STOCK SHIPMENTS

MANY HEAD GO EAST FROM OREGON RANGES.

Heavy Shipments of Cattle From Ontario and Big Bunches of Range Horses From Burns Give Cause for Congratulation.

That Ontario is the largest shipping point on the Oregon Short Line is evidenced every day by the long trains of livestock, wool, etc., which start from there on their long journey to the eastern markets, says the Argus. The heaviest shipment at this season of the year is cattle, and scenes of unprecedented activity are witnessed daily at the stockyards. There the cattle are loaded into the cars and carried away, the empty pens being immediately filled by waiting herds, which are coming in steadily from all directions. Harney county is sending immense herds, and not a day passes but sees long lines of cattle on the way to the stockyards. The shipments are averaging a little better than a trainload a day.

Buyers Coming In.
Buyers are coming in from many points and prices continue strong. Prime beef cattle are at top prices and the supply, owing to the shortness of grass due to the cold backward weather this spring is not anywhere near up to the demand. Stockers and feeders are plentiful, but the demand is so strong that prices maintain their strength with good prospects for the future. The presence of a large number of cowboys in town adds much to the life and picturesqueness of this busy little city, and contributes not a little to the material prosperity of its enterprising business men.

Range Horses Going.
A Burns exchange says there is cause for congratulation in the fact that so many range horses have been taken out of Eastern Oregon. The pressure of circumstances has in great measure deprived the average of range horses of value—that is, they have not of late years been of ready sale upon a fixed market.

Has Been Specific Demand.
The demand has been for animals of specific classes, and has left the herds in much less than first class order. Assuming that the price which an independent stockman will accept for his herd of horses represents their full home value, the movement of herds in their entirety means a great deal to the producers. It relieves them of the care of stock, and sometimes costly, effort.

Room for Better Stock.
Moreover, their absence means greater room for more profitable stock, and is an important factor to the process of improving quality at the expense of numbers. The exchange of loose herds of horses without fixed value for stock that will find ready sale at good prices will constitute a great step in advance for the range country.

Eclipse of the Honeymoon.
Romance gets but small chance nowadays. The modern man and maid are nothing if not severely practical and ostentatiously free from the romance which animated their grandparents. One by one are cast aside the traditions which for generations have clung about all that is associated with love's young dream. And now even the honeymoon is being sacrificed. Time was when brides and bridegrooms spent the first month of their married life entirely apart. It was supposed—and rightly, of a surety—that they would prefer to be away not only from their friends, but from all social distractions, during those first halcyon days when they realize that they belong to each other. By degrees, however, as marriage has come to be taken less seriously and love is spoken of as something old fashioned and essentially middle class, the honeymoon has been cut down, and it is a sign of the times and their spirit that there is a marked tendency on the part of brides to ignore the honeymoon altogether. Rumor has it that in due course its extinction is bound to be brought about. That the modern bride cannot endure the sole companionship of her husband for even the first few days of married life and that Benedict must have golfing or playhouses or the society of friends lest he should be bored by the woman he has just taken as a life companion is truly a pitiful exposure of the spirit in which the holy estate is entered upon by the present generation.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"New Women" of Antiquity.
The "new woman" is not so "new" after all, for, according to Altamire's "Historia de Espana," she flourished in Spain fully a thousand years ago. At that time the teaching of religious law was not seldom intrusted to women professors. Girls enjoyed the same primary instruction as boys, and then devoted themselves to professional studies, some of which were practiced; for example, medicine and literature, serving in the latter domain as secretaries and writers in the caliph's civil service. So widespread was education among the women of Cordova that in a single ward there were 170 of them busied in copying the Koran. So highly was the education of women rated that a prince of royal Spanish blood wedded a negro slave woman merely on account of her intelligence and knowledge. Another prince was captivated by the woman who became his wife through hearing her improvise verses.

Uses For Art Tickings.
The art tickings now so plentiful in the upholstery shops and department stores may be utilized for a variety of pretty and ornamental articles for household use and adornment. A sewing basket covered with a pretty design of cretonne and brightened by a ribbon bow or two is useful as well as pretty and for holding embroidery silk a cretonne roll is of much service. In the ornamental line is a scrapbasket lined with denim and covered with cretonne in effective pattern.

Woman's World

MRS. EMMY C. EVALD.

The Most Prominent Swedish Woman in America.

Mrs. Emmy C. Evald is a resident of Chicago and is said to be the most prominent Swedish woman in America. Mrs. Evald is the daughter of the late Rev. Erlend Carlson, D. D., who came to Chicago half a century ago as one of the pioneers of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church. He was the pastor of Immanuel church for twenty-two years and gathered a strong congregation under his care. He was succeeded by his son-in-law, Rev. Carl A. Evald, D. D., who has served his flock twenty-seven years.

Mrs. Evald is an enthusiastic coworker with her husband and a minister's ideal wife. Mrs. Evald's interest in female suffrage grew out of her church work, and her husband is in full sympathy with her. Each woman as well as each man in the church is expected to pay an annual fixed fee. Upon the shoulders of the women also falls much of the burden of church work, and yet they are not permitted to vote in the church organization. In Sweden it is different. There the women are permitted to vote in church affairs. Mrs. Evald has long been an advocate of the Swedish system in her church, and upon the passage of the law making women eligible for the office of trustee of the University of Illinois she became an advocate of political woman suffrage.

Mrs. Evald's own beautiful home and well groomed children give her opponents no chance to cavil. Mrs. Evald is a clear eyed, clear minded, fair haired woman, trim of figure and clear cut in speech, with an earnestness and a genuineness that are calculated to carry conviction. Her activities have been numerous. She was the chairman of the Lutheran Women's congress during the exposition of 1893. She organized and for ten years has been president of a missionary society in her synod that has done much good. She was a member of the Chicago Woman's club for two years and until its meetings conflicted with her church duties. She organized the Swedish-American Woman's club and a Betsy Ross association to raise funds to preserve the home of the woman who made the first American flag.

A painting of two lovely daughters hanging in the Evald parlor shows that this busy woman also has found time amid her many activities to cultivate the gentle arts.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Warning to Mothers.

Mothers in teaching their little ones how to walk do not stop to think how the bones grow. The bones in a baby's legs are soft, half cartilaginous and very easily bent out of their proper shape. Care should be taken not to allow a child to walk too soon and above all not to keep him on his feet for too long a time, or when he is at all tired. When he is ready, he will try of his own accord, and he generally knows what he is about.

Urging a child to walk prematurely is productive of lasting injury, as bow legs are only too easily formed. Let a child creep as long as he wants to. Give him plenty of room to kick around in, and he will be strengthening his muscles and getting ready for work. Suppose he is backward about walking, what difference does it make? A child who follows his own ideas in learning to walk will succeed much better and learn self reliance at the same time.

The same rule holds good in regard to sitting up. If he is forced to sit up too soon, it will have a tendency to weaken his back and interfere with his growth. Older children should be taught to sit erect. When tired, insist upon a child lying down instead of sliding down in the chair until he is literally sitting on the end of his spine. Such a habit is easily formed and hard to correct, resulting in a poor carriage, bad form and narrow chest.

If you observe such a child, you will find he suffers from dizziness and headaches, as the curved form of the spine results in a pulling of the muscles at the back of the neck, and the difficulty is certain to be removed if the child is taught to sit properly.—United States Health Report.

Don't Wear Mourning.

To all of womankind white is almost universally becoming. Children should never wear mourning, and girls and young women if they wear it should do so for only a short time. I do not approve of the conventional mourning dress for any one. If one must wear it, however, I beg the discarding of the hideous crape veil. It is heathenish. The world is a sad enough place without women walking around in crape veils.—Woman's Home Companion.

Proper Ventilation.

A direct draft from a window open at the top and bottom is a menace, and fresh air at that price becomes dangerous. The ideal way of ventilating a bedroom that is within reach of every one is to fit a board about four or five inches wide at the bottom of the lower sash. The room is well ventilated by the space at the middle of the window without a direct draft in the room.

Worn tablecloths can be made into serviceable napkins and traycloths as well as polishing towels for fine china and silver if the best parts are selected and neatly hemmed.

Frederika Bremer, a writer, did more to raise Scandinavian women to a level with those of other nations than did any other woman of her time.
