THE WHIPPING POST.

The Use of it at the Oregon Penitentiary at Salem.

Governor-elect Geo. E. Chamberlain says that as soon as he assumes the duties of the office of governor he will stop the whipping of prisoners at the state penitentiary. Several of the police department in Portland, as well as a number of private citizens, have appealed to him to stop the practice, which is detrimental to the best interests of the prison and is decidedly inhuman. There are only three states in the union which permit the whipping of convicts, and Oregon is one of them.

Under Penney's administration whipping was abolished at the state penitentiary. Under Governor Lord's administration the whipping post was resumed on account of the conduct of Abe Lawrence, who was sent up from this city. No other way could be found to make him obey the rules of the prison. Since that time the punishment has been general, until at the present time the convicts are unmercifully whipped for very small petty offenses, such as talking to one another, talking back to the guards, laughing or shirking work.

When whipped the convicts are stripped of their clothes and their hands are elevated above their heads by means of handcuffs. With the first blow almost the blood comes and nine times out of ten the punishment is so severe that the culprit faints. After the whipping the prisoner is made to put on his coarse shirt, which scratches the bleeding and raw back until the pain is almost unbearable.

THE MEN WOMEN LIKE.

Will Worship Man With Big Muscle and Little Brain.

Lady Collin Campbell in London News: Women abhor cowards and still more sneaks, though I regret to say they often endure cads in a way that belies their intelligence and good taste. They have a quite pathetic desire to look up to men, to feel men their superiors in strength of body and of mind, in calmness of judgment and clearness of intellect. And it is indeed a pity that men so often seem to go out of their way to destroy their most cherished illusions.

Above anything a woman admires strength in a man. It may be strength of body—she will worship a Hercules with the brain of a guinea pig. It may be strength of intellect—she will adore a savant with the body of a Gibbon monkey. It may be strength of character—she will break her heart for a politician or a financier who is unwaveringly wrapped up in dreams of personal advancement, and who possesses no more heart than an oyster. But strength in some form she craves unceasingly. It is an hereditary instinct that has been bequeathed to her through Eve's disappointment when Adam was tried in the balance and found wanting. Women, secretly conscious of her own physical weakness and lack of intellectual strength, demands strength from man to make up her own deficiencies. Even the strongest woman, strong in body and mind, well balanced as Athene herself, though she may shield and protect the weakness of the men they love and stoop to help them, will never do so without a secret feeling of contempt which is destruction of all ideals.

Man, in spite of that deplorable start made by Adam, was intended to be woman's protector and refuge from all harm, upon whom she could lean and rely in every event of life's pilgrimage, and when the roles are reversed, as they often so unfortunately are, it is a bad thing for both man and woman. Strength, however, is what women love in men.

afternoon charged with larceny and were placed under bonds of $100 each to appear for trial Wednesday. Thomas Bergiven is the complaining witness. Blaine Hallock claims to be the champion fish catcher so far. He went to Bingham Springs Sunday and returned in the evening with 125 nice trout as a result of one day's work. He might have caught more, but 125 is the limit for one fisherman in one day, under the laws of Oregon.

OWED HIM TEN DOLLARS.

It Was the Cause of a Scrap on the Street and an Arrest.

Thomas Scott and A. Gasaway were arraigned before Police Judge McCourt this forenoon for assault. Scott was dismissed and Gasaway was fined $10, and in default, went to jail for five days. The cause of the trouble, as near as can be learned, was $10, which Scott says Gasaway owed him. Gasaway had been employed by Scott as a bootblack and just before election asked Scott to bet $10 for him on Furnish's election. Tom bet and lost. He met Gasaway Sunday morning and told him it was about time for him to settle the debt and Gasaway became angry and swore he would lick him. Scott thought little of this threat, but it was only a few minutes until they met on the street and Gasaway started in to make his threat good. He grabbed Tom by the collar and started in to punch his face. Tom took several licks and tried to argue the case with his assailant, saying he did not want to fight and tried to get Gasaway to stop. He would not, and after being hit a few times, Tom concluded he would protect himself and proceeded to go after his assailant. He only had time to hit two or three blows when Policeman Fee arrived and arrested them, but he had his antagonist about knocked out when the officer arrived.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

Some Reasons in Answer to the Question, Why Do They Fail?

To the question, "Why do women fail in business?" the secretary of a woman's employment bureau in London recently said: "Not long ago I set myself to solve that problem. I had before me the particulars of some 250 girls and women for whom a certain society had been unable to find work. In nearly a hundred of these cases 'want of training' was set down as the chief reason that work could not be found. Of another fifty 'deficient education' was the main hindrance.

"I think some women fail in business for these reasons—want of training, which is another name for lack of experience, and deficient education. If insufficient experience prevents a girl from being accepted as a clerk or a nursery governess, how much more likely is it to prevent a woman from holding her own when she attempts, in the face of commercial competition, to establish any kind of business for herself? To master a business properly one should begin at the bottom and work upward. It is a fatal mistake to try to learn a business from the top, and those who have committed the blunder by constituting themselves employers and mistresses of large enterprises have often fallen to the bottom more abruptly than was pleasant.

"Some women ascribe their failure to want of capital, but I do not regard this difficulty as a serious one. Too much capital, which prevents a woman from getting any real knowledge of business and leads her to be extravagant in her ideas, is quite as often a hindrance as the possession of too little.

"A girl's education should be both thorough and general, though it need not for commercial purposes be scholarly. She also needs preparation for the special kind of business which she intends to adopt. With this dowry and an average amount of mother wit a girl has little to fear. Indeed I consider that in many manufacturing and commercial enterprises she has now an especially good prospect of success."
