangerously Injured.

While a train of circus cars belonging to Sautelle's circus, was on its way to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a few nights ago, a huge tiger escaped from his cage and sprang into a car filled with horses.

The great beast landed full on the back of a Percheon, tearing it badly, but the horse shook the flesh eater off and the tiger was kicked to death by the hoofs of the very prey he hunted.

The scream of the horse as the tiger's claws sank into his flesh followed almost immediately. Then there was pandemonium. The plunging horses shook the car their screams rose above the din and the snarling and growling of the great cat told the circus men the cause of the uproar. He knew only that a tiger, for they all knew the voices of the different animals, had got in among the horses.

The circus employes could do nothing; the train was speeding along at 40 miles an hour, and even if it had been at a standstill it would have been a desperate thing to open the door to let themselves in where a savage tiger and thirty frantic horses were fighting to the death.

They could only listen to the demoniac uproar and wait for the train to reach a station. It was only a few minutes before the frightful noise subsided. When Poughkeepsie was reached they gingerly peered into the stock car and saw the trampled body of Rajah under the hoofs. Then they went in and learned what had happened to the condition of the horses.

The tiger had landed on a huge gray draught horse called Toby, whose back was torn on both sides by the claws, and had tried to bite through his spine, but Toby's plunging had thrown Rajah to the ground between him and the next horse. This second horse had a flank badly lacerated, showing that Rajah had tried to climb up on him; so they traced the tiger under six of the horses, by the rips on their legs and bellies. The lashing hoofs must have landed often, for the tiger turned back doubtless meaning to escape, for his body, with skull crushed and legs broken, was found under Toby, immediately below the window at which he had entered.

It is the custom of shows to keep the animals without meat on holidays in order that they may connect their exhibition with their food and be more docile in anticipation of the reward, and it is probable that the Bengal tiger was hungry when he broke from his cell and hunted the horses. The six handsome horses that were torn by Rajah were badly cut by the teeth and claws, but all were able to walk to the show grounds, where they received treatment, and no serious harm is expected to result to any of them. Toby was the worst wounded of any, and he spent the day on a bed of straw covered with blankets. The circus men have no doubt that it was he that killed the tiger. Rajah was valued at $800.

Scab Said to Exist.

Word comes from North Yakima, Wash., to the effect that H. P. Simpson, sheep inspector of Yakima, Kittitas and Klickitat counties, has posted notices there warning sheep men that scab is epidemic among the sheep herds in Umatilla, Morrow, Gilliland, Grant, Wasco, Wheeler, Sherman and Crook counties in Oregon, and warning further against importing sheep into his district from the infected Oregon counties. There is said to be no scab of any consequence near North Yakima and the sheep men are anxious to keep it out of their district so heavy penalties will be inflicted for violation of the order prohibiting importation.
