

TRAMPS GALORE

ALONG THE O. R. & N. MAIN LINE.

Train Men Are Having Plenty of Fun With the "Weary Willies" All Along the Road—Scarce in Pendleton.

Train crews along the main lines of the O. R. & N. railroad, and especially out of Portland, are complaining of the surfeit of hobos. This is the time of year that all the "Weary Willies" are making their rounds of the country trying to make a living without work, and every part of the country is penetrated by them.

They are usually bold, too, this spring, and many times when an employe of the railroad company locates one and goes to put him off, he will show fight and the brakeman is often compelled to call assistance to put the fellow off.

Train Man Talks.

In speaking of these genus of the road, a brakeman running in and out of Pendleton, had this to say about them to an East Oregonian reporter Thursday evening:

"Tramps this year are uglier than usual. They have to be put off the train a dozen times between stations and if you give them a chance they show fight. The boys tell me they are a fright out of Pasco and they are little better out of Portland, but from Pasco they are so thick that they cannot be stirred with a stick and no less than a dozen tussels have been had between the dingbats and the brakies.

"Tramps are averse to being put off a train in that section where houses are scarce and water is scarce and if a train is stopped and a Weary Willie ejected he swings himself under on the rods again as quick as the train starts and there is little chance to keep him from it unless one of the train crew stands by until the last car passes and keeps him fought off. In doing this the train man takes his life in his hands. It is nothing infrequent for the bum to show fight and he will sometimes clinch with the employe of the road to try and make him miss the train and leave him in the same condition as himself. If they accomplish this, of course, the train will stop and take him on again and the bum simply gets another chance at "catching on."

"There ought to be some law to deal with these fellows and every train employe ought to be made a deputy sheriff, with authority to arrest every hobo he finds. In that way the "Wearies" might be frightened to stay away from trains and some protection would be afforded the trainmen."

Few Hobos in Pendleton.

So far the hobo crop has been light in Pendleton with the exception of for a few days several weeks ago. This is perhaps attributed to the efficient work of the police force, and especially to Policeman Fee, who makes the life of the wandered burdensome if he "hangs around" too much. A system of chain gang was inaugurated by Mr. Fee last spring, who is also street commissioner, and every man caught bumming and without money to pay his way was thrown into jail, where he was fed on bread and water and put to work on the streets during the day. This plan worked like a charm while in vogue and tramps became scarce in Pendleton, although they are beginning to come in again and the same system may have to be inaugurated again.

THE WESTON NEIGHBORHOOD.

Local News and Personal Mention—A Tarantula From California.

The East Oregonian is indebted to the Weston Leader for the following items:

W. H. Pruett has greatly declined in health of late at his home near town, causing much uneasiness to his family and friends.

At the recent conference in Waverly, Wash., Rev. W. S. Payne was returned to the pastorate of the United Brethren church at Weston for another year.

Mrs. Fred Taylor and Mrs. James Estes, who were the guests during commencement of Miss Gertrude Preston, returned Friday to their homes at Pendleton.

Kester Kirkpatrick came over from Walla Walla Sunday, returning to the hospital Tuesday, accompanied by his father. He is gradually recovering from his serious sickness, and felt much benefited by his trip home.

S. A. Barnes recently sold a house and lot on Wallace street, opposite the normal school grounds, to C. M. Pierce. Mr. Barnes afterward bought the Coverdale property on Broad street, consisting of a house and four lots, to which his family has moved.

A restless and discontented tarantula which had been shanghaied from its sunny home in California, arrived at Culley's grocery the other day in a bunch of bananas. It evinced no friendliness toward strangers in a strange land, and was promptly dispatched and bottled.

Mr. Alexander McCorkell and Miss Amy N. Taylor were united in marriage June 15, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, near Griggson. C. R. Lamar, pastor of the Baptist church, united the young couple, who have the heartiest well wishes of friends.

Louis Bonifer, a pioneer of 1861, 67 years old, died last week at his home near Athena, after a long sickness. He left a wife, son and daughter, the children being David Bonifer and Mrs. Clara Duffy. Dave did not know of his father's death until he returned Tuesday from Snake river.

J. E. Beam, who 20 years ago was Weston's Poo Bah, being chief of police, superintendent of streets, deputy sheriff, constable, baseball umpire, and factotum extraordinary, came up with the Woodmen from Pendleton. Mr. Beam left Weston a village and found it a bustling metropolis. He was lost and disheartened until he discovered Bill Powers in his accustomed attitude of repose at the corner of Steenth street and Hayes avenue.

AFTER THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS.

Brother and Sister Meet Again at Weston.

William Fuson, of De Kalk county, Missouri, is in Weston, says the Leader, on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Margaret Lieuallen. He is an uncle of Mrs. William Kilgore, T. J. and J. P. Lieuallen, J. L. and J. T. Fuson.

Brother and sister had not met since the time Mrs. Lieuallen, the bride of a day, started from Missouri for Oregon, 38 years ago. Upon going to her home he attempted to shake hands, which proceeding she evidently considered impertinent, for she drew back coldly with the remark, "I do not think I know you, sir." You ought to know your youngest brother," he explained, whereupon his welcome was all that a brother could ask.

Mr. Fuson recently sold his farm in Missouri, 200 acres, at $50 an acre, and is possessed of considerable means. He may conclude to locate in this part of Umatilla county, if he can find a place to suit him at the right figure, in which event several of his children would, in all likelihood, follow him to Oregon, with their families. If not satisfied with the outlook here, after a two months' visit, he will probably locate in Oklahoma, which region he intends to explore.

The Oregon Pioneers.

Fully 1000 Oregon pioneers marched in Portland in a procession from the Portland hotel to the Exposition building, where the 30th annual meeting of the Pioneers' Association was held. Many had passed four score years of life, but they marched in the ranks with men 30 years their juniors. The venerable George H. Williams, mayor-elect of Portland, now in his 80th year, delivered the address of welcome to the pioneers, nearly every one of whom he is personally acquainted with. Judge J. C. Moreland, of Portland, was elected president of the association. At the conclusion of the business meeting a banquet was served and more than 1000 aged men and women sat down at tables which were waited upon by Native Daughters of Oregon.

The district convention of the Woodmen of the World, at Woodburn Thursday, elected as delegates to the head camp session at Cripple Creek, Colo., J. C. Jones, W. T. Woodcock, W. A. Moore, Harry Day, C. N. Beckwith, C. C. Canningham, C. C. Bradley, H. Shade, J. J. Jennings, R. T. Holms, W. M. Haines. The Women of Woodcraft elected five delegates to the head circle, as follows: Viola Ortschid, Martha Lawrence, Kate Orton, Grace Newell and Mrs. Randall.
