a Grande Beet Pullers to Play Four Game Series With the Indians, Commencing on Thursday-Notes of the Diamond.

Next Thursday, Friday, Saturday it never disappoints. Cure is guar-and Sunday, La Grande and Pendle-ton, the three times winners, will and $1.00. Trial bottles free. cross bats at the Alta grounds and determine which of the two are the mightier on the elongated diamond

At the same hours and dates Baker City and Walla Walla, the tailenders, will do battle at the latter city.

Much interest is felt locally in the series to be played between the In-dians and the Beet Pullers, as both have the same per centage and both have won three out of the first four games played. The four games to be played here this week will give the fans a line on the respective merits of the two leading teams and practically settle in their minds the question of which will carry the pennant when the season is over.

Of course, the local devotees of he game are enthusiastic over the work of the Indians and do not hesitate to predict that they will have the Beet Pullers' scalp-locks salted down and safely stored away in their trophy chest when the forthcoming series is over.

They base this opinion on the fact that the drubbings administered by the Pendleton boys to the Baker Gold Diggers were so one-sided that it looked almost like a slaughter of the innocents, while the games between Walla Walla and La Grande were more like school boy ball than anything else, the scores running up to real old-fashioned farmer league

La Grande was the tailender in the recent amateur league which just closed its season, while Pendleton stood easily in the lead, and that the first named city should have developed such unexpected strength without making greater changes in her team, does not seem possible to Pendleton fans. Hence their confidence in the Indians.

One or two of the players of the late Yellow Kids team have been added to the beet picking aggregation, while several changes have been made in the redskin line-up and this may make a difference, but it can hardly be very great.

It is whispered on the strict q. t.. among the knowing ones, that another man or two is to be added to the Indians, circles, men who have made good in the Northwest League, and who leave it only by special permission, but just who these men are is not yet made public.
