Fortunately the fire was prevented from spreading to the grain and the engine was run back out of danger before it was damaged any. EASTERNERS COME WEST.

Men Who Work in Harvest Fields Can Make Money in West.

The eastern harvester in the west can make as much money in one season as in two in his own country. Returning east and taking that money with him he can live better and longer on it than he could here, says the Walla Walla Union. When he starts west at the right season of the year and works his way from field to field and section to section he does as well in seven months as the average common laborer in the east can do in twelve. For this reason many of the harvest haws who come into Walla Walla country are men who have worked northward from California on the beaten path and regular circuit. One of these is T. W. Allen. Mr. Allen said:

"This is the second year I have made the western harvesting trip. Owing to a tardy season I reached here a little ahead of the harvest and will have to wait for the wheat to ripen, but a few days do not make any difference. The season will last just as long after it gets started.

"Wages in the harvest fields of the west are much better than the east, but living is higher here, too. They charge us a great deal for board while we are working in the harvest here but even then we get out with more money than we would if we stayed at home and worked. There is not the dearth of men here that there is in the east and middle west. I presume there will be after a while but at the present time we all manage to find employment and the wages are not as good as we could wish but better than we get at home or we would not come.

"With the money we save from the harvest season here we go back into our own country and could get through the remainder of the year but the majority of the eastern and middle western harvesters who come out here are not that class of men who are idle at any time if they can help it. We are unfortunate in not having trades at which we can secure steady employment, but there is more work in the winter than in summer and we generally manage to keep pretty busy."

VETS WANT MONEY.

Many Inquiries as to Who is Entitled to Pensions Under New Bill

T. A. Wood, grand commander of the Indian war veterans, and the father of the pension bill just passed by congress, is deluged with letters daily from old Indian fighters from all over Oregon and Washington, says the Baker City Democrat. They want to be enrolled on Uncle Sam's pay list, at the prevailing rate of $8 per month. Mr. Wood says that out of 50 letters received daily, from eight to ten are from persons who draw pension money.

In Oregon and Washington there are probably 1,000 persons eligible for the pension list. The widows of the pensioners are entitled to receive the full share, but at their death the allowance does not descend to the heirs.

The government will not pay any back money. The bill took effect from the date of its passage, and all the years of expectation and privation in some instances will not be rewarded. Mr. Wood says that had he known before what he does now, he could have had the retroactive clause inserted. Since the measure passed he has discovered that under the army rules the Indian fighters who co-operated with the regulars in suppressing rebellions, are entitled to the same consideration as the United States troops.

Mr. Wood was well satisfied to get the bill through in any shape. For the past seven years he has been hammering away at the senators and representatives in congress, and made a special trip to Washington at the last session in the interests of the measure.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
