PACIFIC NORTHWEST NEWS.

Dan Daily and Henry Thompson, two desperadoes who escaped from the Boise city jail recently, were captured near Whitney, Baker county, by Deputy Sheriff Fish.

George Reed Kellogg formerly of Portland and Astoria, Ore., died on May 29th, at Roseburg, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Leige Otey, aged 26 years. Death was due to consumption.

The funeral of John Clark Taylor, who died in Oregon City, occurred Thursday. He had resided in Oregon nearly 40 years. He was born in Fleming county, Kentucky, February 24, 1814. He was married in 1862 in Iowa to Miss Catherine Robinson, and they came to Oregon in 1865.

In sight of his horror stricken wife and but a short distance from the shore, Uy Galsford, one of the wealthiest stockmen in the Methow country, Wash., was drowned Wednesday. He had driven his saddle horse into the river believing the animal could swim. But the horse went under, carrying his rider down.

The Oregon Woolgrowers' Association wool sale at Heppner was a great success. A little over a half million pounds of wool was sold under a sealed bid system at prices ranging from 11 to 13 1/2 cents per pound. The Penland clip of 175,000 pounds was the largest lot offered for sale, and sold at 13 1/2 cents a pound. There were 12 wool buyers at the sale.

William Woods pleaded guilty to a charge of forging a name to a money order in the United States court at Portland and was sentenced by Judge Bellenger to imprisonment in the penitentiary for two years at hard labor. Woods called for his mail at the Dalles postoffice and received a letter which, on opening, he found belonged to another William Woods. There was a postal order in the letter which Woods No. 2 signed and received the money on.

DUSTERS DUSTED

DAYTON COULD NOT HOLD OUT AGAINST INDIANS.

Pace Was Set Too Fast in the First Inning and the Visitors Went Down to Defeat in One, Two, Three Order.

The Dayton Dusters were thoroughly dusted by the Redskins of Pendleton in the game at the Alta street grounds yesterday, the Indians crossing the home plate eleven times during the nine innings, while the Daytonites only got three men beyond third base.

Although a decidedly one-sided proposition from the start, the game was a very interesting one on account of the many brilliant plays made in the field, both teams coming in for their share of the honors in this direction.

The visitors were somewhat discouraged in the first inning, when, before they had gotten fairly warmed up, the local lads batted out six runs and placed the ultimate outcome of the game almost beyond peradventure. Still, despite their bad handi cap, the Dayton boys pulled together and played a very good game, showing that the team contains a number of first-class players, but as they are lacking in team work it was impossible to even matters up.

Numerous pretty bits of fielding were done on both sides, Clemens, Knox and Wilner dividing honors in this line for the locals and Porter in left, showing up the best for the visitors, although the other field positions were well covered.

The prettiest plays of the day were Porter's catch of a high fly in left field, shutting out the Pendleton boys with two men on bases. He made a long run, almost to the left fence, and fell just as he caught the ball. He hung onto the horsehide, however, and came up triumphant with the sphere still in his grasp, after turning clear over as he fell. Ziegler also made a beautiful stop of a hot grounder and passed it to first in time to cut off the runner. Another neat play was Phillips' catch of a long fly in right and quick pass of the ball to home. He was a second too late to catch the runner, but it was a pretty throw just the same.

Score: Pendleton, 11; Dayton, 3. The teams are playing again this afternoon and the visitors are on their mettle to retrieve their defeat of yesterday.

For Six-Team League.

The proposition for the formation of a new six-team league to play a three-months' schedule from July 4 now seems to have but one thing standing in its light; the question of whether or not Baker City can secure a team fast enough to travel in the league. La Grande, too, would have to be materially strengthened.

The plan as now being worked out by Captain Ziegler, of the Indians, and Manager Sharpstein, of the Walla Walla team, is to form a league of six clubs: Dayton, Colfax, Pendleton, La Grande, Baker City and Walla Walla. Athena cannot be counted in because that city has already promised to release many of the men now playing there by the beginning of July. A number of these men have already been gobbled up and two at least will go into the Northwest league. Rol Brown and Dan Shea. For the others there is likely to be something of a scramble. If Baker City can get enough of them to form a nucleus for a strong team the league is practically certain, for Walla Walla and Pendleton stand ready to enter the race, and La Grande has plenty of money back of her and will spend it to keep her end up.

Dayton and Colfax are not so certain. It is reported that the former city has been losing money on its team, and Colfax has made so poor a showing that it may drop out altogether.

GAME WARDENS TO MEET.

Sportsmen Are Interested in the Move for Uniform Game Laws all Over the West.

Much has been said in the newspapers of the country and by the sportsmen recently about uniform game laws for the whole of the Pacific states.

This is a subject that has been agitating the minds of the leading sportsmen of the western states for several years and an effort is now being made to get the law arranged to apply equally in one state as another.

To this end a meeting of all game wardens of the west is called for July 20 at the Yellowstone National park for the purpose of getting their views together and see if something cannot be done that will prove more satisfactory to all. Much interest is being felt in Pendleton over the matter and the local sports have discussed the present laws many times and hoped that something would be done to even things up and the results of the meetings of the wardens at Yellowstone National park will be looked forward to with no little interest.

All true sportsmen are interested in the preservation of game. They deplore the acts of the "game hogs," and it is to be hoped that this coming together of the protectors of game, will bring about a movement that will result in getting uniform laws all over, so that no man can kill a game bird over the line in one state when it is against the laws of that state and find protection by crossing the line into another.

The Montana game warden was the father of the idea of the gathering of the wardens and it is claimed not only by him but by Pendleton men that if the several western states adopt uniform laws much benefit will result.

One of the chief objections to the present laws is the inability of the game wardens of the different states to enforce the game laws in many places for the reason that the game thieves will kill game in one state when the law forbids and dodge into the adjoining state where they will be protected. These differences will be eradicated if possible. At least the meeting at the Yellowstone park is to arrive at some means for remedying this and it is likely that the legislatures will be asked to pass laws to this end.
