ONTARIO IS LIVELY

MAYOR HAILEY BACK FROM TRIP TO THAT SECTION.

Says Development of That Country During Past Ten Years Has Been Something Remarkable—Boise. Is Busy.

Mayor T. G. Halley, who returned a few days ago from Ontario, where he delivered the Fourth of July oration; and a visit to his relatives in Boise; has the following to say about the country:

"Ontario is a thriving little town of 750 people and they showed their 'get up' by the way they celebrated the nation's birth. The celebration was planned and carried out by the ladies of the town and the manner in which they handled the celebration reflects great credit upon them.

"Little did I think, when passing up the Snake river, 20 years ago, that the vast desert land, where now stands Ontario, and the surrounding country, would ever bloom forth with fruit, vegetables and grain as it does today; but it is now one among the prosperous sections of Oregon.

"About 17 years ago the railroad went through that country and where now stands the town of Ontario, a station was built. This remained only as a desert railroad station until about 10 years ago, when capital began to develop the country and ditches were run from Snake river to irrigate the land, and since that time the town has grown to what it is today. Everything seems on the move and the very air tells of prosperity among all classes.

"I left Ontario Friday for Boise to visit my mother and other relatives. My parents moved to Boise about 35 years ago and a wonderful change has taken place in the town and country since that time. Boise now has a population of 15,000 and on every hand are signs of prosperity. Not only are business blocks being built, but fine residences are going up. Two brick flats are being erected, one at a cost of $16,000. The First National Bank is erecting a fine stone structure and one solid brick block is now under course of construction. A high school building is also being built, and a brick plant is being installed for manufacturing pressed and fire brick. This plant will represent several thousand dollars. In fact, improvement can be seen on every hand.

"The air is permeated with the feeling of good cheer and prosperity. The people of Boise all have a good word for Oregon and especially Pendleton. Those who are acquainted with Pendleton say it is all right. One thing that struck me as peculiar, though, was that in some places the improvement was so marked since I left there while in other places no improvement had been made. One place in particular which I noticed was my father's old stage barn, which he ran many years ago. This was sold and is still being run, but it doesn't look as though a nail had been driven in it since I left there. No sign of improvement has been noticed anywhere about it.

"The whole country is irrigated around Boise and land is high priced. One fruit ranch of 160 acres, between Boise and Nampa, recently sold for $20,000.

"One thing which makes Boise a beautiful town is the shade trees. Apparently everyone has taken special pains to plant trees in their yards and along the streets in front of their homes. This is something that beautifies the town and I want to urge the people of Pendleton to plant shade trees. If this is done all along streets and in front of every man's property, it will only be a few years until Pendleton will be noted as one of the most beautiful towns in the country. Nothing equals shade trees for making a town look good."

No Woodmen From Here.

No Modern Woodmen will attend the picnic at Freewater Friday. An invitation was sent the Pendleton camp by the Walla Walla camp but it was late in reaching here and at the meeting of the local camp Monday evening it was decided that it was too late to prepare for a delegation from here and the matter was dismissed. While the local camp appreciated the invitation, none will be present at the festivities. Milton, Weston, Freewater and Walla Walla will be the only lodges represented to any extent.

Kindness Did More Than Blows.
Broadway cars and vehicles were blocked in a jam. The old horse wouldn't move. His driver stood alternately staring at him in despair and beating him with a heavy whip, but neither blows nor words would move him. He laid back his ears and stood stock still. A crowd gathered, watched and commented.
"Build a fire under him," suggested one.
"Stick a pin in him," advised another.
Again the driver laid on the whip more heavily than before, but it was no go. Just then a man stepped out of the crowd.
"Let me have a try," he said.
He walked up to the old horse and laid his hand on his head.
"Come, old boy; buckle down to it," and he patted him gently. The horse turned his old head and looked at the stranger.
"Come," he continued; "have another try; buckle down to it," and he stroked his neck.
The old horse understood at last. His limbs gave a quiver, and the truck moved ahead.—New York Tribune.

The Scientist's Debt to Franklin.
Benjamin Franklin was one of the most earnest and tireless of scientists. His discoveries are classed among the most remarkable of his age. They were as extensive and brilliant as they were deep and mysterious. He outran the most celebrated English electricians in the race for new discoveries. He gave form and dignity to the science of electricity and raised the science to a high rank among the most useful and distinguished and also gave it a philosophical standing second to none of the discoveries of the eighteenth century. To Benjamin Franklin are due many of the most useful discoveries in electricity. His clear eyes of prophecy saw the glorious triumph of his favorite science, and somewhere he may be watching the grand illuminations resulting from his successful efforts in bottling a flash of lightning. He was the first man to succeed in imprisoning the mysterious currents of electricity.
